TARIFF ALL SETTLED EXCEPT SUGAR RATE

Free Wool Accepted, Dependent on Compromise with Louisiana Sugar Growers.

WILSON'S VIEWS AGREED TO

Standpatters Threaten Trouble, but Democrats Are Lining Up to Make Bill Test of Party Loyalty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Debatable ground in the Tariff bill, over which President Wilson and Democratic members of the House and Senate committees concerned have been in steady conference for several days, has narrowed to-night to the sugar schedule.

The tentative draft of the new tariff is understood to contain these features:

Raw Wool—Free.

Manufactures of Wool—Present rate cut in half.

Sugar—Still in doubt, but possibly compromising at about a cent a pound on Cuban product, with free sugar in three years if possible.

Manufactures of Cotton—Thirty-five per cent. cut from present rates.

Manufactures of Steel—Cut to rates of Underwood bill in last Congress, but steel rails, barbed fence wire, and railway bars free.

Chemicals—Considerable reductions in rates.

Beers—Rate slightly reduced, but duties on wines and expensive liquors unchanged.

Lemons—Present duty cut in two.

Other citrus fruit—Rate reduced about 66 per cent.

Boots and shoes, hides and leather, and skins—Free.

Meats, lard, and salt—Free.

News print paper, wood pulp, and cotton bagging—Free.

Iron ore and timber—Free.

Agricultural implements and machinery, sewing machines, typewriters, printing presses, and road machinery—Free.

Income tax to be levied on incomes of $4,000 and over, the rate tentatively settled being 1 per cent. on incomes of $4,000 to $25,000, with an added 1 per cent. for each $25,000 of income until a 4 per cent. rate in reached.

Free Raw Wool If—

Free raw wool was to-day incorporated in the tentative draft of the bill. It was conceded by Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee at the urgent solicitation of President Wilson, and the indications are now that the Senate Committee on Finance will accept the free wool paragraph provided an agreement can be reached with Senators from the sugar-growing States as to the treatment of sugar.

The Senators from the States that grow sugar are now communicating with home interests to learn what is the greatest concession they will make to those who insist on free sugar. Pending a report the Democratic members of the Senate Finance Committee will wait until Sunday to meet and hear the last word from the sugar Senators.

It was understood to-day that the sugar-growing interests would agree to a rate of $1.20 on 100 pounds of Cuban sugar, which would net the Treasury $1 on 100 pounds, Cuban sugar being entitled to a reduction under the treaty. Should an agreement be reached on this line, no further attention would be paid to the Senators from the wool-growing States who are in arms against free wool. But if the sugar men decline to compromise it will then be necessary to negotiate further with the wool State Senators, who would be in a position to demand a small duty on the product in which they are interested.

Senators Ask Share in Settling Bill.

A new factor was brought into the situation to-day. Senator Stone of Missouri thus set it forth in a statement to THE NEW YORK TIMES:

"The Democrats of the Finance Committee of the Senate feel that they ought to be consulted in the preparation of the Tariff bill. The Democrats are in control of both houses and the Presidency. These three are to make the law. The Senate thinks it is a co-ordinate and equal branch of the Government in this important work. We feel that we ought to be primarily consulted fully and freely in the preparation of the Tariff bill, that any effort to exclude us is unfair to the Senate, and will not be received except in a spirit of resentment. We should work together to accomplish a common end, but I think that if the Senate is shut out of consideration in the original preparation of the bill, then the Senate will take its own course. I think that what I have here said meets the approval of the President in the matter, at least in its essential parts."

Heretofore the Senate leaders have never been informed of the provisions of a Tariff bill under ti was presented to the House by the Ways and Means Committee. President Wilson, as Senator Stone says, believes in joint consultation between Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Committee on Finance. That the House Democrats have conceded the point, made by the Senators is shown by the fact that Chairman Underwood will attend the Finance Committee meeting on Sunday.

At a meeting of Democratic members of the Committee on Finance today progress was retarded by the fact that the committee had only one copy of the bill prepared by the Ways and Means Committee. It was felt that consideration of the bill could not proceed with satisfaction until enough copies had been provided and information given as to the reasons for fixing certain rates. Up to that time the Democratic members of the Finance Committee had no detailed information on the main provisions of the bill except those relating to wool and sugar.

Expect Quick Settlement.

At the White House it was stated that the wool and sugar questions would probably be settled within a day or two and the bill, as approved by the Senate, would then go to the printer immediately thereafter. It has been made plain that the Administration's approval is expected to hold good in both houses and that whatever concessions the President may make before the bill is printed for distribution will be with the express idea of carrying the measure, practically unchanged, through House and Senate.

This means that all concessions by the President, and to a less degree those made by the Ways and Means majority, will be such as to bring together all factions of the party in the Senate and insure a safe margin for the measure in the Upper Chamber. This Democratic unity, it is admitted, can be obtained only by concessions on the sugar schedule.

This afternoon the White House was waiting only for the resumption of wire communication with Louisiana, to enable the Senators from that State to learn whether the terms proposed were acceptable to the sugar interests. If the answer is in the affirmative, the bill will be ordered printed, perhaps without waiting for the Senate Committee on Finance to pass on it at its Sunday meeting.

The Administration has ceased, for

COULDN'T DOWN YOUTH OF 90

Mr. Schmitz Only Wanted a Whiskbroom After Auto Bowled Him Over.

For the first time in many a day Henry Schmitz, a retired manufacturer, stayed indoors yesterday afternoon at his home, 221 West 130th Street. Notwithstanding his 90 years he has been accustomed to take a two-mile walk every pleasant afternoon and morning. He missed his afternoon walk yesterday because Mrs. Schmitz put her foot down. Mrs. Schmitz took a firm stand because she had heard what happened to him on his morning walk. He had been knocked down and run over by an automobile, but she heard of it indirectly, because when he came home to luncheon he was careful not to mention it.

On his way home yesterday morning he was crossing Lenox Avenue at 125th Street, when Mrs. Ada Portfillio of 601 West 168th Street came along in her auto. Though a fine, up-standing veteran, Mr. Schmitz is not as agile as he was three-quarters of a century ago. He did not clear the path of that auto in time, and it bowled him over. Also, according to Patrolman Morrissey, one of the front wheels passed over his body.

The patrolman ran forward, and his eyes grew wide with wonder when Mr. Schmitz got to his feet unaided.

"Do you want an ambulance?" asked the patrolman.

"Young man," said Mr. Schmitz, "what I want more than anything else is a whiskbroom."

So they brushed off the telltale streaks of dust and he walked briskly home, determined not to worry his wife with any reference to what had befallen him. Patrolman Morrissey mentioned it at the station, though, and the story quickly went the rounds, so that it was a reporter who let the secret out when he went to the Schmitz home to ask after the health of the head of the house.

BOYS EXPLODE A SHELL.

Several Badly Hurt and One May Die of Injuries.

When thirteen-year-old Walter Wardell of 143 Stagg Street, Williamsburg, went out to play after supper last evening he ran down the street in search of adventure and found it at Graham Avenue, for in the gutter lay a shell eight inches long and two inches in diameter, big enough for use in a field gun.

He picked it up and polished it off and ran on to join a troop of neighborhood boys at Maujer Avenue. They all coveted the shell, and one boy produced a box of matches, but Wardell insisted upon striking them himself. He had struck ten in an effort to heat the shell when it exploded, bowling over the whole group, bruising and burning them, and injuring one boy so badly that he was taken dying to St. Catherine's Hospital.

This was thirteen-year-old Frederick Wetscheider of 288 Devoe Street, who had three fingers blown off, and whose skull was fractured by the force of the explosion. The Wardell boy himself was badly cut and burned. Joseph Zarenhas of 147 Maujer Street was burned, and three-year-old Charles Van Edsbye, who lives next door to the Wardells, had his wrist broken.

VICTORY OVER NEW HAVEN.

School Teacher Compels Road to Stop Trains at Her Station.

Miss Helen H. Albert, a school teacher living at Mamaroneck, has just won a victory over the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company. She has to go daily to her work at Hunts Point, and till the Boston & Westchester Railroad Company began to run trains used to go by the New Haven Line. As soon as the new road was in operation, however, she found that she was expected to alight from the New Haven train at Westchester and transfer to a Boston & Westchester train, because the Hunts Point stop of the New Haven had been cut out.

Theoretically, the Boston & Westchester train left Westchester three minutes after the arrival of the New Haven, but actually the latter was often late, and delays of as much as ten to thirty minutes occurred. Miss Albert therefore complained of the cut-out of the stop of the New Haven trains, not only at Hunts Point, but at Casanova and Port Morris as well. These are the stations on a strip of line used by both the companies.

At the hearing before Commissioner Eustis the New Haven argued that it had the right to cut out these stops under its contract with the Westchester Line, which had been approved by the commission, but this interpretation was not agreed to by the Commissioner, who ordered the New Haven to make four westbound and four eastbound trains a day stop at Hunts Point, Casanova, and Port Morris. The westbound trains leave New Rochelle between 7 and 9 o'clock in the morning and the eastbound trains between 4:03 and 6:03 o'clock in the afternoon.

BIG VANDERBILT GIFT.

Donation of $300,000 for New Railroad Y. M. C. A. Building.

Three members of the Vanderbilt family, having contributed $300,000 for the perpetuation of the present Cornelius Vanderbilt Young Men's Christian Association Memorial and the railroad companies in which they are interested having agreed to pay an indemnity of $100,000 for the present structure, the New York Central Railroad Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association in this city, now at 361 Madison Avenue, is to have a new home at Park Avenue, Forty-ninth and Fiftieth Streets.

The plot chosen for the site has a frontage of 200 feet on the avenue and 67 feet on the streets. That provides for 70,000 square feet of floor space in the seven-story building, which, it is thought, will be finished this year. The structure will cost more than $500,000. A twenty-one-year lease of the plot has been obtained from the New York Central, renewable on request.

It has been arranged that the new building shall harmonize with the Grand Central Terminal. It will be of white brick trimmed with Indiana limestone, and, though strictly modern in its generosity of window space, will be of classical proportions. One of its big features will be a roof garden occupying the entire top of the structure. That will be the home of most of the branch's activities in warm weather. The roof will be available for athletic purposes as well as general entertainment and social work.

W. K. Vanderbilt, Frederick W. Vanderbilt, and Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt are the members of the family whose contributions of $100,000 each have enabled the railroad branch to build this fine home.

RACING TO RETURN; FIRST MEET MAY 30

Opening at Belmont Park, with Jamaica and Saratoga to Follow.

RICH TURFMEN RAISE FUND

The Official Announcement Follows Liberal Subscriptio is Which Insure Success—Statement from Owners.

Horse racing is to return to New York on May 30, and provision has been made for fifty-five days of the sport in the State up to Sept. 1. The revival will come at Belmont Park, the home of the Westchester Racing Association, and the meeting there is to continue until July 5, with racing three days a week, making a total of eighteen racing days. Racing at Jamaica, the home of the Metropolitan Jockey Club, will follow on July 7, and there will be twelve days of racing there during the month. In August the scene will be Saratoga, where provision has been made for twenty-five continuous days of racing, excepting Sundays.

This definite announcement of the racing programme was given out by Assistant Secretary Daingerfield of The Jockey Club, and it was also announced that the measure of success that attends the sport for the time provided will decide whether there will be other meetings in the Fall. Not only was the racing of 1913 assured, but provision was made for the carrying on of similar race meetings in 1914.

All of this was made possible by the raising of a large fund to which many notable sportsmen contributed liberally, and with those who are still to be heard from makes certain the rehabilitation of the sport on a substantial basis.

Since the decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in the Shane case, which opened the way for a resumption of the sport by declaring oral betting within the law, and at the same time relieved the Directors of racing associations of personal liability for law violations unless they had a guilty knowledge, there has been a deal of speculation as to what would be done by the racing associations.

There was a meeting yesterday in the rooms of the Westchester Racing Association, which was largely attended by track owners, and it was at that session that the circuit was definitely agreed upon.

The fund by which the sport is to be revived has been in the course of collection for some time, and among those who have already subscribed are August Belmont, Harry Payne Whitney, Thomas F. Ryan, H. K. Knapp, John Sanford, H. T. Oxnard, James Butler, Joseph E. Widener, Richard T. Wilson, Charles Kohler, George D. Widener, Frederick Johnson, and other prominent turfmen. There are many others who have not yet been heard from, but the response thus far has been of a character to make the positive announcement of fifty-five days of sport possible.

For these fixtures, with the exception of the selling stakes, there will be an added value of from $2,000 to $2,500. Some of the former features of the Westchester Association have been declared off, but with the adoption of features of other associations a truly notable array of specials is certain. Fred Rehberger, who is acting as racing secretary for all of the associations, has been at work on tentative programmes for some time, and within a short time the various stakes will be opened and entries invited.

The announcement of the "Owners' Fund," as given out by The Jockey Club yesterday, is:

THE OWNERS' FUND.—This fund, to which we, the undersigned, have subscribed for the several amounts set opposite our respective names, shall be known as the "Owners' Fund."

We, as owners of race horses, recognize that the racing associations, on the other hand, will have a very arduous task in re-establishing racing in the State of New York by reason of the great expense under which they will labor in holding race meetings, and the time which the public will require to become accustomed to and satisfied with the new order of things which must prevail at the race courses in the State of New York.

On the other hand, we recognize the difficulties and burdens that the owners of moderate means have sustained in their struggles to keep alive horse racing, and the sportsmanlike manner in which they have borne their part in the face of misrepresentation and legislative persecution.

Therefore to avoid the necessity on the part of the associations for charging high and burdensome entry fees to horse owners, and the further necessity of restricting the amount of added money to their stakes and overnight events, in order that they may continue to keep their gates open, we have decided to raise this fund, out of which will be added to the stakes offered by the racing associations during the coming two years such amounts as in our opinion will assist in the dignified re-establishment of the many great racing events which the public, both in and outside of the State, had become for many years past interested in and familiar with.

It is hoped that the public as well as horsemen in general will earnestly second these efforts on our part by giving to the associations which will endeavor to re-establish the great sport of racing in this State their active and enthusiastic support.

Though no provision was made for racing after September 30 in the State, it was said by an official that should the conditions warrant, Autumn meetings would be considered at the conclusion of racing in Saratoga. At this time it is almost a safe prediction that for the Fall there will be one season of racing at least, over the Yonkers course of the Empire City Racing Association. It is known that James Butler is eager to conduct a meeting over his track, and friends of the sport feel assured that success will surely follow the opening of each race course, when the sport is to be conducted along the dignified lines as laid down by The Jockey Club and financed by the Owners Fund.

James Butler yesterday purchased 500 shares of stock in the Aqueduct race course, the home of the Queens County Jockey Club. There are 4,000 shares of stock held, and of that amount the Brooklyn Jockey Club, of which Philip J. Dwyer is the controlling spirit, controls 2,200 shares. The stock purchased by Mr. Butler was held by David Holland. The remaining shares are held by various sportsmen.

CLAN CLASH OVER SULLIVAN ESTATE

Cornelius, Fighting for Control, Locked Out and Held Out by Mulligan and His Men.

Cornelius J. Sullivan, a cousin of Congressman Timothy D. Sullivan, who is incompetent, nearly came to blows yesterday with Lawrence Mulligan, a stepbrother of Congressman Sullivan, over the control of a portion of the Timothy D. Sullivan estate.

The fuss was at 158 West Sixty-fifth Street, where the C. J. Sullivan Advertising Agency occupies a three-story building. The entrance is up one flight of stairs, and a lively encounter occurred on these front stairs while Cornelius J. Sullivan, who is strong and weighs 200 pounds, was trying to get inside to see Mulligan.

Cornelius J. Sullivan did not get inside. Four Italian laborers blocked his way and the doors were locked against him. He made three attempts to force a passage into the company's offices, and then sought the help of the police. As a result the four Italians were placed under arrest on a charge of assault and for using abusive language. They were held under $500 bail each, which was given by Mulligan. Their case will be heard before Magistrate Levy in the West Fifty-fourth Street Court this morning.

On behalf of his four battling employes, Mulligan said last night that they made no assault upon Cornelius J. Sullivan at all, and that he was very willing to back them in any court proceedings.

The trouble is the first to come above the surface in the complicated question for the Sullivan clansmen as to who is to control Congressman Sullivan's property.

Within the offices of the advertising company, while Cornelius J. Sullivan was being barred out, an election was in progress, and Frank C. Smith was being elected President. This action was offensive to Cornelius J. Sullivan, who held that he was the rightful and lawful President and could prove it by the minute books, which would show that he was elected President by the Board of Directors last Thursday afternoon.

In further support of this contention, Cornelius J. Sullivan pointed to the signboard above the advertising company's door. The signboard carried the name of Cornelius J. Sullivan as founder of the company.

This bit of evidence impressed Mulligan not in the slightest degree. He pointed out that he was Chairman of the Board of Trustees that was handling the Sullivan estate, and that in his official capacity he had the right to vote the Congressman's stock.

"And Congressman Sullivan owns 4,300 shares out of the 5,000 shares issued," said Mulligan, "so I guess there's no doubt about who has the right to name the President.

"The election of Smith as President was no departure. Smith was elected in 1910, and this was only a re-election. Cornelius J. Sullivan is taking advantage of his kinsman's illness to try and gain control of the company after having lost this control in 1910.

"You see, when Cornelius J. Sullivan founded the company, Timothy D. Sullivan was its financial backer. In 1910 Timothy D. Sullivan practically bought out Cornelius J. Sullivan. He purchased stock worth $180,000, comprising 1,800 shares, and this gave him complete control, as there were only 700 shares left in the ownership of others.

"Frank Q. Smith was brought forward by Congressman Sullivan as his candidate for President and was elected, while Harry Applebaum, Congressman Sullivan's private secretary, was elected Secretary-Treasurer.

"At to-day's election we re-elected Smith as President and I was elected Secretary-Treasurer. I don't see why Cornelius J. Sullivan should try now to break back into control of the company after having sold out in 1910. We have proof of Congressman Sullivan's ownership, for his shares are listed with the court at a valuation of $430,000."

Before leaving for his home in New Rochelle last night Cornelius J. Sullivan said he would press the charges against the four men under arrest as tney had threatened to do him bodily harm and would later enter the premises of the company and assert his rights as its President.

THEATRE OWNERS UPHELD.

Savoy and Dewey Alteration Orders Invalid, Says Survey Boards.

The efforts of the City Club to inforce alterations leading to the greater safety from fire and panic for patrons of the Savoy and Dewey Theatres were checked yesterday and possibly checkmated by a report made to Fire Commissioner Johnson. This report, submitted by Deputy Chief Guerin, was based on the reports of two boards of survey appointed to examine the properties. The boards, made up of representatives from the department, the owners and the Board of Fire Underwriters decided, although not unanimously that the orders issued by the Commissioner calling for the alterations were neither valid nor reasonable. In his report, Chief Guerin includes this interesting postscript:

"No less than twenty-five theatres in the City of New York are without exit courts and the requirements of Section 100 of the Building Code and this without endangering the safety of the public."

The receipt of the report sustaining the theatre owners and opposing the alterations called for by the City Club is regarded by the Fire Department as the "final chapter" of a very protracted incident.

TAFT TALKS OF CRISIS.

He Tells Yale Men to Prepare for Ordeal in the Nation.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, April 4.—Calling upon Yale men to prepare themselves at once for a national crisis, William H. Taft responded to the toast of honor, "Yale," at the annual banquet of the Yale Daily News to-night. He said he was in no sense a reactionary, but that he stood for all progress that would pass "through the sieve of common sense."

Mr. Taft also said he was glad to hear that there was a spirit of unrest in Yale.

"And," said he, "people are afraid Yale's going to the devil. Well, that's a good thing, and we have something to hope for. I am here to preach continued progress of the civilization that has been built for a thousand years. Let us remember that we must face a possible crisis which our country must meet."

DEATH IN THE AIR A PATRIOTIC DUTY

Germans Say Airship Captain Should Have Wrecked His Craft Rather Than Land in France.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Saturday, April 5.—The Tägliche Rundschau suggests that the officers of the Z4 can only be adequately dealt with in the way in which France dealt with Marshal Bazaine for the surrender of Metz—namely, by court-martial. The Journal agrees with The Post that it was the unquestionable duty of the senior German officer to blow up the airship with all on board and let it alight on the parade grounds at Lunéville a shapeless mass of smoking wreckage rather than run the risk of permitting priceless secrets to fall into French hands.

When the Zeppelin Passenger Airship Company's office at Frankfort-on-the-Main sent word to the Kaiser at Homburg last evening of the day's events at Lunéville, his Majesty's first inquiry was for the names of the officers on board.

It is declared that the French Intelligence Department has gained information for which it would probably have been glad to pay an immense sum of money.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Saturday, April 5.—The German Zeppelin Z4, after twenty-four hours' detention by French troops on the parade grounds at Lunéville, sailed homeward yesterday afternoon and was safely berthed at Metz at 5 o'clock. Thus an incident which might have developed gravity has a satisfactory termination.

While the Zeppelin was at Lunéville three French aeroplanes from Epinal paid it a visit.

The populace of Lunéville, which at first thought the appearance of the Zeppelin meant a German invasion, was openly hostile, and in view of its attitude the German officers declined the French Commaudant's invitation to dine at the military club.

The Z4 carried away with her various inscriptions scribbled on the cars, such as "Bon jour, Guillaume!" "Vive la France!" "A bas les Prussiens!"

LUNEVILLE, April 4.—The landing of the German military airship Z4, which created a sensation by descending on the parade ground here in the midst of a brigade of French riflemen yesterday, was satisfactorily explained to a French board of inquiry to-day. The airship and her crew were afterward released on payment of $2,000 as customs duty, and the authorities declared the incident closed.

Capt. Glund, the ranking German officer, gave his word of honor that neither he nor his companions had taken any observations of military value, upon which the officers were dismissed, and the police commissary of Avricourt accompanied them to the German frontier.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, April 4.—The French military authorities at Lunéville refrained, during the presence there of the Z4, from pressing their advantage and respected throughout the German secrets, according to reports received here. Only a police commisary went on board the airship.

MRS. OLSON TELLS ALL.

Professor's Wife Repeats In Court Confession That Caused Tragedy.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, April 4.—Mrs. Lillian G. Olson, whose husband, Prof. Oscar Olson, shot and killed Clyde Darling because of his attentions to her, told on the witness stand to-day of incidents that led up to the tragedy. Judge Orr informed her that she need not answer any questions that might incriminate her, but she said firmly: "I will tell all."

The woman then related the circumstances of her acquaintance with Darling and how she had confessed all to her husband. Once or twice during her testimony Mrs. Olson almost collapsed.

"I told Darling that I was not a bad woman and begged him to discontinue his visits to our home, but he persisted in coming," said Mrs. Olson.

Finally her answers to questions became so low that they could not be heard by the jury and the court had to take an adjournment.

Prof. Olson in his testimony regarding his wife's confession said: "She told me this: 'Darling has a superhuman influence over me. He looks into my eyes and hypnotizes me. I cannot resist him.'"

The attorneys for Olson have succeeded in getting before the jury testimony on which they base the plea of self-defense.

SAVE WOMAN FROM HUDSON.

Young Austrian Taken to Bellevue Charged with Attempting Suicide.

A young Austrian woman, who, because of a letter found in her pocket the police believe to be Julia Keller of 366 East Sixty-ninth Street, was rescued from the Hudson River at the foot of West Forty-seventh Street by Henry Van Winkel of 660 Eleventh Avenue, and Charles Desposito of 317 East Thirty-first Street, after she had jumped or fallen from the pier, last night. The two men said they saw the young woman before she fell into the water. She seemed to them to be preparing to jump. A moment later, they said, she disappeared.

They ran to the end of the pier, got a rowboat, and pulled her out of the water. Policeman O'Rourke called an ambulance from the Polyclinic Hospital, in which the young woman was taken to Bellevue Hospital. There she was charged with attempted suicide. When she revived at Bellevue it was found that the young woman could not speak English, and no interpreter was at hand.

NO BACKWARD STEP FOR MONTENEGRINS

King Nicholas Says Scutari Is a Matter of Life or Death to His People.

WAR COST THEM $10,000,000

Austria Fears International Blockade May Be Fruitless; May Act Independently.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 4.—The Ambassadors of the powers have decided to blockade the Montenegrin coast, and instructions have been sent to the international squadron, to which all the powers except Russia are contributing. Vienna is of the opinion that the blockade will fail, but recognizes that the landing of an international force is out of the question.

King Nicholas, in an interview with The Pall Mall Gazette correspondent, declares that it is a life-and-death struggle for Montenegro, which will go forward, whatever it may cost. "The world condemns me for causing trouble," said his Majesty, "but the world forgets that my subjects must regain that fertile land belonging to the Zeta Valley if we are to go on living. Yes, it is a matter of life or death. Modern conditions demand industry and agriculture. The time will come when we must lay down the sword and take up the plow, but we must have something to plow. You cannot grow maize and wheat out of rocks. For over three centuries the Turk occupied the best part of those dominions which belonged to our ancestors. Ever since we have been trying to get them back. I and my people mean to keep the land we have retaken during the war. We mean to take Scutari, which is the key to that land, and we mean to keep it.

"Old as I am, and used to fighting, I have never seen such determination among my people as during the present war. They know only too well that it is far better to die fighting than to go on living as we are doing now. Scutari was ours before the Turks took it from us. My ancestors are buried in that city in the very churches built by them. Once the Turk is beaten and driven out of Europe, the land which we reconquered, which they took from us when they were strong enough to do so, must belong to us. We ask nothing more; we are but fighting to keep our own."

In another interview in The Express King Nicholas says in answer to the question whether he wishes to force a European war:

"I want nothing except justice. How can I consider Europe when my nation's fate is at stake? Am I to sacrifice the lives of all my brave Montenegrins on the altar of European intrigue? The war has cost us £2,000,000 ($10,000,000) and 10,000 men fallen for Montenegro; yet Austria tells us to stop when the reward of our sacrifice is at hand. It is an outrage," his Majesty exclaimed, indignantly, "and only permissible because we are weak and powerless against the united strength of Europe. We have done our part in liberating the Serbs from Turkish tyranny; we have won freedom for the Albanians; but we also desire life beyond our barren mountains."

VIENNA, April 4.—Austria-Hungary is determined to act independently against Montenegro, unless the naval demonstration on the coast of Montenegro proves that more serious measures are unnecessary to enforce the will of Europe. This is to be understood from the utterances of the newspapers of the Austrian capital, which are apparently inspired.

The Neue Freie Presse adds that Scutari must belong to the future State of Albania, with or without the consent of Europe.

The Reichspost says that if Russia prefers to see things arranged otherwise the whole work of the Ambassadorial conferences in London will be null and void.

LONDON, April 4.—It having come to the knowledge of the Powers that the Balkan allies had decided not to deliver their reply to the terms of peace drafted by the Ambassadors until Scutari is taken, it was decided at to-day's conference of the Ambassadors, held at the Foreign Office, to insist that the reply shall be no longer delayed. This decision will be made known to the allies through the Ministers of the Powers stationed in the Balkan capitals.

The settlement of the Turco-Bulgarian frontier, which all the parties have agreed shall be drawn in a straight line from the Gulf of Enos to Midia, gives the powers the necessary excuse for hurrying the allies.

TO SETTLE RUMANIA'S CLAIM.

Decision to be Given When Peace Parleys Are Resumed.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 4.—The Ambassadorial conference, which has in view the settlement of the dispute between Rumania and Bulgaria, at its second meeting to-day examined in detail the memoranda of the plenipotentiaries and disputants, and an exchange of views between the Ambassadors established a common ground for ending the controversy. Despite the mutual opposition of the contending parties, the question will be definitely settled and the decision published simultaneously with the resumption of the peace negotiations between the allies and the powers.

M. Sasanoff, the Russian Foreign Minister, to-day explained to the representatives in the Duma the evolution of Russia's foreign policy. He declared that Russia had no occasion to fear war complications. The demands of the Balkan allies would be more or less satisfied, he said, but Montenegro would receive less than the others, as she was not to have Scutari.

Unusual Birth Creates a Problem Under British Insurance Act.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 4.—All known birth records have been beaten by the wife of a workman at Barrow, Lancashire, who on Feb. 24 gave birth to a son. Both the mother and the child did well. To-day came an interesting development. Another child—a girl—was born.

The existence of the boy, who is only six weeks older than his baby sister, threatens to raise problems which will make the Barrow babies famous. From a medical point of view they are twins, but regarded from the cold standpoint of Greenwich time, they missed twinship by six full weeks.

The case gives the Insurance Commissioners a problem to solve. The father, under the Insurance act, is entitled to the maternity benefit of $7.50. If the children are not adjudged to be twins, he will be entitled to receive another $7.50, but if they are twins the act counts them as one.

NEW S. O. S. DEVICE.

It Causes Wireless Apparatus to Register Signals Automatically.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 4.—A system of transmitting wireless signals from a ship in distress, invented by Raymond Phillips, was demonstrated in London to-day. It is intended to insure the receipt of such signals independently of a wireless operator.

The ship in distress sends out a signal consisting of a continuous train of waves as distinct from the intermittent Morse Code. This signal causes contacts to be made automatically in the receiving ship, which work an electrical siren or bell and thus draw the attention of the operator. Should the receiving apparatus be engaged the continuous train will cut out the Morse signals.

The system is intended to be operative within a radius of twenty or thirty miles, but it has not yet been applied to actual service at sea.

BOMBS IN COLON HARBOR.

51 Years Old, Encrusted with Coral, and the Powder Still Good.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, April 4.—A large dredge operating in Colon Harbor has brought up twelve 8-inch bombs and a peck of grapeshot, and it is feared that many more have gone through the discharge pipe into the reclamation fill in E Street.

The projectiles were covered with coral deposits two inches thick. When they were scraped they were found to be marked "Ord. D., 1862." The bombs contained black powder in a good state of preservation.

In the month of March 108 shiploads of tourists—5,827 in all—visited the Canal Zone. The Tivoli Hotel, which is a Government enterprise, made a net profit for the month of $24,000.

CARNEGIE GIVES $1,000,000.

His Latest Gift to Technical Schools at Pittsburgh Is in Cash.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, April 4.—It was announced to-day that Andrew Carnegie had presented $1,000,000 more to the Carnegie Technical Schools, making a total of $8,000,000 that he has given to the endowment fund.

The most recent gift arrived here yesterday in cash and is on deposit drawing interest. Heretofore Mr. Carnegie has sent his gifts to the schools in the form of United States Steel 5 per cent. gold bonds. The cash deposit will draw 4 per cent. interest.

GAYNOR BUYS TICKETS.

Pays $1 Apiece for Cards to Boys' "Grand Elocution Contest."

Two small boys, Christopher Wallace and Thomas Ring, held up Mayor Gaynor in City Hall Park yesterday and asked him to buy a ticket for a "grand elocution contest," which the pupils of St. James's Catholic School are to hold on April 22 and 23. The boys explained that the Father Curry and the Erin Hero Medals were to be awarded at the finish of the contest, and that any one selling $5 worth of tickets would receive a fifty-cent baseball.

"How much are the tickets?" asked the Mayor, selecting one from each boy.

"Twenty-five cents," they replied.

"Here's a dollar for each of you," said the Mayor, peeling off two bills from a roll.

In their excitement the boys forgot to thank the Mayor and scurried away.

ATTENDED 6,240 BIRTHS.

Mississippi Doctor's Record Thirteen a Month for Forty Years.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSON, Miss., April 4.—Dr. R. G. Johnson, a physician at Laurel, Miss., probably holds the world's record for officiating at childbirths. While testifying in a civil action in the Jones County Circuit Court Dr. Johnson said he had been practicing for forty years, and that he had kept a record which showed that he had been the attending physician at 6,240 births.

This is an average of thirteen births a month for the forty years.

CALIFORNIA OUT OF FUNDS.

Governor Says It Can't Afford a Panama Fair Building.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 4.—Gov. Hiram W. Johnson notified representatives of the Panama-Pacific Exposition to-day that there would be no California Building at the World's Fair in 1915. An empty Treasury, he explained, precluded it.

Early in the present session of the Legislature a bill appropriating $1,000,000 for the State building was introduced, a site for the structure was selected, and tentative plans for its construction were made by the exposition company.

Representatives of fifty-seven counties were at a conference yesterday to urge the passage of an appropriation. Gov. Johnson told them the counties must combine to put up a building if one was to be erected.

HIRELINGS AID IN SUFFRAGE SCARE

"Brainless Desperadoes" Are to Do the Work of English Militants.

A TRAIN IS BLOWN UP

Railway Station Damaged by a Bomb and Another Country House Burned.

ROYAL FAMILY IS GUARDED

Threats of an "Unprecedented" Campaign of Terror Made by Women Leaders.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, April 5.—A campaign of violence has been begun by the militant suffragettes, which one of them, according to The Standard this morning, says will be "unprecedented in history."

A startling feature of the new campaign, according to The Standard, is that men, as desperate as they are brainless, have been employed to commit the acts, and all manner of schemes are being planned.

"Burning empty houses," said one of the militants, "is useless. We must do something that will hit hard and bring the country to its senses.

The militant leaders are still insisting on the importance of kidnapping. The Standard adds:

"The authorities are fully aware of the peril besetting men in high places. Precautions have been redoubled and members of the royal household, Cabinet Ministers, and Judges are being watched with increasing vigilance."

The suffragette outrages yesterday, resulting from their rage over the sentence pronounced on Mrs. Pankhurst on Thursday, were of a varied and violent character.

A train of empty cars on the London Northwestern Railway, near Stockport, was partly wrecked by a bomb.

The walls and windows of a station on the London, Brighton & South Coast Railway at Oxted in Surrey were blown out by a similar explosive.

An unoccupied country house at Chorley Wood, Buckinghamshire, which was worth $42,500, was destroyed by fire.

Railway Stations Guarded.

LONDON, Saturday, April 5.—Features of the attempts of Suffragettes to destroy railroad property yesterday have convinced the authorities that hirelings are doing the work for the women. As a result all railway stations and tunnels are being patrolled to prevent miscreants from damaging them.

In the effort to blow up a train near Stockport a canister of explosives had been put under a seat in one car with a quantity of firelighters, saturated with resin and oil. The force of the explosion splintered the sides of several cars, doors being hurled long distances.

At Oxted station a traveling basket was found in a lavatory, containing a clock timed to go off at 3 A. M., and some cans of petrol. A fuse had been set into a small package of gunpowder, which evidently exploded without igniting the petrol. A revolver found outside the lavatory had apparently been dropped in a hurried flight.

A residence at Chorleywood which was set afire and destroyed was being prepared for the reception of a tenant. Cards bearing the inscription "Votes for Women" and other Suffragette mottoes were found on the grounds.

Miss Kerr, Secretary of the Women's Social and Political Union, discussing the statement of one of the suffragette leaders to the effect that human life was in peril because of the sentencing of Mrs. Pankhurst, said that while the union considered human life sacred, we cannot answer for what may or may not be done by women in their individual capacity."

Olive Hocken, a militant, was found guilty at the Old Bailey Sessions yesterday of conspiracy in connection with an attempt to set fire to a pavilion on the Roehampton golf links. She was sentenced to four months in prison and to pay part of the costs of the trial. The jury found Miss Hocken not guilty of the other charges brought against her by the police.

Two girls giving the names of Phyllis Beady and Millicent Dean, and suspected of being about to commit an outrage, were arrested here yesterday morning while trying to escape from the police.

Bags which they dropped as they ran were found to contain paraffin, paper saturated with oil, candles, matches, cotton wool, patent firelighters, &c. In each bag was a paper bearing the scrawl, "Beware how you treat Mrs. Pankhurst."

The girls were brought up at the police court and remanded on the charge of being suspected persons. They told the policeman who arrested them that they were returning from their Easter holidays.

Mrs. Pankhurst on Hunger Strike.

Mrs. Pankhurst has carried out her threat to go on a hunger strike. The last meal she took was luncheon before sentence was imposed upon her. Since she entered Holloway Jail she has conformed to all its rules except that she refuses food. Mrs. Pankhurst will be removed to the woman's penal establishment at Aylesbury, where any steps that are thought necessary to feed her will be taken.

MISS EMERSON FREE SOON,

But McKenna Won't Let Mrs. Emerson's Physician Treat Her.

LONDON, April 4.—Reginald Mc

in consequence of her "hunger strike."

Angered by the failure of Mr. McKenna to answer her letter, and by the news of Secretary Bryan's intention not to interfere, Mrs. Emerson to-day laid siege to the Home Office. She called at an early hour and found that Mr. McKenna had left for the House of Commons. Leaving a letter reiterating her request, Mrs. Emerson started for the House of Commons, where she sent in a similar letter to Mr. McKenna through a member of the House of Commons.

Seating herself in the lobby, Mrs. Emerson declared she would not leave until she had obtained a definite answer by message or personally from the Home Secretary.

Mrs. Emerson's siege of McKenna came to an end when Mr. McKenna's secretary handed her a letter, which, after acknowledging the receipts of her request, said:

"I regret that I cannot grant your request to have your daughter examined by a physician of your own choosing. The condition of your daughter's health is satisfactory and gives no cause for anxiety. If your daughter continues to be of good behavior she will be released from prison on April 9."

Following receipt of this refusal, Mrs. Emerson visited Dr. Mansell Moulin, whom she had chosen to attend her daughter. She described the condition in which she had found her and the doctor thereupon said:

"Serious and perhaps permanent loss of health will be the result unless your daughter be immediately released."

The Foreign Office has not refused to use its good offices in requesting the Home Office to grant permission for Mrs. Emerson's own physician to examine her daughter, Miss Zelie Emerson, in Holloway Jail, but informed the American Embassy that there was little hope of success, owing to the brusque tone of Mrs. Emerson's letter to Mr. McKenna, who deeply resents the reflection on him.

Miss Scott-Troy, the California suffragette, forwarded to-night to Secretary Bryan at Washington samples of "instruments of torture" used to feed suffragettes, including Miss Zelie Emerson. An accompanying note says that the samples do not contain the metallic tip which all the women say are used in prison.

Dr. Moullin also has written Secretary Bryan, declaring that one of the greatest dangers of forcible feeding, as practiced in the prisons, is the absence of proper antiseptic precautions.

Bryan Awaits Further Word.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—State Department officials said to-day that the attitude of the United States in the case of Miss Zelie Emerson, the American suffragette, imprisoned in London, would be determined after the receipt of a further report from the London Embassy, which was ordered to investigate charges that the young woman had been subjected to cruel treatment.

It was pointed out that if Mrs. Emerson, mother of the young woman, had complained to the Embassy it must have been subsequent to the sending of Mr. Laughlin's report of yesterday, which said the mother had filed no charges, although she had an hour's interview with her daughter.

Secretary Bryan will immediately take up with Chandler Anderson, counselor of the department, the question of what is to be done. Practically, there are no precedents bearing upon it, the nearest being the Maybrick case, when some of the highest officials in the United States asked the British Government to release the American woman from prison, where she was serving a life sentence.

It was held by various secretaries, notably Blaine and Hay, that there was no warrant for an official request from the United States Government for clemency in Mrs. Maybrick's case, so these representations were unofficial, though made through the American Embassy in London.

Secretary Bryan wishes first to establish the regularity of the judicial proceedings in the case of Miss Emerson, and if he follows the ordinary course and ascertains that there has been no discrimination against the woman on account of her nationality, and that she has not been treated in an inhumane manner, he will probably confine himself to making unofficial efforts to obtain an amelioration of Miss Emerson's condition.

DEPLORES ENGLISH TACTICS.

Chicago Suffragist Says Sense of Justice Will Give Victory Here.

CHICAGO, April 4.—At the annual luncheon of the Woman's Party of Cook County to-day, sympathy was expressed for the plight of Mrs. Pankhurst, the English suffragist, but the tactics of the militant women abroad were not condoned.

Mrs. George W. Trout, President of the Illinois Equal Suffrage Association, said that "knocking in the head" tactics would never be employed in this country.

"Such tactics may be necessary there," said Mrs. Trout, "and Mrs. Pankhurst's repeated declaration that the women of England are in a state of war against the authorities may, to some extent, excuse their actions."

Mrs. Trout praised American men, stating that an appeal to their sense of justice was all that the women have to make to obtain justice.

531 WOMEN PETITIONERS.

They Will Storm the Capitol Monday in the Cause of Equal Suffrage.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Upon their promise to leave bands of music and banners outside, the woman suffragists have received permission to enter the rotunda of the Capitol on Monday to deliver to Senators and Representatives the petitions they have prepared asking Congress to provide for nation-wide equal suffrage. There will be 531 women in the delegation that will present the petitions, that being the number of Senators and Representatives. The idea is to have each woman present a copy of the petition to a certain designated member of the National Legislature.

Some of the women will present petitions to their own husbands. Included in the delegation will be Mrs. La Follette, wife of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin; Mrs. Nelson, wife of Representative Nelson of Wisconsin; Mrs. Roberts, wife of Representative Roberts of Massachusetts; Mrs. Kahn, wife of Representative Kahn of California; Mrs. Taylor, wife of Representative Taylor of Colorado, and Miss Morgan, daughter of the late Senator Morgan of Alabama.

Page boys of the Senate and House will be assigned to deliver the petitions as the women direct, but the latter plan to do most of this work themselves.

The Women's Protest, the monthly publication of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, contains an editorial by Mrs. Arthur W. Dodge of New York, President of the organization, condemning the behavior of the suffragists who marched in their big parade here on March 3. The editorial says in part:

"Many women needlessly put themselves in a position where they invited the comment and criticism of a street crowd which regarded them as a public, advertised show, and which in part, at least, was known to resent their presence at that time and in that way. Requests were made, either with or without the sanction of the suffrage headquarters, for pretty girls to march. It was announced that women in classic draperies with bare feet would dance on the steps of the Treasury Building. This dance was omitted from the final programme but the announcement of it excited the indignation of thousands. Young girls of fourteen years distributed literature on the streets and accosted men with requests to wear their colors. Every possible means of advertising the suffrage cause through the exploitation of young women was used to attract the attention of the public."

SUFFRAGISTS TO ASQUITH.

Cable Dispatches from Here Chide His Government for Conditions.

With reference to the imprisonment of Mrs. Pankhurst and the suffrage situation in Great Britain, the National Suffrage Association sent this cable dispatch to Prime Minister Asquith yesterday:

We urge that the British government frankly acknowledge its responsibility for the present intolerable situation, and remove it by introducing immediately an emergency franchise measure.

From the Woman's Political Union was sent to the Right Hon. Reginald McKenna, Home Secretary, this remonstrance:

We stand amazed before the contrast of treatment of Mrs. Pankhurst, leader of the movement for the emancipation of women, and the immunity from arrest acceded Sir Edward Carson, inciter of rebellion in Ulster.

HARRIOT STANTON BLATCH,
President Woman's Political Union.

The union also telegraphed to William Jennings Bryan, Secretary of State, Washington, D. C., saying:

"We commend your action in ordering an investigation of treatment of Zelie Emerson. We complain that England is torturing women prisoners for offenses far less serious than those committed by men political offenders."

NO SUFFRAGE COLOR LINE.

Negro Women Welcome at Mississippi Valley Conference.

ST. LOUIS, April 4.—The Mississippi Valley Suffrage Conference began its closing session to-day with its doors wide open to negro women, despite the protests of the management of the hotel where the conference is being held.

At the close of the meeting yesterday Mrs. Victoria Haley, the negro whose presence caused the commotion, was asked by several of the suffrage leaders to attend the conference to-day and to bring several of her negro friends with her. When Mrs. Haley arrived at the hotel to-day she was congratulated by the leaders on her courage.

KILLED, POLICEMAN NEAR.

Bartender Shot in Park Row May Have Been Mistaken for Another.

Eugene Smith, a bartender of 1,842 Broadway, Brooklyn, was shot and killed at midnight last night at Roosevelt Street and Park Row, within twenty-five feet of where Policeman Smith of the Oak Street Station was standing. As the policeman ran to where Smith had fallen four men disappeared in opposite directions.

Dr. Crane of the Hudson Street Hospital, found that a bullet had entered Smith's neck and had come out over his right eye. The bartender's brother, Christopher Smith, a driver employed by a morning newspaper, was summoned and identified the body. He said he knew of no reason why any person should kill his brother. He thought he was mistaken for some one else.

SHOOTS BABY IN STREET.

Man Fired at Child and Then Fled, Nurse Says—Victim Dying.

Jennie Neuravka, the little nursemaid in the household of Edward Hothrath of 213 Huron Street, Greenpoint, was wheeling Edward Hothrath, Jr., home in the baby carriage at 10 o'clock last evening, when, as she approached the corner where Huron Street crosses Manhattan Avenue, the baby was shot in the forehead. He was taken dying to St. Catherine's Hospital.

As the crowd jostled around the baby carriage, attracted by the sound of the shot and the screams of the nursemaid, she was plied with questions as to what had happened, but all she could tell was that a man standing in the doorway of the tenement house at the corner had pointed a pistol at the baby carriage and fired. She saw the pistol and saw the man run off down Huron Street. What he looked like she could not tell, as it was dark and she was almost speechless with terror.

Edward Hothrath is a mechanic, and his little son is 16 months old. The nursemaid is only 14 years and lives at 316 Huron Street.

Mr. Horbath said later that the shot must have been aimed at some one else or fired by a maniac. He knew no one with hostility toward him, he said.

THIEVES VISIT HOUSE TWICE.

First Raiders Get $2,000—Interruption Ends Second Attempt.

The apartment house at 203 West 120th Street has been visited twice by burglars since Tuesday.

On the first visit, Tuesday afternoon, the thieves found the apartment of E. W. Van Praag unguarded. They jimmied their way in, and after making a discriminating selection of nearly $2,000 worth of jewelry, silverware, and clothing, they served themselves a buffet luncheon from the contents of the larder and went their way undisturbed. The detective assigned to the case from the Lenox Avenue Station was unable to give Mr. Van Praag much encouragement in his hope of recovering some of the stolen property.

Two days later burglars attempted to enter the Gartland apartment, on the fifth floor. Perhaps they were the same ones who had had such luck on Tuesday. But this time they were interrupted in the act of jimmying the door by a member of the family and scampered away, uncaught but unrewarded.

Honor Guests for Liberal Club.

When the Liberal Club holds its annual dinner at the Hotel Brevoort on the evening of April 22, "The Minimum Wage" will be up for discussion. President Percy Stickney Grant will preside, and the guests of honor will be District Attorney Whitman, Chairman Gary of the Finance Committee of the United States Steel Company, Dr. Edward T. Devine, John H. Flagler, and Charles Ferguson of The New York American.

Metropolitan Repeats "Cyrano."

"Cyrano" was performed for the fourth time at the Metropolitan Opera House last evening. Mme. Alda, Messrs. Amato and Martin again sang the principal roles, but Mr. Kreidler replaced Mr. Pini-Corsi in the rôle of the Monk. Mr. Hertz conducted.

PROGRESSIVES MEET AS FIGHTING FORCE

House Members in Open Caucus Organize for Recognition as a Separate Party.

MURDOCK FOR SPEAKER

Lindbergh Joins, Though Elected as Republican — Members Not to be Bound to Party—Roosevelt Mute.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—It was demonstrated that the Progressive members of Congress, under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt, were determined to be a separate party in the House of Representatives, when they held their first conference at the Capitol to-day and perfected a working organization. Instead of having a caucus, they threw open the doors to the public, and designated the meeting as a conference. They permitted a small army of newspaper men to be present, and invited all followers of the Progressive cause to attend. Nearly 500 persons were present, including many women.

The Progressive Party was represented by fourteen members of Congress. Four others who have not yet arrived in Washington intimated their intention to be designated as of that party, making a strength of eighteen for the new faction at the opening of the Sixty-third Congress.

The number of Progressives supporting the conference was in reality nineteen, for Representative C. A. Lindbergh of Minnesota attended and made a speech in which he said that he would co-operate with the Progressive party in the House, although he was elected as a Republican. Mr. Lindbergh asserted that he could not hereafter attend the caucuses of the Republican party, and signified his willingness to attend the Bull Moose conferences with the understanding that he might act as a free agent. He said he was willing to support all those ideas of the Progressive party in which he believed, but wanted to be free to vote against any proposal in which he did not believe. By vote of the conference he was allowed to be affiliated on that understanding.

The members of the Progressive party in the new House, as so far disclosed, are:

H. W. TEMPLE, Washington, Penn.
W. J. HULINGS, Oil City, Penn.
M. C. KELLY, Pittsburgh.
A. H. WALTERS, Johnstown, Penn.
F. E. LEWIS, Allentown, Penn.
A. R. RUPLEY, Carlisle, Penn.
C. M. THOMSON, Chicago.
IRA C. COPLEY, Chicago.
A. W. LAFFERTY, Portland, Ore.
J. I. NOLAN, San Francisco.
C. W. BELL, Pasadena, Cal.
W. D. STEPHENS, Los Angeles.
VICTOR MURDOCK, Wichita, Kan.
J. W. BRYAN, Bremerton, Wash.
J. A. FALCONER, Seattle, Wash.
WALTER M. CHANDLER, New York City.
WILLIAM HINEBAUGH, Ottawa, Ill.
R. O. WOODRUFF, Bay City, Mich.

Representative Temple of Pennsylvania presided over the conference, which nominated Victor Murdock of Kansas as the third party candidate for Speaker and appointed committees to map out a legislative policy. Committees were also appointed to demand from the Democratic leaders the recognition of the third party's organization in the House, the assignment of Progressives to all the important committees, to draft the legislative programme, and to insist that the Progressives be housed in separate rooms in the House office building, instead of being relegated to the dilapidated Maltby Building annex.

In his speech of acceptance, Representative Murdock sounded the keynote of the new organization. As outlined by him the Progressive Party in the House will work for these proposals:

The initiative and referendum.
Direct primaries everywhere.
Equal suffrage, so that women may vote.
Readjustment of the relations between the people, legislatures, and courts.
A direct accountability of public officials through the medium of the recall.
Recognition of the rights of labor.
Protection of child labor.
The adoption of a minimum wage scale for women.
Open sessions for all caucuses and committee meetings in Congress and a record vote in committees.
The creation of a Federal industrial commission.
The enactment of a tariff drafted on data gathered by a non-political, scientific commission, with its taxes and benefits falling equally, the tariff law to be drafted in public sessions of the Ways and Means Committee, not secretly, and adopted by an open caucus instead of being forced upon a secret caucus through threats of granting or withholding of patronage.
Legislation to prevent any man or set of men from controlling the financial credit of the country.
Legislation generally to carry out the pledges of the Progressive Party platform adopted at Chicago last Summer.

According to Mr. Murdock, both the Democratic and Republican parties were outworn institutions, and the Democratic leaders were half-heartedly taking up their tasks to battle with the powers preying upon the public. Mr. Murdock asserted that Democratic leaders owed their first duty to State's rights. He thought special privilege could not be driven out by State's rights and that the Democratic party would thus fail to cope with National evils, which could only be reached by Federal laws and agencies.

Speeches in accord with the sentiments voiced by Mr. Murdock were made by Representatives-elect Chandler of New York, Rupley, and Lewis of Pennsylvania, Bell and Stephens of California, and Bryan of Washington.

The expected "keynote message" from Col. Roosevelt failed to materialize.

The caucus adopted a resolution affirming that its action was not binding upon the members attending, but that each member was free to support Progressive measures appearing in the House form any source.

All the Progressive members will meet next Tuesday with Dean Lewis of Pennsylvania University, Jane Addams, Gifford Pinchot, Walter Weyl, and other members of the Legislative Committee to consider the party's programme.

DROPPED LOOT GIVES ALARM

Thieves After 400 Pairs of Trousers Scared Off by Noise.

Burglars broke into the office of Pincus Diamond, a tailor of 102 Attorney Street, about 7 o'clock last night and attempted to carry off 400 pairs of trousers which were tied up, ready to be carried away to-day. Next door Julius Throop, a tailor, was at work on the top floor, and he heard a crash as if the house were caving in. He ran to the Clinton Street Station and the Lieutenant on duty sent Detectives Snydecker and Flynn to see what the matter was.

When the police arrived on the roof of 100 Attorney Street they found three bundles of trousers, weighing 250 pounds each, which the burglars had dropped from the roof next door and fled because of the noise they made.

NUN TO HAWTHORNE'S AID.

His Sister to Ask President to Pardon Author Jailed for Fraud.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Sister Alphonsa, a member of a Catholic religious order, called at the White House to-day to request that she be heard by President Wilson on behalf of an application for the pardon of her brother, Julian Hawthorne, the writer, who is serving a term in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., after conviction in New York on the charge of using the mails to defraud. Sister Alphonsa, who before taking the veil was Mrs. Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, wife of George Parsons Lathrop, well known as an author, had a brief talk with Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President, who promised her that he would bring her request to the President's attention and let her know later when it would be convenient for the President to see her. It is probable that the interview will be arranged for some day next week.

Mr. Tumulty was not disposed to speak of Sister Alphonsa's visit, and showed some concern that it had become known. She will ask that a pardon be granted to her brother on the ground that he has suffered as much punishment as was merited by the charge on which he was convicted.

The sentence imposed on Julian Hawthorne was one year and one day, but it was fixed by Justice Mayer to date from last November. Although Hawthorne arrived at the Atlanta prison only last month, he is already eligible to apply for a parole under the new Federal parole law. It was believed here that he would take advantage of this opportunity, and that, in view of his standing prior to the charges of fraud made against him, the Department of Justice would be inclined to view his case with favor.

SENATOR HINTS BLACKMAIL.

Western Statesman Accused by Woman Talks of Conspiracy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Clarence W. Wilson, United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, to-day began an investigation of serious charges involving the reputation of a United States Senator from a Western State. These charges were made by a woman whose husband was a candidate for public office.

Five witness, including the woman and her husband, were summoned to the District Attorney's office to-day by a police detective. The woman told her story, alleging that she had been subjected to an indignity by the Senator.

The incident is said to have taken place in a Washington hotel, where the woman says she went to confer with the Senator in regard to her husband's candidacy for office.

Friends of the accused Senator are asserting that the whole thing is a political conspiracy. The Senator indicated to-night that he would issue a statement to-morrow. He said there might be interesting developments in the case. There were reports to-night that some arrests might be made in the case.

Ambassador Bryce's Farewell.

After six years of service as the British Ambassador at Washington, James Bryce will say good-bye to that city on Friday, April 25, and set forth for the Orient by way of New York and San Francisco. On that same evening the Pilgrims of the United States will give a dinner in his honor at the Waldorf-Astoria. President Joseph H. Choate will preside and propose the health of the departing Pilgrim, while the only other speech will be Mr. Bryce's response. This occasion and this speech will be Mr. Bryce's farewell to the people of this country.

HINT WIDOW WAS POISONED.

Brothers Say a Will Lawyer Offers Is Not the One She Signed.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 4.—Coroner Hoffman has determined to clear away the mystery surrounding the death on March 27 of Mrs. Mary Spiegel, the wealthy widow of a once-prominent Chicago broker. Mrs. Spiegel expired in the home of Christopher Columbus Crabb, a lawyer, under circumstances considered suspicious by her brothers. The brothers have hinted that she was poisoned.

Immediately after the death of the woman, Mr. Crabb filed in court a document purporting to be her last will. That will left to Mr. Crabb, who was made sole executor, the bulk of the estate, amounting to $200,000 or more. The two brothers of Mrs. Spiegel were but off with a few hundred dollars each.

It is charged by Cornelius O'Day, one of the brothers, that Crabb took a mysterious steel box, supposed to contain valuable papers, from the home of the woman just before she died, and conveyed it to his home, where Mrs. Spiegel had been taken. It further is charged in a petition presented to the court to-day that the will submitted by Crabb is not the true will left by Mrs. Spiegel. It also is alleged that Crabb knows what has become of the real will, which, it is asserted, left the property to the widow's brothers and a niece.

JUMP CAUSED SLOW DEATH.

Coroner So Finds by Autopsy on Schoolboy's Body.

After an autopsy yesterday upon the body of James Casey, a fifteen-year-old student at Commercial High School, in Brooklyn, who died yesterday morning in St. John's Hospital following a collapse in his class room, Coroner's Physician Charles Wuest said that he believed the boy's death was due to an injury in athletics. He said that the autopsy proved that Casey died of a slow cerebral hemorrhage, which was caused by a temporary dislocation of the first and second vertebra. He thought the dislocation might have taken place two or three months ago, and was caused by the sudden snapping back of the head while the boy was engaged in jumping.

Casey lived with his parents at 113 Parrott Place, and was in the second term of the freshman year. He was taken ill during the afternoon session of Thursday and fell to the floor.

At the school yesterday it was said that Casey was not a member of the track team, and so far as was known had never distinguished himself in athletics.

MAYOR OUT TO STOP 'TEA AND TANGO' NOW

Prepares Two Bills to Curb Dancing Which He Calls "Lascivious Orgies."

SOME ALREADY CLOSED

Several Places, Anticipating Visit of License Inspectors, While Serving the "Tea" Bar the "Tango."

Mayor Gaynor began a campaign yesterday to end objectionable dances, afternoon turkey trot teas, and other features connected with cabaret shows in the all-night restaurant districts, whereby he intends to place all dancing halls under city supervision and licenses. Under his orders the Bureau of Licenses made an inspection of many of the restaurants where dances were held in the afternoon and last night, and to remove the immunity claimed by some of the restaurant proprietors under the existing law forbidding interference with public dancing without a license, the Mayor completed the drafting of two bills, which he forwarded to Albany for consideration by the Legislature.

In taking this action the Mayor made it plain that he was not making a crusade against dancing itself, but against the conditions he found or was told existed in some of the places and which he considered against the morals of the community. Some of the dances, having no legal supervision, he said, had been carried too far, and in his bills he characterized them as "lascivious orgies in the so-called respectable dance halls" that "have grown to be intolerable."

The Mayor asks the Legislature to amend that part of the hotel law which excludes an establishment with fifty or more rooms from police supervision or the license law, and under which some of the restaurants assert the right to continue the dances without a license or other supervision. He says all must be licensed and close at 1 A. M. The bills were sent to Edward J. McGoldrick, Assistant Corporation Counsel, having charge of city legislation at Albany, and Mayor Gaynor requested their immediate introduction to both houses, and asked that their passage be urged. Of the bill amending the public dance hall law, the Mayor wrote:

"When that law was passed three years ago, requiring all public dance halls to be licensed, hotels having upward of fifty bedrooms were excepted. This exception ought to be and is struck out by this amendment. The regular hotels have no need of such an exception. The exception was put in for them out of mistaken precaution. They have ballrooms, it is true, but they do not run public dance halls. They only let their ballrooms out for use.

"A public dance hall is one open to the whole public; open to every one who chooses to come up and pay the entrance fee. The ballrooms in the hotels are in no sense public dance halls. We do not need to license them as such.

Tells of "Rigged Up" Hotels.

"The trouble is that certain places have been rigged up as pretended hotels in order to come under the exemption of the present law. This exception enables them to run public dance halls without a license. That should not be. Every public dance hall should be licensed, whether it be in a hotel, or in any other place. There are demoralizing and disgusting public dance halls being run there in New York without any license on account of this exception in the present statute; the places where they are being run being so-called hotels with more than fifty rooms. They are not ballrooms let out for a night to parties having a ball. They are public dance halls pure and simple, and run night after night as such. They are all the more dangerous for posing as respectable."

The second bill of the Mayor's is an amendment of Section 1,490 of the Greater New York Charter, prescribing hours during which he considers it proper for them to be open. The Mayor says:

"The amendment is that they must close at 1 A. M., and not open again before the following noon. No doubt it is necessary that people should be permitted to dance for amusement and health, and places should be provided for the purpose, and licensed, and supervised by the authorities. But to allow them to be open all night is detrimental to health and morals. It seems strange that when this bill for the licensing of dance halls was passed no hours were prescribed for them.

"I trust that you will be able to get these bills passed. The lascivious orgies going on in the so-called respectable dance halls in this city which escape the requirements of license and supervision by the exception which I have referred to, have grown to be intolerable."

James G. Wallace, chief of the Bureau of Licenses, led his inspectors to the various cabaret shows and "afternoon dances" until late last night, looking the places over and gathering data which he will present in a report to Mayor Gaynor. Four of the big places were closed as scenes of afternoon dances were concerned when Wallace and his men reached them. Hundreds of persons were dining at the tables, but the dancers were barred. These places were George Rector's, Broadway and Sixty-first Street; Folies Bergere, Broadway and Forty-eighth Street; Reisenweber's, Eighth Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street, and the Taverne Louis, or Louis Bustanoby, Broadway and Twenty-third Street.

In two of the cabarets Andre Bustanoby, 110 West Thirty-ninth Street, and Louis Martin's, Broadway and Forty-second Street, dancing was continued all the afternoon and until the cabaret shows were ready to begin for the night. Both of these places were run under new rules, and men unaccompanied by women were not admitted to the dancing floor unless they could show they had tables reserved there with friends. These places said they were exempt from the Mayor's orders regarding the closing of dance halls because they came under the provisions of the hotel law relating to fifty rooms or more. Both places were more crowded than usual because of the closing of the others.

Wants to Hear from Mayor.

André Bustanoby said he would obey the Mayor and stop dancing whenever ordered to do so. He had a stalwart English butler, dressed in blue and gold, stopping people at the door and refusing them admission, under the new rules of the house. When a man appeared alone he was told that he could not enter the dancing hall without a lady. Some of them evaded the censorship by asserting that friends were waiting for them inside. An elderly man held up at the door declared he was looking for his son. The proprietor led reporters to the gallery surrounding the hall and pointed out how orderly everything was and how much the men and women were enjoying themselves.

"The afternoon dance is necessary," he said, "because so many women eat rich foods and pastry, and they get fat if they don't take some exercise. Here they dance and grow graceful and slim. Yes, they are having tea, too: see, there's a pot over there and another on that table," he continued, while numerous couples, some of the men bald-headed and their partners gray haired, danced the "tango," the "turkey-trot," or the more simple "one-step."

"See the spotlight," added André; "if any people offend, we turn the spotlight on them and make them behave," and he indicated a calcium light resting on the gallery rail.

The manager of the Folies Bergere announced that the dancing room was closed because the license had expired. Rector's and Louis Bustanoby's voluntarily closed the afternoon dances before the Inspectors from the Bureau of Licenses went there.

"We have received no order from the City Government to close the dancing hall," said George Rector, "but we decided to do so for the present voluntarily. We have no desire to antagonize the Mayor in any way. For the same reason we are obeying him in closing the place before 1 A. M., though it is annoying to our customers. But they are told they must get out, and so we have been closed the last few nights even before the legal hour."

The afternoon dances were started in the upstairs part of the restaurant at Reisenweber's, but not all who attended were admitted. Just before 5 P. M., a man who was humorously described as a "soft shoe dancer," otherwise known as a rubber heel sleuth from the Detective Bureau, was said to be in the room, after that the festivities appeared to languish. At any rate a man who may have been a plain-clothes man, walked softly across the floor, tapped the piano player on the shoulder and the music stopped at once. Some of the dancers said he was a policeman, but the management denied this, and explained that the dancing had ended to permit evening cabaret show.

Not one of the persons interested in the new ruling of the Mayor regarding dance halls and the early closing have announced any intention to contest his action in the courts. On the contrary they were all very much alarmed as to the Mayor's intentions and were willing to wait developments.

PATRONS FIGHT CURFEW.

Waiter Ejects One at 1 o'Clock and General Battle Is Result.

When Frederick Fischer, a saloonkeeper at 54 Kent Avenue, Williamsburgh, tried to enforce Mayor Gaynor's curfew order early yesterday morning, a crowd of Austrians who were playing cards in the rear room objected to being sent home, and before the fight ended two men had been hurt. Joseph Braun, a waiter, was instructed by the owner to use force in putting out his patrons when words proved useless. Half a dozen men pitched into him, but Braun proved himself equal to the occasion by picking up Martin Tyburg, a cooper, of 62 North Seventh Street, and despite a rain of blows carrying him to a door and throwing him on the sidewalk.

Outside the fight was continued until a rock thrown through the front window of the saloon made such a noise that Policeman Scheer of the Bedford Avenue Station ran to the scene and dispersed the fighters. An ambulance Surgeon patched up the bruises of Tyburg and Braun. Policeman Scheer arrested both Tyburg for malicious mischief and Braun for assault.

UNFOLD THAW PLOT.

Witnesses Tell Jury of Five-Man Conspiracy to Get $100,000.

Details of the plan by which a group of five men conspired to defraud Harry K. Thaw out of $100,000 and bribe another man to make possible Thaw's release from the State Asylum for the Criminal Insane at Matteawan, became known in the Criminal Court Building yesterday, where a Grand Jury is investigating the matter.

The plan, it was learned, originated two years ago. The three conspirators plotted to make a tidy sum for themselves. The person to be bribed refused to take the money, and then the three men called in two others. Each of these attempted to arouse sympathy for Thaw, and thereby work upon the man who refused to take the bribe offered.

All of this testimony has been given by the witnesses subpoenaed to apppear before the Grand Jury. Up to date there has been no testimony offered to show that a bribe was accepted, although it was said that Horace A. Hoffman, a private detective, who represented Thaw, would be recalled before the Grand Jury and would testify that a bribe was accepted and a conspiracy to obtain $100,000 from Thaw was started.

W. J. O'Farrell, another detective acting in Thaw's interest, will be called before the Grand Jury on Monday and will corroborate the testimony given which touches on the conspiracy. The witnesses called yesterday and questioned by Assistant District Attorney William A. De Ford were William F. Clark, secary to the Governor's Committee of Inquiry, and Alfred Henry Lewis, the magazine writer. Mr. Lewis did not finish his testimony yesterday, but will do so Monday morning, and then O'Farrell will be called.

FISHERMEN DIE IN THE SURF.

Pound Boat Upsets as They Plan to Sink Stakes Off Long Branch.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., April 4.—Capt. George Smith and an unidentified Italian, members of Garret Hennessy's pound fishing crew of this place, were drowned and three other members of the crew narrowly escaped death when their pound boat was swamped at 3 o'clock this morning. The rescued fishermen were Clarence Hennessy, Rocco Lorenzo and Frank Crandlin.

A heavy sea was running this morning when Capt. Smith and his men put off to make soundings for driving pound poles. When less than 400 yards off shore the first sea broke over their boat and the men set to bailing. Then a second and a third roller struck the boat, completely swamping it. The fishermen were thrown into the surf and it is thought that Capt. Smith and the Italian were unable to free themselves from the craft.

Clarence Hennessy was rescued by his brother James, who was on the beach when the boat sank. James Hennessy threw off his clothing and grabbing a buoy plunged into the sea. He reached his brother's side some 300 yards from shore and after a hard struggle succeeded in pulling him ashore. Hugh Peters and Patrick Bonfield went to the rescue of Lorenzo, who was unconscious when he got to land.

Crandlin, the third survivor, was rescued by Freeman Trescott, who swam out to him.

the present, at least, to negotiate with Senators from wool States, who want a tariff on raw wool, with corresponding rates on finished woolen products. This turn in the situation is thought to indicate that the President has come to realize that free wool and free sugar are too heavy a load for one bill, if it is to pass the Senate. In choosing which item should receive the protection necessary to obtain the needed support for the bill, sugar was naturally selected, since putting sugar on the free list would have the effect of driving at least two Democratic Senators—those from Louisiana into opposition. This split in the party Mr. Wilson is especially anxious to avoid, as he wishes to have the tariff adopted by means of Democratic votes.

Standpatters to Make Trouble.

While the White House feels reasonably certain that adjustment of the sugar schedule will insure the passage of the bill by the Senate without further dickering with the wool men, there is still some fear that the Republican standpatters of the Senate, who are accounted shrewd parliamentarians, may work up some combination of the interests, shorn of protection by the Democratic bill, to imperil its passage when it reaches the Senate. Senator Warren of Wyoming, whom Senator Dolliver loved to describe as "the greatest shepherd since Abraham," is regarded as the leader of this group, and it is believed that he is trying to round up disgruntled Democrats for an old-time "log rolling."

Senator Warren, when questioned this afternoon, assumed an air of resignation, and said the whole matter was in the hands of the party in power. He could not believe, however, he said, that raw wool would be put on the free list, as such a step would wipe out the sheep-raising industry of the United States.

In spite of Senator Warren's apparent resignation, the standpatters have not despaired of getting some concessions. Even on wool they have not given up the fight. Ten Democratic Senators, they say, are interested in wool, and they say that some of the ten are showing signs of restiveness.

These Senators are Ashurst and Smith of Arizona, Shafroth and Thomas of Colorado, Newlands and Pittman of Nevada, Myers and Walsh of Montana, and Chamberlain and Lane of Oregon. Mr. Lane, it is said, was supported in his recent election by some of the largest wool growers in Oregon.

As suggesting further possibilities of log rolling Republicans point out that Colorado and Montana are both interested in sugar, as the beet crop is there regarded as one of the staples. This suggestion, of course, has no point if the White House reaches a compromise with the sugar men.

Democratic Senators insist that whatever bill receives the President's approval will pass both Houses. The influence of the White House, they point out, was never greater. Mr. Wilson has behind him the prestige of victory, and he has ahead of him all the patronage of the Government and four years of power. No member of his party will willingly run counter to his wishes just now, and the impression has gone abroad that support of the "President's Tariff bill" will be taken as the measure of friendship for the President.

NEWS GAG IN TREASURY.

Only McAdoo Will Supply Information to the Press.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Secretary McAdoo has issued a "gag" order to the Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury, instructing them that all news of that department must be given out by him.

In building the Hudson Tunnels, the Secretary said, he had found it desirable to let the President of the company be the spokesman for the work, and he intended to pursue a similar policy in Washington. This completely reverses the policy of former Secretary MacVeagh, who authorized his assistant secretaries and bureau chiefs to give out news, consulting him only on important questions and questions of policy.

Publication of facts regarding custom frauds at Boston before the government was prepared to announce them was cited by the Secretary as justification for his new order.

MULRANEY SAYS POLICE 'DOPED' HIM

Murderer Seeking a New Trial Tells Rosalsky He Never Confessed.

HEARING HELD IN SING SING

Police Put Whisky in His Cell and Refused to Give Him Water, Convicted Man Asserts.

Clad in a black suit and pale from his long confinement, John Mulraney, better known as "Happy Jack" was taken from his cell in the Death House at Sing Sing yesterday to the Warden's Office, where he testified that he had not signed a confession that he had killed Patrick McBreen. He charged that the police gave him whisky and "knockout drops."

Mulraney was brought into the Warden's office soon after Judge Rosalsky of General Sessions, who sentenced him to death, Assistant District Attorney J. Robert Rubin and his counsel Joseph A. Shay arrived at the prison. Accompanying Judge Rosalsky and the two lawyers was a stenographer, Detectives Fitzsimmons and Barber, who arrested Mulraney, and a prison guard. Mulraney was then brought in. He sat within an arm's length of Judge Rosalsky. He spoke in a low voice, and said:

"It is hard for me to remember everything. You see I have had a hard time and don't think easy. There is one thing I do remember, and that is that I did not sign the confession. The facts are these: I was with George Dowling and Martin Fay the night before "Paddy the Priest" (McBreen's nickname,) was killed, and Fay, Dowling and I had planned a robbery. I was with them until 10 o'clock drinking, and then I became intoxicated. I don't remember another thing that night at all your Honor, but I do remember being arrested."

"You said you didn't make any confession or sign it?" questioned Assistant District Attorney Rubin.

"No, I did not," replied the witness.

"But you saw the confession when it was offered in evidence in the court didn't you?" asked Judge Rosalsky.

"I did not. I never saw it until now."

Mr. Rubin took up the alleged confession and, pointing to Mulraney's signature, said:

"But you signed your name down here, didn't you?"

"Yes, I signed that line and a half phrase, but it was attached to an altogether different statement."

Judge Rosalsky and the Assistant District Attorney looked surprised at this and this surprise was heightened when Mulraney pointed his finger at Detective Barber and said:

"You know that as well as I do, Barber. You can swear I'm telling the truth about that."

Mulraney was then asked to repeat the incidents which happened the night before the murder. Once more Mulraney began to tell his story. He related how Dowling and Fay came to his house after shooting McBreen. He said that Dowling asserted that Fay had intended to keep McBreen behind the bar but that McBreen laughed and took the matter as a joke and began to move about. Mulraney then stopped a minute and said:

"And then he shot the guy."

"Who shot who?" demanded Mr. Rubin, springing up.

"Why, why," stammered Mulraney, "Dowling did, I suppose."

He then described all his movements after the night of his arrest and said he went to Springfield, Mass., for a job which he did not get. He then said that, when he was arrested, a memorandum book he had with him was taken away. Later he asserted the detectives said they had found some pages of the book torn out. They had come to him, he said, and told him they found the rest of the pages in a cellar where he was alleged to have had with Dowling after murdering Patrick McBreen.

In this part of his testimony Mulraney said: "Pardon me, but I'm getting all twisted up." Then he continued his story. He went into the confession with considerable detail later on when he said that after he had been locked up the police left a bottle of whiskey in his cell and refused to give him water. He said:

"Right away after my arrest the police took me to the West Forty-seventh Street Station and gave me whisky, morphine, and two sniffs of coke. I was pretty full of dope when they took me into Capt. Day's room. Inspector Hughes put me through a third degree and told me Dowling had confessed.

"I told him everything just as I'm telling you now, and Inspector Hughes said that the detectives could take it down, and asked me why I went away. I told him I wanted to go to Springfield, and when I finished they put a paper before me and told me to sign it, and Dowling was brought in. He came to me and swore, and I told him. They then took me back to my c

RECALLS THE HILL EPISODE

The Nation Says President Has Paid a Compliment to Sense of the English People.

LONDON, April 4.—The Nation, a weekly newspaper of Liberal tendencies, this week deals at length with the appointment of Walter Hines Page as Ambassador to the Court of St. James's referring to it as President Wilson's "interesting experiment" and his reversion to the "scholar diplomat."

"In offering the London Embassy to Mr. Page," the Nation says, "President Wilson has made an interesting experiment. He has boldly reverted to the scholar diplomat as the type of man most qualified to represent the United States abroad. In doing so he has paid a silent, but striking compliment to the good sense of the British people. He has assumed that what we most value in an American Ambassador is not his wealth and his ability to lavish it on magnificent houses and huge entertainments, but his personality and his achievements and the extent to which he brings with him the true flavor of American life."

The Nation declares that President Roosevelt made the same experiment when he appointed Dr. David Jayne Hill Ambassador to Germany. After a description of Dr. Hill's previous career, the Nation says:

"Dr. Hill's predecessor was Charlemagne Tower, a gentleman of very great wealth. He was prodigal of fêtes and receptions. He leased the finest house in the capital and greatly pleased the Emperor by the splendor he was able to maintain. The change was as Mr. Roosevelt intended it to be—a thorough one. It was an appeal from the eccentric, commercialized Berlin of to-day to the city of plain living and high thinking of a generation ago.

"There is no need to go into the details of the unhappy, but illuminating sequel. When the Emperor learned that, whatever Dr. Hill's other qualifications for the post were, his private means would only permit him to maintain a modest establishment, and that the days of splash and glitter were over, it was one of those incidents that revealed a man and a society. Neither the Emperor nor Berlin came out of it with credit."

Remarking that the last three American Ambassadors to London were wealthy men, the Nation continues:

"In Mr. Hay's case and in Mr. Choate's the circumstance counted for little or nothing in enabling them to win the position they came to hold in British society and public life. It was thrown into its proper insignificance by the attractiveness of their other endowments. But it would be absurd to pretend that the late Mr. Whitelaw Reid was quite so successful in disguising the fact that he was a millionaire."

The Nation then pays a tribute to Mr. Reid's previous public career, and continues:

"He had a great fondness and talent for society, much versatility and an ingratiating manner; but it was as a man of unusual wealth that he was chiefly known, both in America and Great Britain, and his Ambassadorship was distinguished beyond all others by the highly elaborate scale on which he preferred to live.

"To many Englishmen and not a few Americans there was something incongruous in the spectacle of a representative of the United States—a Republic still supposed to be dedicated to Jeffersonian simplicity—inhabiting the most splendid mansion in London, and maintaining considerably more than a ducal state.

"President Wilson was right in thinking, from the American even more than the British standpoint, that there should be a reversion to the Bancroft, Washington Irving, and Lowell type—that even in these spendthrift days wealth is not essential in a nominee to the London Embassy. We welcome and honor that demonstration. It fits in with one's conception of what America should be and at her best really is, and it may not be without its usefulness in restoring to London society a more just sense of values."

The Nation warmly welcomes Mr. Page as an American who, it says, will be recognized as the authentic salt of Americanism, and will gain much and suffer nothing by coming to the London Embassy simply on his own merits as a citizen and a servant of the Republic.

The weekly Spectator also extends a cordial welcome to Mr. Page.

POPE COMPLAINS OF LAWS.

Tells Pilgrims of Discrimination Against the Catholic Church.

ROME, April 4.—The Pope made a strong complaint against the laws regarding religious liberty existing in some Catholic countries in the course of an address written by him and delivered on his behalf to a large body of Italian and French pilgrims which he received to-day in the Consistorial Hall.

In the address it was declared that in those countries to which he referred the laws were intended to work against the Catholic Church, while plenty of liberty was granted to the other Christian Churches. For instance, the Catholic Church does not enjoy the liberty to possess property. In making this observation the Pontiff evidently alluded to the laws against religious orders.

His Holiness also pointed out that the liberty of the press was degenerating into license and was chiefly employed against religion.

In conclusion the Pope urged the faithful to exercise their influence in bringing back their Governments to respect the Catholic Church in the interest of their own countries.

Sotheby's Sale Brings $11,370.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 4.—Sotheby's to-day concluded the sale of the first portion of a "booklover's library," the owner of which is understood to be John Pearson. The total realized was $11,370. "Saul's Prohibited Staite," (1609,) a very rare book of American interest, fetched $180; "Bucaniers of America," (1684-86,) $255.

SAFE FROM AERIAL BOMBS.

British Ships Need Not Fear, Says the Inventor of a New Device.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 4.—The Standard says that by a jealously guarded secret invention the British Navy is believed to be protected against aerial attack. The inventor, Arthur Jenkins, an Englishman, who is said to be a Director in an American railway, told a Standard reporter that his discovery would banish the fear of aircraft dropping bombs upon warships. He has been in communication with Winston Churchill on the subject, and Admiralty experts have tested the invention and are said to have been convinced of its efficacy.

Mr. Jenkins says he has not approached the subject from the viewpoint of financial gain, but as a patriotic Englishman. The invention, he said, was for British ships only, though other powers were anxious to get the secret. Secret Service men had approached him, he said, on behalf of the German and Russian Governments, one of them asking him to name his own price.

TO STUDY GOLD RESERVES.

Viscount St. Aldwyn Heads New Committee of British Bankers.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 4.—The committee of bankers which some years ago considered the question of the country's gold reserves has been reconstituted with a new Chairman, Viscount St. Aldwyn. Other members are Sir Edward Holden, Lord Inchcape, Robert Martin-Holland, and Sir Felix Schuster. The first meeting will be held in May.

Nothing came of the former committee's deliberations beyond a rather more general recognition of the desirability of increasing the country's gold reserves. It is hoped that the new committee will reach some practical result insuring the establishment of larger reserves without causing serious financial disturbance.

NEW FRENCH BOND ISSUE.

$20,000,000 in State Railway 4s to be Offered April 10.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Saturday, April 5.—The announcement appears in this morning's newspapers that subscriptions will be received on April 10 for a new issue of $20,000,000 of 4 per cent. State railway bonds, redeemable within forty-nine years.

It is certain that the issue, which is in 200,000 bonds of $100 each, will be largely oversubscribed, as was the case with the State railway issue last year, the rate interest being the highest offered in France on any State investment.

MRS. NORMAN WINS SUIT.

English Divorce Court Grants Restitution of Conjugal Rights.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 4.—Robert Norman of New York City was to-day ordered by Mr. Justice Bargrave Deane in the Divorce Court to return to his wife within thirty days. This is the outcome of the suit for restitution of conjugal rights brought by Mrs. Eva Norman. Their marriage took place in the Church of the Transfiguration in New York in March, 1901. In 1904 Mrs. Norman came to England by her doctor's advice. Her husband visited her here occasionally. In 1912 he wrote: "I cannot consent either to live with you or find you a home, as I have formed other ties."

Stephen Doulton, a member of the New York bar, was called to prove the validity of the marriage. As Norman is living in New York, Mr. Justice Deane extended the time usually allowed for compliance with the restitution order to thirty days.

SUICIDE BY MACHINE GUN.

German Soldier Discharges the Piece by Pulling a Cord.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, April 4.—A private in an infantry regiment at Graz committed suicide by placing himself before a machine gun and firing it by means of a cord. His breast was riddled with bullets.

The man had had differences with his superior officers.

MEXICO HAS $16,539,000.

Amount of Treasury Balance—No Vouchers for $6,500,000 Spent by Madero.

MEXICO CITY, April 4.—The Mexican Finance Minister reported to Congress to-day that the balance in the Treasury at the end of January was $16,539,000, with $594,500 more distributed among the postal and telegraph offices.

"This amount," he said, "is what remains of the so-called reserves of the Mexican Treasury, and of this sum $9,410,500 is the Monetary Commission Fund, which cannot be disbursed."

The Minister reported that the Madero Government had left items totaling more than $6,500,000 for which no accounts or receipts appeared. He explained that this did not indicate misappropriation, but he stated that the outstanding debt of the Treasury and the difference due to fluctuations in the rate of exchange, &c., accounted for only $150,000 of this sum. He intimated there was a possibility that documents bearing upon the disbursement might come to light.

The Minister said the Madero Government, between July, 1912, and the date of its fall, in February of the present year, had spent $17,500,000 over the budget appropriation, including the increase voted by the last Congress.

Germany's Ambassador Question.

BERLIN, April 4.—The Budget Committee of the Reichstag to-day passed a resolution asking the Government to see that admittance to a diplomatic career was open to the most capable men without regard to wealth. Gottlieb von Jagow, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, thanked the committee for the resolution, but added that it offered a hard problem to solve.

CALIFORNIA BILL STIRS UP JAPAN

Viscount Chinda Calls on Bryan to Protest Against State's Alien Land Measure.

PROTEST INFORMAL SO FAR

Proposed Law Would Prohibit Japanese and Other Foreigners from Either Holding or Leasing Land.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Reports that Gov. Johnson and conferees in the California Legislature had decided to put through a bill prohibiting Japanese and other foreigners not eligible to citizenship from holding or leasing land in that State brought Viscount Chinda, the Japanese Ambassador, to the State Department to-day with a protest.

It was an informal protest, but it may prove to be the beginning of a serious international difficulty—one that may rival the embarrassing school incident which arose during the administration of President Roosevelt.

The Ambassador was closeted with Secretary Bryan for nearly two hours. At the close of the conference Mr. Bryan would only say that the Ambassador had called attention to the proposed law and had objected to it. The matter unquestionably is embarrassing to the Administration. The bill is modeled on the Federal law of 1897 against alien ownership of land in the District of Columbia and the Territories and applies to all aliens who are not eligible to become citizens of the United States. The California bill has a clause prohibiting the leasing of land to Japanese.

The Federal law offers no discrimination against any race or nationality, but contains a distinct proviso that where treaty obligations confer the right to own and hold land in the United States the law should not apply. It is contended by the Japanese that the proposed California law prohibits the owning or leasing of real property for any purpose and that this right was conferred by the treaty of 1894.

The second article of that treaty provides that the citizens of either country may have the right to "own or hire and occupy houses, manufactories, warehouses, shops, and premises which may be necessary for them, and lease land for residential and commercial purposes" in the country of the other. The terms of the treaty of 1894 were re-enacted in the treaty of 1911.

The conference to-day was occupied with the statement of the case from the Japanese viewpoint. The case is similar to the difficulty that arose in 1908 over the admission of Japanese children to the schools of San Francisco, but is far more sweeping in its effects. In that incident there was much irritation between the two countries, and talk of war with Japan was strong on the Pacific Coast.

Later California legislators made an effort to pass a bill to exclude Japanese from the public schools, and Col. Roosevelt persuaded those favoring the measure to abandon it. Col. Roosevelt took the ground that the treaty with Japan gave the subjects of that Government the right to come into the country just as the citizens of the United States would enter Japan and to enjoy the privilege of study in all public institutions. The further fact that the United States Supreme Court had placed this interpretation upon the treaty made it very clear that the California bill was obnoxious to the supreme law of the land.

There is a fear in Washington that the desire of the California Legislature to prevent Japanese owning orange groves, raisin vineyards, and farms may lead to more war talk. The conversation to-day between Mr. Bryan and Viscount Chinda was filled with mutual assurances of the friendly feeling of each country toward the other. Confidence was expressed at the State Department after the interview that the matter would be adjusted amicably.

SWITZERLAND BUYS TUNNEL

Acquires St. Gothard Railroad at a Cost of $66,918,000.

BERNE, April 4.—A grave political crisis, which is dividing the people of Switzerland, has developed by the ratification to-day by the National Council of the Saint Gothard Railway Convention of 1909, by which the last of the principal Swiss lines became the property of the Swiss Confederation. The vote was 108 to 77.

The Saint Gothard Convention of 1878, to which Switzerland, Germany, and Italy were parties, had to be revised after Switzerland's buying out of the Swiss railroad systems in 1904. This revision constituted the Convention of 1909, which extended the special rights enjoyed by Germany and Italy on the Saint Gothard Line to the entire Swiss system of railways.

Many people in Switzerland strenuously opposed the adoption of the convention, which they declared would be an irreparable blow on the national honor and dignity.

The company received $42,500,000 for line, and in addition the Confederation took over the debt of the company, amounting to $23,418,000.

STEERAGE RATE WAR AHEAD.

Austro-American's Cut to $30 Presages Rate of $25 or $20.

BERLIN, April 4.—The Austro-American Steamship Line, plying between Trieste and Canada, has reduced its steerage passenger rate to $30 in order to meet the latest cuts in rates of the Canadian Pacific Line.

It is expected that the companies making up the Atlantic pool will participate in the rate reductions by cutting their rates for steerage passengers to $25 or $20.

O'Ryan Salary Bill Progresses.

AYBANY, April 4.—The Bush bill, designed to provide an annual salary of $8,000 and expenses for Major General John F. O'Ryan, commanding the State National Guard, was reported favorably to-day by the Senate Finance Committee. An effort to advance the measure, which has already passed the Assembly, to the order of final passage met with objection.

RUBBER ATROCITIES CEASE.

British Consul Finds Improved Condition in Putumayo Field.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 4.—The report of George B. Michell, British Consul at Iquitos, Peru, on his tour of the Putumayo district, which was made in conjunction with American Consul Fuller, is issued to-day and does not for reasons plainly indicated even yet let the full light of day on that remote and ill-fated region. From the outset difficulties were placed in the path of the Consuls. Despite their desire to travel alone as much as possible to make independent observations, the Consuls were joined at the mouth of the Putumayo River by Rey De Castro, Peruvian Consul at Manaos and Señor J. C. Arana, the latter's brother-in-law, and other officials, who subjected them to the shadowing process throughout the tour. Mr. Michell says he certainly saw no evidence of barbarities during his journey, but that even if they were going on it would have been impossible to know of them, for, "with the exception of a three days' march, we were never free from the company of a large party of officials and agents of the company, whose constant efforts to put forward the best of everything and expatiate on the satisfactory conditions of the natives, the generous, paternal treatment by the Peruvians, and the good relations existing between the Indians and white men were so evident as to become quite wearisome. Castro seemed bent on spreading the whitewash with a lavish hand, and Arana everywhere wished to be called 'Papa Arana' by the women and children. It was impossible to see the people in their native wilds."

Whenever the Consuls tried to talk privately to the Indians, employes of the Peruvian Amazon Company, who knew the language, would approach and the people would immediately cease to be communicative. Consul Michell's general conclusions are thus summed up:

"No evidence of cruelties now being perpetrated came to our notice. The policy of the company under Señor Tizon's management has been changed for the better, but the dispositions of the Government for securing justice and good treatment have hitherto been entirely inadequate, and the new arrangements have not yet developed enough, so that we are not able to judge of their results. Consequently the fate of the Indians lies almost wholly in the hands of a commercial concern, the future of which is very doubtful and whose action may have to change with its fortunes. The present fairly satisfactory state of things will depend very largely upon the continuance of the policy of the company's present agents at La Chorrera El Encanto and on the development and faithful application and maintenance of the new proposals of the Peruvian Government."

WILSON PROTECTS BIRDS.

Forbids Killing Them for Plumage in the Canal Zone.

PANAMA, April 4.—An executive order issued by President Wilson forbidding under heavy penalty the destruction of birds of plumage in the Canal Zone has been put into effect by the Canal Commission.

Another executive order exempts naval commandants from complying strictly with the safety appliances act when such compliance is not entirely feasible.

WILSON FOR ECONOMY BOARD

To Continue Efficiency Commission Taft Created—Budget Plans.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The Efficiency and Economy Commission created by President Taft will be continued under the Wilson Administration. Mr. Wilson had a conference to-night with F. A. Cleveland, head of the commission; Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, John Purroy Mitchel and Dr. Henry Bruere of New York and manifested deep interest in the idea of the modern business-like plan for handling the affairs of the National Government.

The commission exists through a provision in the Sundry Civil bill, and a recommendation for its continuation is expected in the coming session of Congress. Mr. Wilson had a similar commission in New Jersey when he was Governor.

The same visitors talked with the President about the budget system and the government of the City of Washington. The President has always favored a budget system, and there is every likelihood that the economy commission will be asked to work out a comprehensive basis for budget legislation. Mr. Mitchel and Dr. Bruere brought a memorandum on establishing a model government for the City of Washington.

H.S. MARSHALL FOR LAW POST

Otherwise Southern District Attorneyship May Go to Battle.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—From what is learned in official circles to-day it is believed that both President Wilson and Attorney General McReynolds are favorably disposed toward H. Snowden Marshall as United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York. Although Henry De Forest Baldwin had been mentioned as one of the men under consideration for this place, nothing learned here to-day indicated that the President was inclined to offer it to him.

George Gordon Battle was President Wilson's choice for the office, and it was understood that he had tendered it to Mr. Battle and that the latter had declined. It became known to-day, however, that there had been a misunderstanding all around, and that the information brought to the White House that Mr. Battle would not accept did not correctly represent his attitude in the matter.

While it seems to be the present purpose of the Administration to offer Mr. Marshall the District Attorneyship, there is good reason to believe that should he decline the place will be tendered to Mr. Battle.

Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Marshall are law partners of the firm of which Senator James A. O'Gorman is the head. Although so closely associated, they are of opposite factions within the Democratic Party in New York City. Mr. Marshall is said to be a Tammany man, while Mr. Baldwin is anti-Tammany. Nothing has come to light here, however, to show that their political affiliations have occupied the President and Attorney General McReynolds.

Mr. McReynolds has been making inquiries in behalf of the President, and it is understood that Mr. Marshall is his choice.

Henry De Forest Baldwin was asked last evening if he would accept the appointment of United States District Attorney. Mr. Baldwin replied: "The appointment has not been offered to me. I am not in the habit of accepting what has not been offered."

LOOKS TO WILSON AS PEACEMAKER

Frankfurter Zeitung Suggests That He Call a Conference on Armaments.

RECALLS INAUGURAL SPEECH

As Giving Hope That He May Take Steps to Limit Europe's Military Burdens.

FRANKFORT - ON - THE - MAIN, April 5.—In its evening edition to-day The Frankfurter Zeitung publishes a leading article concerning the possibility of stopping the armament fever in Europe. Reviewing the peace agitation of modern times and dwelling especially on the action of Nicholas II. in 1899, when he invited the Governments of the world to send delegates to the conference at The Hague, the paper proposes a new international conference on the armament question.

It is the view of The Frankfurter Zeitung, however, that such a conference could not very well be summoned by one of the countries participating in the activities which make all Europe an armed camp. Of all the great powers only the United States of America could render this service to the countries in question and thereby earn the gratitude of all Europe. The speech of President Wilson, when he was inaugurated, gives rise to the hope that he may be the statesman who can and will institute a movement looking to the calling of this new conference. The best citizens of his country, says the editorial, would surely indorse any action the President might take in this direction.

WOULD STOP HER AUTOING

But State Can't Revoke Mrs. Alexander's License at Father's Request.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 4.—Secretary of State May is unable to grant the application of J. M. Ingal of Chicago, retired member of the New York bar, who asked him to revoke the automobile license of his step-daughter, Mrs. Edward I. Alexander of Poughkeepsie, stating that she was reckless in driving her car.

Secretary of State Mitchell May in a statement to-day says the present law does not give him power to grant the request.

The young woman's father asserts that she "ran over a small boy a year ago in Chicago and deliberately took her car out of the State so as to enable the accident insurance company to settle for a trifle with the parents of the injured boy."

Secretary May points out that the law "does not afford any means of supervising or controlling the issuance of a certificate of registration to an owner, nor does it provide for the suspension or revocation of a license issued to a chauffeur after the same has been granted."

Mr. May calls attention to the fact that measures to remedy what he terms "the inadequacies" of the present law have been introduced in both houses of the Legislature, but have not been reported from committees.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 4.—J. M. Ingal, a lawyer of 4,638 Clifton Avenue, Chicago, who wrote the New York Secretary of State requesting the annulment of the automobile license of his stepdaughter, Mrs. Edward I. Alexander of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., has retired from the practice of the law in New York State and is now spending the remainder of his days in this city.

Mrs. Alexander, he says, is the daughter of the late David Kellner, who possessed a valuable farm in the Hudson River Valley in the neighborhood of Poughkeepsie, and who bequeathed her $25,000, into which she came into possession five years ago, when she attained the age of 21. Her mother, who subsequently became the wife of Mr. Ingal, inherited $500,000 from the estate.

"My stepdaughter has a mania for fast automobile driving, killing of chickens, dogs, and other animals who stray upon the highway," Mr. Ingal said tonight. "It was this propensity on her part which induced me to request the Secretary of State in New York to revoke her automobile license, believing it would save her from serious trouble. About a year ago she ran over and seriously injured a boy in this city."

Mrs. Alexander has a summer home on the South Road, five miles from Poughkeepsie. She was married to Edward I. Alexander on Nov. 25 last, but sixty days later her husband disappeared and is said to be in Mexico.

Mrs. Alexander is well known in the Hudson Valley towns. A few years ago she began the study of law in Dutchess County, but apparently never got to the point of applying for admission to the bar. She attracted some comment by appearing on the streets of Poughkeepsie at that time riding a white horse and wearing a black divided skirt. Her stepfather not long ago addressed a communication to Chief of Police McCabe, in Poughkeepsie, asking him if he had sufficient authority to prevent her operating an automobile in Poughkeepsie. At that time she possessed a speedy roadster, but it is not known that she had any difficulty with the authorities in driving it.

MORGAN FUNERAL SET FOR APRIL 14

Will Be Held at St. George's Church at 10 o'Clock That Monday Morning.

THREE BISHOPS TO OFFICIATE

American Museum of Natural History Adopts Resolution and Pays Tribute to One of Its Founders.

It was announced last evening by John Reichert, Corporation Secretary of St. George's Church, that, barring unforeseen delay in the arrival of the steamship France, the funeral of J. Pierpont Morgan would be held at 10 o'clock on Monday morning, April 14, at St. George's Church, Stuyvesant Square and East Sixteenth Street. Admittance to the church for the funeral services will be limited to holders of tickets issued on application to the Rev. Karl Reiland, rector of St. George's, at the rectory, 209 East Sixteenth Street.

The details of the funeral service had not been definitely settled upon yesterday, but it was said that three Bishops would probably officiate—Bishop David H. Greer of New York, Bishop Chauncey B. Brewster of Connecticut, and Bishop William Lawrence of Massachusetts. The Rev. Karl Reiland and the parish clergy of St. George's Church will be in attendance and participate in the services.

After the funeral services at St. George's Church the body will be taken on a special train, which will also carry members of the family and others, to Hartford. Interment will be in the Cedar Hill Cemetery, which contains the Morgan family plot.

Yesterday, while flags at half mast still draped many of the buildings of the financial district, in respect to the late financier whose body is being brought back to this country on the steamship France, a special memorial meeting of the Board of Trustees of the American Museum of Natural History was held to honor his memory at the office of Charles Lanier at 59 Cedar Street.

The following Trustees were present at the meeting: Henry Fairfield Osborn, President of the museum; Joseph H. Choate, Seth Low, Cleveland H. Dodge, A. L. Juilliard, Felix M. Warburg, John B. Trevor, Percy R. Pyne, Anson W. Hard, Thomas De Witt Cuyler, Ogden Mills, and Madison Grant.

Mr. Osborn briefly reviewed Mr. Morgan's connection with the museum. He was one of the founders, of whom only one other survives, Joseph H. Choate. Mr. Morgan served on all the important committees of the institution, and was Treasurer from 1875 to 1891, Chairman of its Finance Committee from 1878 to 1910, and First Vice President in 1903, an office in which he was succeeded by his son. Mr. Morgan was the most extensive benefactor of the museum except Morris K. Jesup.

The Trustees authorized the appointment of a committee by the President to prepare a suitable memorial to be placed in the museum, and it was decided to close the museum on the day of the funeral.

This resolution, presented by Mr. Choate, was adopted unanimously:

The people of New York and of this country are forever indebted to John Pierpont Morgan for his large share in the foundation and upbuilding of the American Museum of Natural History as a National institution of education and public welfare.

From Dec. 30, 1868, when the first steps were taken to found the museum, until 1912, when he last visited his collection of minerals and gems in the museum, he gave munificently of his time, his judgment, his affection, his means. In this, as in so many other public causes, he will be remembered as a true patriot and loyal citizen of the Republic.

He served as charter member of the museum corporation, as Treasurer, as Chairman of the Finance Committee, as First Vice President. His gifts to the exhibition halls and to the endowment have enriched every branch of the museum, and are of such a rare and beautiful character as to give an inspiration of love of nature for all time.

The Stock Exchange will probably suspend all business on the morning of Mr. Morgan's funeral, and be closed until the afternoon. No definite action was taken by the Governors yesterday, but it was intimated several days ago that this would probably be the course pursued.

At the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. it was said yesterday that no information would be given out regarding the Morgan will until after the funeral.

HAVRE'S ADIEU TO MORGAN.

Flags at Half-Mast and a Military Escort to the Liner.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

HAVRE, April 4.—There was an impressive ceremonial when the body of J. Pierpont Morgan was borne this morning aboard La France, to be conveyed to the United States for burial.

When the train arrived at the pier flags flew at half-mast from a number of business houses in town, while similar signs of mourning were displayed on the shipping in the harbor. When the body was conveyed from the train to the liner military honors were rendered by the 129th Regiment of Infantry, a detachment of which followed the cortège, which included Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, Miss Helen Morgan Hamilton, the banker's granddaughter; Mrs. Harcourt, his niece; H. H. Harjes, Mr. Beecher, the American Vice Consul; M. Benoist, the Deputy Prefect of Seine Inferieure; representatives of the Compagnie Générale Transatlantique, and all the important municipal officials. A military band meanwhile played Chopin's "Funeral March." The coffin was buried under beautiful wreaths, additional floral tributes having been added to those from Rome and Aix-les-Bains by several Havre bankers.

The body was placed in a beautiful chapelle ardente of black velvet cloth, relieved by silver, on one of the liner's decks. While the military band played "America" a dense crowd stood with heads uncovered at the harbor side to take a last farewell of the great banker, who will be remembered as a sincere friend of France.

TRY TO SAVE FORTUNE.

Brothers Apply to Have Carl Goldberger Declared Incompetent.

Proceedings to have Carl Goldberger, who is heir to a large fortune and already in possession of a $250,000 estate, declared incompetent were begun yesterday in the Supreme Court by Maurice and Norman Goldberger, two brothers, of 781 Fifth Avenue, and Mrs. Lena Neuberger, a sister, of 450 West End Avenue. According to the petitioners, Carl Goldberger lives at the Hotel Netherland.

Maurice Goldberger asserts that Carl drinks large quantities of whisky, benedictine, and cocktails and spends money lavishly on women who care nothing for him. On account of his drinking, the petition says, he has been confined several times in hospitals and sanatoriums. A previous attempt to restrain him was made in 1908, when Justice Blanchard sent him to The Knolls, a sanatorium at Riverdale, N. Y. He was later released in the custody of a physician, who accompanied him to Europe. In August of last year the young man was committed by Justice Amend to the Long Island Home, at Amityville, L. I. There he took the pledge, his brothers say, but upon his release began drinking again.

IDEALS

If any organization should have ideals it is surely a construction company which is continually building upward.

The very fact of working skyward all the time serves to emphasize to us the uplift that comes from continually aiming higher.

But our ideals are practical ideals, for in our assiduous search for new work we never lose sight of the fact that quality of work is more important than volume, and really determines volume in the final analysis.

UPHOLDS BROKER'S CLIENT.

Sale of Securities Held on Margin Needs Proper Notice, Court Holds.

ALBANY, April 4.—Where a customer of a stock broker has placed in the hands of the broker securities as collateral for stock held upon margin, the stock broker cannot sell the securities without a reasonable notice to the customer of his intention to do so, although at the time the market may be fluctuating at great rapidity due to a panic. This was held by the Court of Appeals to-day in the case of Ida Small against Houseman & Co. of New York.

During the panic of 1907 the plaintiff had an account with the defendants. She was in Europe at the time, and her affairs were in the hands of an agent. The brokers notified the agent to produce more margin and upon his failure to do so, the brokers, with short notice, due to the panicky condition of the market, sold the collateral.

In an opinion by Judge Werner the Court of Appeals held that the case should have been submitted to the jury upon the question whether the notice was sufficient.

PLANNING TO STIFLE 'FULL CREW' INQUIRY

Senator Brown Will Call Up His Resolution Monday, but Its Defeat Seems Certain.

SULZER WANTS TALK ENDED

Says He Is Investigating Truesdale Charge Concerning Failure to Prosecute Corning Engineer.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 4.—Every effort is being made by friends of Gov. Sulzer to shut off further discussion in the Senate of the Brown inquiry resolution growing out of the report that the Governor's approval of the "Full Crew bill" was to carry out a secret ante-election bargain with John Fitzgibbons, agent at the capital for the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, but it was learned to-day that Senator Brown intends to call up his resolution Monday night and urge immediate action.

While the Democratic majority can scarcely be expected to take kindly to such an indictment of the Governor of their own party as the resolution brings, and while there is little prospect that the resolution will pass, there is no doubt that members of the Republican minority will try to make as much political capital as possible out of the affair which has created a stir throughout the State.

Persons friendly to the Governor realize that the less discussion there is on the Senate floor over the Brown resolution the better for all concerned in the original pledge. It was learned to-day that even Republican members of the Senate had been sounded as to their views on the resolution. One Republican told a friend to-day that he was not ready to commit himself on the resolution, even though it had been presented by the party leader in the upper house. He added significantly that he had some local legislation which he was anxious to get through.

Fitzgibbons, the trainmen's agent, has not been as much in evidence at the Capitol since his interview with Gov. Sulzer on Wednesday evening, when he told the Governor that the letter sent out over his signature to trainmen's unions throughout the State and printed this week in THE TIMES, was a "fake."

Gov. Sulzer said to-day that he had received the letter in which President Truesdale of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad called upon him to familiarize himself with the facts contained in the reports of the Public Service Commission regarding the Corning wreck on the Lackawanna several months ago, and then retract his recent assertion in a recent statement put out to bolster up his action on the "Full Crew bill" that the wreck could have been avoided had the train been sufficiently manned. Every investigation made so far, says Truesdale, has indicated that the engineer was to blame, and his indictment has been vainly asked for by railroad officials, according to the Truesdale letter, because of "some political bargain between friends of the engineer and the prosecuting officials" of Steuben County, where the accident occurred.

Gov. Sulzer apparently does not take the Truesdale communication very seriously. When asked about his reply this afternoon he called his private secretary:

"Platt, have you replied to Mr. Truesdale's letter?"

"No, I have not," said Secretary Platt, "but I have it pretty well fixed in my mind what I am going to say."

Later THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent asked the Governor what he intended to do regarding Mr. Truesdale's assertion that, owing to the relations between the prosecuting officials of Steuben County and friends of the engineer, who is held responsible for the wreck, the railroad officials had not succeeded in bringing the latter to justice.

"We are investigating that," he replied curtly.

FITZGIBBONS'S LETTER QUOTING SULZER'S PLEDGE

OF VITAL IMPORTANCE

OSWEGO, N. Y., November 3, 1912.

TO THE OFFICERS AND MEMBERS OF THE BROTHERHOOD OF RAILROAD TRAINMEN OF NEW YORK STATE.

Sirs and Brothers:

Believing that the most important subject concerning our organization to-day is the "Full Crew" bill, and being anxious to secure the passage of said bill, I considered it my duty to learn the attitude of the Candidate for Governor who is most likely to win out, so I called upon the Hon. William Sulzer and requested that he state his position on this most important measure.

Mr. Sulzer said to me "If I am elected, I will sign the "Full Crew" bill and I will aid you in securing its passage. He also requested that I notify the Lodges of the State as to his position continuing he said, "I would come out openly for the bill, but if I did the railroads would spend a barrel of money to defeat me."

I received a telegram from Mr. Sulzer requesting that I meet him at Buffalo, Oct. 29th. I met Mr. Sulzer as requested and he again said that he would sign the bill. There was a committee of trainmen representing the Buffalo Lodges at the hotel to call upon him requesting that he state his position on "Full Crew" Legislation. I am informed that Mr. Sulzer told them he would sign the bill.

I believe it to be my duty to inform our lodges so that each member can use his judgment as to who is the best man for Governor. I have no desire to plead for any candidate for Governor, but call your attention to the facts as I get them.

Personally, I believe, that Sulzer is the best man for the workingmen of this State, and the man, who, in my opinion, will give us "Full Crew" legislation.

This letter is not for publication, but for the information of our members throughout the State, so that each member may know what the exact conditions are, and then it is up to each and every one to do what he thinks is for the best.

With best wishes, and hoping that we get our just and meritorious measure, I am,

Fraternally yours,

JOHN FITZGIBBONS,
Leg. Rep. B. of R. T.

Above is a fac simile reproduction of the printed letter sent out to members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen just before election last year by John Fitzgibbons, Legislative Representative of that organization, who directly quoted William Sulzer, then a candidate, as giving him a promise to sign the Full Crew bill if he should be elected to the Governorship.

The circular bears at the bottom the union label of the Allied Printing Trades Council of Syracuse.

HIGHWAY JOB GOES BEGGING.

Sulzer's Offer of New Post Meets Refusals—Wants Carlisle.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 4.—Although there are many candidates for the new position of State Highway Commissioner, Gov. Sulzer has not been able to select the appointee he wants. He has tendered the position to several men, but all have declined. The Governor still hopes that John N. Carlisle, who was Chairman of the Governor's Commission of Inquiry, will accept the place, but up to the present Mr. Carlisle has refused.

Mr. Carlisle is a candidate for the position of Chairman of the Public Service Commission, Second District. This office was vacated to-day by F. W. Stevens, whose five-year term expired on Feb. 1. Mr. Stevens remained to finish the case involving electric power rates in Buffalo, and the decision was announced last night. The Governor will not fill the places on the Public Service Commission until the State offices, which he regards as more important, are filled.

It is expected that the name of J. Stewart Barney of New York will be sent to the Senate for confirmation as State Architect on Monday or Tuesday. The Senate Finance Committee still has the nomination of John B. Riley of Plattsburg, to be Superintendent of Prisons, before it, but unless Tammany Leader Murphy releases the Senate there is little hope for Mr. Riley's confirmation.

It was said to-day that the Governor has under consideration the name of George P. Decker of Rochester for member of the State Hospital Commission. Mr. Decker is connected with the Monroe County Democratic organization, as was Milton E. Gibbs, whose nomination for the same place was rejected by the Senate. The Govenor has said that the place will go to a man favored by the Monroe County organization. Mr. Decker is at present Assistant Counsel in the State Conservation Department.

FACTORY BILLS SIGNED.

Sulzer Approves Ten Measures Submitted by Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 4.—Bills for the betterment of factory conditions and the protection of life in connection with trades, were signed to-day by Gov. Sulzer. There were ten measures, all of which were recommended by the Factory Investigating Commission.

The provisions of some of the new laws are as follows:

Requiring the owners of factories to maintain living quarters in a thoroughly sanitary condition; prohibiting smoking in factories; authorizing the Industrial Board to make rules and regulations for the ventilation of factories, and providing for seats with backs for waitresses.

Requirements in other bills are cleanliness in factories; regulations for dangerous employment; physical examination of children employed in factories; wash rooms and lockers in foundries; the inclosure of elevators and hoisting shafts in factory buildings, fire alram signal systems in factory buildings, and fire drills under official supervision.

IN CONTEMPT FOR ALIMONY.

Court's Ruling on H. G. Moore's Failure to Pay Is Affirmed.

ALBANY, April 4.—The Court of Appeals upheld to-day the lower courts in adjudging Henry G. Moore of Philadelphia in contempt of court for failure to pay alimony of $333.33 a month to his wife, Gertrude L. Moore.

The divorce was granted in the Pennsylvania courts and the amount of alimony fixed. It was adopted by the New York courts and an order made requiring Moore to pay $35,234 back alimony and to give a $60,000 bond.

Moore is a son of the late Andrew M. Moore of Philadelphia.

REFORM FORCES TO UNITE.

ALBANY, April 4.—The desirability of consolidating the reform forces of New York State is favored by representatives of Methodist, Baptist, Congregational, and other State denominational bodies. At a recent meeting in Albany it was decided to hold a meeting next year to promote such an organization.

It is proposed to consolidate the New York Civic League, the Anti-Saloon League, the State Law and Order Alliance, the Law and Order Union, the New York State Sabbath Committee, the New York Sabbath Association, and kindred organizations.

STILWELL CHARGES READY ON MONDAY

Attorney General Carmody Will Submit Affidavits and Documentary Evidence.

KENDALL MAY HAVE COUNSEL

Carmody Not to Prosecute — Only Unopposed Legislation to be Advanced Until Trial Ends.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 4.—When the Senate Judiciary Committee opens the investigation on Monday afternoon relating to the charges of George M. Kendall, President of the New York Bank Note Company, against Senator Stephen J. Stilwell of the Bronx, Attorney General Carmody will be ready to submit the affidavits and documentary evidence in the case of the committee. After conference to-day between Mr. Carmody, Majority Leader Robert H. Wagner of the Senate, and Senator John F. Murtaugh, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, it was announced that the Attorney General would be present to represent the committee to see that all the facts were presented. He will not appear as a prosecutor.

Mr. Kendall, who charges Senator Stilwell with having sought money to effect favorable action on a bill in which Mr. Kendall was interested, may be represented by counsel. In this connection the name of James W. Osborne of New York has been mentioned. Mr. Osborne was the prosecuting attorney when a charge of bribery was made by Senator Benn Conger against Senator Jotham P. Allds. Senator Stilwell has engaged Edgar A. Wilson of Syracuse and William T. Byrne of Albany as his counsel.

There is no new evidence in the Stilwell case. The published statements have been prepared in the form of affidavits and the persons mentioned will be subpoenaed. It is expected that the hearing before the committee will consume a week.

Attorney General Carmody was advised to-day by Deputy Franklin Kennedy that he would return to Albany to-morrow with affidavits in support of Mr. Kendall's charges against Senator Stilwell. The Attorney General will turn the papers over to the Judiciary Committee.

Several Senators, who think the inquiry should be conducted before the Senate as a Committee of the Whole, are preparing to introduce a resolution Monday night which will provide that the Senate meet daily from 11 A. M. to 1 P. M., and that the Stilwell inquiry be conducted in the Senate chamber from 2 to 5 P. M.

When the committee makes its report to the Senate, counsel will be permitted to sum up before the Senate, and the question as to whether or not the charges should be sustained will be put to a vote. In the meantime, the Senate will advance only such legislation as is unopposed.

INSURANCE BILLS SIGNED.

One Provides Further for Standard Policy—More Rebate Restrictions.

ALBANY, April 4.—Additional provisions for the standard fire insurance policy of the State, with a clause providing for the appointment by the court of an umpire to assist in the adjustment of losses, are contained in the Walker bill, which was signed by Gov. Sulzer to-day.

The Governor also signed measures which extend the prohibitions against discriminations and rebates by life insurance companies to assessment life insurance associations, and which give the State Superintendent of Insurance authority to approve the solvency of companies issuing surety bonds.

Other measures signed include the Blauvelt bill, creating the State Board of Geographic Names, to select names with some geographic significance for future cities and villages; the Frawley bill, providing for the consideration of tunnel connections between New York City and New Jersey to further rapid transit, and the Ward bill, requiring county clerks to supply the State Fire Marshal with local statistics of facilities for fighting fires.

LLOYD FIGHTS FOR GRAFT IMMUNITY

Indicted Gambler Says His Grand Jury Testimony Should Let Him Go Free.

MAKES APPEAL TO COURT

But Prosecution Is Based on Case He Did Not Touch as a Witness.

Thomas Lloyd, the Harlem gambler, who was noted for his generosity in furnishing bail bonds for other gamblers, insists that he has been "double-crossed" by somebody in the District Attorney's office. Lloyd testified before the Supreme Court Grand Jury during the last week of February and involved ex-Inspector Dennis Sweeney and ex-Capt. Thomas W. Walsh in the Harlem graft collections. Because of his services he thought that he was immune from prosecution

On March 28, however, Lloyd was indicted for extortion by General Sessions Grand Jury. He was arrested and released on $5,000 bail, but he took his arrest much to heart, it was said. Yesterday, through his attorney, Emil Fuchs, he filed a motion before Judge Malone, in the Court of General Sessions for the right to inspect the minutes of the Grand Jury which indicted him. Lloyd's lawyer made it clear that he wanted to find out whether one Grand Jury did not use Lloyd's earlier testimony before the other Grand Jury as a basis for the indictment for extortion. Mr. Fuchs argued that his client's right to immunity had been grossly violated. Judge Malone reserved decision on the motion and instructed Assistant District Attorney Clark and Mr. Fuchs to prepare written briefs.

In the indictment Lloyd is charged with extorting $175 from Morris Halpin, better known in gambling circles as "Jakie" Morris. It is set forth that on May 11, 1911, Lloyd was acting as graft collector for the police and that he demanded the $175 on a threat of putting Morris's Eighth Avenue gambling house out of business if the money was not forthcoming. Lloyd was arrested on March 29, and was immediately taken before Justice Seabury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. In his argument yesterday Mr. Fuchs asserted that Lloyd should have received a preliminary hearing before a Police Magistrate and that this irregularity, alone, should serve to set aside the indictment.

The District Attorney has quite another view of Lloyd's plea for immunity. It was recalled yesterday that Lloyd absolutely refused to become communicative before Mr. Whitman until he saw that he had to do so to save himself. The very first question which Mr. Whitman asked him was whether he had any interest in the saloon of Newman & Lloyd in East 125th Street. Lloyd told Mr. Whitman that all he got out of that partnership was $25 a week salary, and that he was a man of no means.

Thereupon Mr. Whitman confronted him with two separate oaths in different Magistrates' courts. One was in June, 1912, and one was in the following August. In both instances Lloyd had appeared as bondsman for gamblers and in both instances Lloyd swore that he was worth $10,000.

Seeing that the District Attorney had woven a possible perjury net around him, just as he did in the case of Harlan, Lloyd quickly changed tactics. He began to talk freely. He admitted that he was part owner of the New Polo Athletic Club, and that he had paid $100 a week to Sweeney and Walsh for protection. He told Mr. Whitman all and more than had been expected, and was then taken before the Grand Jury. It was said at the time that he had implicated a well-known Harlem Tammany leader in his testimony.

As a witness before the Grand Jury, Lloyd's only "service" to the State was his admission that he had paid for police protection, and it is admitted by the District Attorney that Lloyd's mere appearance before the Grand Jury gave him immunity on that charge. The charge of extortion, however, grew out of a wholly different case, for it appears that Lloyd not only paid graft in one instance, but also that he was Sweeney's civilian collector in at least one other case. If Lloyd had been a member of the police force he would have been in exactly the same boat with Policeman Robinson and Sergt. Duffy, who are charged with bribery, in that they collected for Sweeney. It is expected that Lloyd will weaken before his trial is moved.

The trials of Robinson and Capt. John J. Murtha, the demoted Inspector, will be moved by District Attorney Whitman on Monday. It is probable that Robinson's trial will begin on April 14. He will be the first in the graft series to face a jury on the charge of bribery.

WHO LOST $1,500 BRACELET?

Fifth Avenue 'Bus Conductor, Who Says He Found It, Arrested.

James Tansy, a young conductor employed by the Fifth Avenue automobile stage line, was arrested yesterday on a charge of grand larceny, the arrest following his visit to a pawnbrokers' sales store at 812 Third Avenue, where he had submitted for valuation a diamond studded bracelet said to be worth about $1,500. Tansy said that he had found the bracelet on the floor of his stage about 5 o'clock on Thursday afternoon and that it was only curiosity that prompted him to take it to the pawnbrokers' sales man before turning it into the company.

It was about 10 o'clock yesterday morning when Detectives Regan, Vitch, and Homer of the East Fifty-first Street Station saw Tansy come out of the pawnbrokers' place. Vitch and Homer watched the man, while Regan went into the sales store to find out what business had called Tansy into the place. The pawnbroker told them and the arrest of the conductor followed.

In the Harlem Police Court Tansy told Magistrate Murphy that he was going to turn the bracelet into the company. He said he had no idea the bracelet, which is set with nine large diamonds, was so valuable. Magistrate Murphy paroled Tansy on his own recognizance until this morning. In the mean time the police have the bracelet, but at a late hour last night no one had appeared to claim it, a fact that caused the police to express great surprise.

BEAUTY ROSE IS FOR ALL.

Suffragists Won't Let the Antis Have It as Their Emblem.

The women suffragists of the Twenty-seventh Assembly District of the Woman Suffrage Party will make a protest against the anti-suffragists, who have taken the American Beauty rose as the emblem of their society.

Mrs. Anna Ross Weeks, leader of the Twenty-seventh District, sails to Europe to-day. Her district captains will be present at the Hamburg Line pier to see her off, and each good suffragist will carry one or more American Beauty roses for the leader. The women say that the American Beauty rose is nominally if not officially the American flower, and no body of women has the right to take it as an emblem of individual or party principles.

THREE CONFESS ASSAULT.

Men Jailed for Attacking B. R. T. Conductor Innocent, They Say.

Three men called upon Wallace Collins, recently an Assistant District Attorney in Queens County, at his office in Jamaica yesterday afternoon, and one of them made affidavit that he was the man who led the assault which took place recently upon Morris F. Malone, a Brooklyn Rapid Transit conductor, who was beaten up some weeks ago while in Richmond Hill. The others promised to make affidavits that they participated in the affair and that they were guilty, and not three men who are at present serving time in the Queens County Jail for the crime. The man who asserted he was the leader gave his name as William Maher. The others said they were George Brown and William Smith, all three being residents of the Richmond Hill section.

Last Tuesday William Corwin was sentenced to thirty days, John Maher to sixty days, and Thomas O'Donnell to thirty days for the assault. Mr. Collins will now ask to have these three men retried and acquitted. Maher, Corwin, and O'Donnell were arrested some time ago and held from time to time until Tuesday last, when a man swore positively they were the ones who assaulted the conductor.

CITY BREVITIES.

When the Ragged Edge Club dines at the Cafe Boulevard on Tuesday evening under the sponsorship of Zoe Anderson Norris the guest of honor will be Ardeen Foster, International Commissioner of the British Federation for the Emancipation of Sweated Women and White Slave Victims. He will talk about "the white slaves of London."

KEEPS AMBULANCES BUSY.

Hysterical Woman Treated Three Times in Six Blocks.

Three times ambulances from the New York Hospital were called last night to carry surgeons to treat Mrs. Alice McGill, an actress, of 118 Andelluace Street, West Hoboken, who, on the way to the Twenty-third Street ferry was seized with an attack of hysteria. Shortly after 6 o'clock last night Patrolman Berlin of the West Seventeenth Street Station found the woman at Twenty-third Street and Sixth Avenue. He called Dr. Dixon from the New York Hospital, who, after attending the woman, allowed her to start for the ferry.

Mrs. McGill got as far as Ninth Avenue and Twenty-third Street when she became hysterical again and a passer-by telephoned for another New York Hospital ambulance. By the time it had arrived the actress had recovered and insisted on walking to the ferry house.

When seated in the ferry house awaiting the arrival of her boat Mrs. McGill had another attack and Dr. William answered a call sent by Policeman Fitzgerald to the New York Hospital. He attended her and she boarded the ferry.

$450,000 FOR BILLINGS.

Mother Left That Amount to Man Said to Have $30,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 4.—To C. K. G. Billings, New York and Chicago capitalist, whose fortune has been estimated at $30,000,000, inherits $450,000 from his mother, Mrs. Augusta S. Billings, whose will was filed to-day.

The will bears the date Feb. 25, 1897. All the estate of Mrs. Billings is in personal property.

SAVES HER DOG FROM DEATH

Mrs. Standwood Persuades Policeman not to Shoot Wounded Pet.

A fox terrier ran into the path of a south-bound surface car at Broadway and Seventy-second street yesterday. It was caught under the fender and the wheels cut off part of the animal's tail. The dog dragged itself to the entrance of the Lincoln Trust Company, on the corner, where it lay. Scores of persons watched, but none aided the suffering animal.

The crowd of those who stood about the dog blocked the sidewalk, attracting the attention of Patrolman Mullahey of the West Sixty-eighth Street police station. Mullahey led the dog to the corner of Seventy-first Street, where he tied it to the fence of Christ Episcopal Church, while he telephoned for permission to shoot it. Mullahey, on his return, pushed his way through the crowd of onlookers, and drew his revolver from its holster. At that moment a woman wormed her way through the crowd.

"Don't shoot," she pleaded, "it's my dog. It's only hurt; it can't harm any one."

Mullahey replaced the revolver in its holster and deliberated on what would happen to him if he did not carry out his orders. The woman meanwhile tied her handkerchief around the bleeding stump of the animal's tail and Mullahey gave his consent to its removal.

Taking the dog in her arms, the woman wormed her way out of the crowd. Mullahey tapped her on the shoulder as she was waiting for a downtown Broadway surface car.

"Your name!" he inquired.

"Mrs. Standwood of 150 West Forty-sixth Street," was the reply.

Mullahey then dispersed the crowd that had gathered.

CAPE COD CANAL DELAYED.

Belmont's Attorneys Ask Extension of Time for Completing It.

BOSTON, April 4.—The Cape Cod Canal cannot be completed by June, 1914, the time required by law. Attorneys for August Belmont, who is financing the work, filed to-day in the State House a petition asking for an extension of eighteen months.

It is estimated by the engineers that the work is about 70 per cent. completed. The cost will be about $12,000,000.

CORONER'S JURY CLEARS FARRELL

His Confession Declared Invalid and Klotz Goes on Record as Bombmaker.

HERRERA FAMILY PLEASED

Husband and Daughter of Murdered Woman First to Greet Farrell on His Release.

The confession of John Paul Farrell that he made the bomb which killed Madeline Herrera in her apartment at 1,473 Fulton Avenue, the Bronx, on Feb. 2, was put in evidence before a Coroner's jury in the Bronx yesterday. The jury had assembled not only to find out officially how Mrs. Herrera came to her death, but also to establish the cause of death in the case of Henry Klotz, who, like Farrell, had confessed to having made the Herrera bomb.

From the outset there was a fight by lawyers employed by Herman Klotz, father of Henry Klotz, to clear his dead son's good name and prevent the establishment of an official record that his son was a bomb maker instead of merely an experimenter in explosives, as both father and son had claimed after the son had blown himself up by a bomb of his own manufacture in the family residence at 1,332 Fulton Avenue.

On the part of the District Attorney's office, which was represented by three assistants from Mr. Whitman's staff, a persistent effort was made to have the validity of the Klotz confession to the police established and all blame for making bombs removed from the record so far as it could apply to Farrell.

Through three hours of testimony taking the case was fought out, with the matter of the validity of the Klotz confessions to the police as a centre of bitter controversy. At the end the Coroner's jury agreed, without retiring, that the confession of Farrell was not valid and ought to be repudiated, and that the confession of Klotz was valid and was in keeping with the mass of circumstantial evidence submitted by Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty to bear it out.

After the Coroner's jury had announced its decision Coroner Jerome Healy looked out over the court-room filled with relatives and friends of those who had suffered from two of the three bomb outrages for which both Klotz and Farrell had become prisoners on a charge of homicide.

Healy Discharges Farrell.

"Will John Paul Farrell please stand up," Coroner Healy said.

Farrell, who has been in the Tombs since Feb. 2 on the charge of murdering Madeline Herrera, arose at the side of a court custodian. He had contracted rheumatism in the Tombs and could not stand erect. His clothes were ragged and his beard and hair uncombed. From all parts of the courtroom eyes were fixed on him, and there were many whispered expressions of sympathy.

Coroner Healy as he looked at Farrell could not maintain his official and formal attitude.

"I am sorry for you, Farrell," he said. "I am sorry for what you have gone through. I am sorry you were kept in so long, but the ends of justice, as the police and the District Attorney's office were trying to see that they were served, made it necessary for you to suffer as you did. I am sorry there is no way for the public to compensate you for the time you spent in prison, but there is no way to do it. Charitable and kind friends I hope will come to your aid, however, and help you out, and see that you have a good place to work.

Coroner Healy caught himself and remembered his official duty.

"The decision of the Coroner's jury is," he announced, "that John Paul Farrell is blameless as to the death of Madeline Herrera, and that she came to her death from a bomb placed in the hallway of the apartment house in which she lived by an unknown person."

The phrase "by an unknown person" brought some evident relief to the friends of Henry Klotz, as they hoped there would be no official record placing responsibility upon him, but Coroner Healy upset this hope as he turned to the matter of Klotz's death.

"The jury finds," he announced, "that in the case of Henry Klotz, the said Klotz came to his death by a bomb made by his own hands, as proved by his confession and by the evidence."

Farrell Greeted by Herreras.

As Coroner Healy concluded, Farrell limped to the railing separating those officially connected with the inquest from the spectators. A girl came forward and pressed his hand.

"It's all right, John," she said. "God is merciful to those who need His mercy."

The girl was Angelina Herrera, daughter of the woman Farrell had been charged with killing. Behind Miss Herrera came Bernardo Herrera, the former employer of Farrell, who had been severely cut by the bomb which killed his wife. Herrera shook Farrell's hand and helped him into his overcoat. He told him he had always doubted the confession, for making which he was held, and hoped he would get along all right.

While Farrell was getting this cordial reception in one corner of the court-room, the members of the Coroner's jury were surrounding Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty and Detective Captain Samuel Price of the Bronx Detective Bureau in order to obtain a close view of the gruesome exhibits. They examined especially a jagged piece of iron pipe resembling a little an Indian arrowhead, and another jagged piece of what appeared to be the same kind of pipe. One of them had been taken from the heart of Helen Taylor after she was blown up and killed by a bomb mentioned in Klotz's confession as one which he had manufactured, and the other had been taken from the body of Klotz after it had brought on blood poisoning and had thus caused his death in Fordham Hospital on March 29. The two pieces of metal had had much to do in clinching the case against Klotz in the minds of the jury.

No Mention of Rosalsky Case.

No mention was made at the inquest of the bomb which blew up the apartment of General Sessions Judge Rosalsky, and Assistant District Attorney Breckenridge was asked many questions as to the legal status of that case.

"Our work here to-day," he said, "terminates all legal procedure contemplated. We shall file the evidence and the confession of Klotz and await developments. In this Coroner's court proceedings have come to an end which would have involved the State in an expensive and complicated trial, had Klotz survived. It was a remarkable situation, for we had a case against Farrell and a case against Klotz, either one of which would have justified the hardest possible fight for a conviction. I hesitate to think of what would in all probability have happened to Farrell if Klotz had not accidentally blown himself up and thus disclosed the location of his bombmaking laboratory, with its equipment of just the kind of material used in all three of the bombs under investigation."

After most of the spectators and officials had left the Coroner's office Farrell hobbled out of the building alone and made for the office of the Prison Association, where he had been told he would receive assistance.

MARTIN DECLARED INSANE.

Breakdown of Former Hotel Man Attributed to Drink.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., April 4.—Richard Martin, formerly proprietor of the Hotel Perth, at Perth Amboy, was adjudged insane by Judge Daly this morning and committed to the State Hospital for Insane, at Trenton. This decision was reached after Dr. William Ramsay of Perth Amboy, and Dr. Cotton of the State Hospital had testified that the man was suffering from alcoholic delucions and Martin himself had taken the stand. Martin is reputed to be worth $75,000 to $100,000. He was indicted recently for keeping a disorderly resort. He ignored the advice of counsel when arraigned in court and pleaded guilty tothe charge. His brother then instituted proceedings to have him declared insane.

Dr. Ramsay, who had known him intimately for thirty years, testified that two years ago a change came over Martin. He became secluded, refused to have anything to do with his old friends, and left his family. The doctor attributed the change to excessive use of alcohol.

STANDS FIRM FOR GAYNOR.

Committee Growing, Says Lustgarten, and Soon Will Be 1,000.

William Lustgarten, the lawyer, of 28 William Street, who is back of the movement to have Mayor Gaynor renominated, said yesterday that while two members of the original committee of fourteen which was formed to further the Gaynor boom had resigned two others had immediately taken their place, and that the work of the committee was proceeding satisfactorily. The two who resigned are Henry Siegel and John R. Butler and the two selected for their places are John R. Abney, who is connected with the Franklin Typewriter Company, and Charles Steckler, the lawyer.

"Mr. Siegel and Mr. Butler simply got cold feet when Louis Annin Ames criticised our circular as an attack on District Attorney Whitman," said Mr. Lustgarten. "As a matter of fact no attack on Mr. Whitman was meant. Our organization is progressing rapidly. We have opened headquarters at 501 Fifth Avenue and letters indorsing our movement are pouring in there daily. We are receiving many offers of financial assistance. We expect to have a committee of one thousand citizens before many days. It was said that John Aitkes of Jamaica had resigned. This is not true. Mr. Adikes is an enthusiastic worker in the Gaynor cause, and is organizing Queens County in favor of the Mayor's renomination."

FINED $500 FOR GRAFTING.

Ex-Councilmen of Atlantic City Pay Up and Are Discharged.

Special to The New York Times.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., April 4.—Former Councilmen James W. Lane and William Malia of Atlantic City, who pleaded guilty to conspiracy in the concrete boardwalk grafting, exposed last Spring by William J. Burns, were fined $500 each to-day by Supreme Court Justice Samuel Kalisch. They paid the fines to Sheriff Robert H. Ingersoll and were released, sentence being suspended by the court on two other indictments for conspiracy and bribery.

Justice Kalisch made an order referring to Judge Clarence L. Cole, who made his initial appearance as Presiding Judge of the Quarter Sessions Court as Judge Higbee's successor, the trial of all remaining election fraud and gambling cases.

Attorney General Edmund Wilson was also excused by the court from appearing any further in the prosecution of special cases, that work being handed over to Prosecutor of the Pleas Charles S. Moore, who appeared for the first time in court as the successor of Clarence L. Goldenberg.

Louis Kuehnle, ex-boss of Atlantic City, who is already under sentence to one year in State prison for participating as Water Commissioner in a contract for laying a wood stave water main to Atlantic City, will be tried on an election fraud case before Judge Cole on April 22.

Director Harry Bacharach of the Atlantic City Commission will also be tried at that time. George Amole and Thomas McDevitt, the first of the old Republican "machine" to be convicted on elisor Grand Jury indictments, are included among the defendants.

MILLET ESTATE HERE, $5,016

Most of the Property of Artist Who Died on Titanic in Washington, D.C.

The property in this State of Frank D. Millet, the artist, who lost his life on the Titantic, was appraised at $5,016 in the report filed by Appraiser John T. Martin in the Surrogates' office yesterday. Mr. Millet's home was in Washington, D. C., and most of his estate was supposed to be in that city, though no estimate of it was included in the New York appraisal. He left his property to his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Millet.

The New York estate consisted of furniture and a painting in a studio at 26 West Eighth Street. The painting was sold by Mrs. Millet after her husband's death to the Free Public Library of New Bedford, Mass., for $3,000.

From THRONE AND COUNTRY:

"One of these days I am going to be the pioneer of a new profession. I shall call myself 'The Library Doctor,' and my business will be to prescribe the right books for you to read. I shall first feel your pulse, demand to inspect your tongue, make solicitous inquiries about your liver and appetite, and perform all the pantomime of Harley Street. It will be necessary, of course, to have charts. I see great possibilities here. Perhaps you need more sugar: I should prescribe a course of Mr. Maurice Hewlett's 'The Garden of Renny,' the later works of E. Temple Thurston, and Laurence Sterne in homoeopathic doses. Or it may be you need bromides, and opium to soothe you: what better medicine than a dose of E. V. Lucas or the 'O' mixture? You are slothful, and complacent, and require gentle irritation—I hastily order the library to supply you with:—Marie Corelli, 3 vols.; William Le Queux, 1 vol.; Charles Garvice, ½ vol.

"You begin, I hope, to see the infinite possibilities of my plan. Do you feel the need of a nerve tonic? Kipling, Joseph Conrad are for you. Are you perfectly normal, with heart beats and pulse beats regular, sleeping and eating with the unthinkable rameness of the well-ordered life? My chart tells me that only a slight fillip is required—shall we say Anthony Hope, Robert Hichens, and a few doses of the best romantic writers, to be taken as required, and during meals?

"But there comes a time when you may be well physically, and yet ill at ease within yourself, when you feel that all books that do not treat of the actualities of life fail to hold your interest; when you cannot attune your mind either to romance or idealism, and your soul cries for a book that is real, that reflects something of the life you have lived yourself. I prescribe the novels of H. G. Wells and Arnold Bennett, and sometimes the meaner medicine of their followers—and I prescribe also a remarkable book I have just read called Life.

"A bold title!

"What manner of writer is this who has the hardihood to label two hundred and eighty-three pages of print with one of the three greatest words in the world? Life, Love, Death—they have been the themes of a million books through the dead centuries, and yet here is one book that arrogates to itself the all-sweeping title of Life. Its author is Mr. W. B. Trites, whose former book, 'JOHN CAVE,' I know only by rumor, and by the extracts from press notices which face the title page of this book. And having read Life, I am ready to believe the critics who acclaim Mr. Trites as a genius. It is curiously Russian in treatment and method, even to the light of hope and endeavor that shines persistently through the grey clouds of pessimism."

A Railroad Trip that Rests You

There is a sense of perfect comfort on Lehigh Valley trains, New York to Buffalo, Niagara Falls and the West, that invites relaxation.

The appointments of the cars are luxuriously restful. The stone-ballasted roadway makes smooth, easy riding. The thoughtful attentions of unobtrusive attendants is restful. The sweep of the scenery along the Lehigh river, the views through the mountains—the Switzerland of America—the swift rush of the train through the beautiful valley of the Susquehanna, all these help to make this trip too short and one to be remembered for its variety of pleasures.

"Crowned" by the French Academy as "A DARINGLY ORIGINAL NOVEL"

The Fear of Living

By HENRY BORDEAUX

Translated from the French, "La Peur de Vivre," (74th edition) by RUTH HELEN DAVIS

$1.35 net. Postpaid, $1.46.

M. RENÉ DOUMIC declares:

"It is one of the best novels that has appeared for a long time. It contrasts, by its vivid originality, with everything that the story-tellers of to-day give us. It is a new and daring departure."

THE SECRET of its great popularity in France is its picture of the life which has made France "a weary nation," as compared with the young and vigorous United States. Read its Preface.

HOLD W. J. LEEHAN FOR TURNER MURDER

Result of a Year's Work on Killing of Woman Two Years Ago in Lakewood.

SAID TO BE M. J. MORIARITY

Prisoner Employed for a Time as Private Secretary to Mrs. E. M. Horne.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., April 4.—William J. Leehan, whose real name is said to be Moriarity, will be arraigned on Thursday, April 10, on the charge of murdering Mrs. Caroline Turner here two years ago.

After spending a sleepless night Leehan faced the committing Magistrate apparently in perfect control of himself. Leehan was brought into court handcuffed to the Sheriff. After reading the complaint to him Magistrate Searing announced he would set the hearing for next Thursday, and in a few minutes the formal commitment papers were made out and Leehan walked back with Sheriff Tilton to the jail.

The bearing of the prisoner since his arrest has varied. Immediately after the warrant was served he shrieked:

"I don't know anything about that Turner murder."

During the ride from Fort Lee to Tom's River the Turner murder seemed to be uppermost in his thoughts. After arriving at the jail, however, he became apparently calm and remained so until after the preliminary hearing. Then for a while he became excited, but later cooled down.

Prosecutor Newman spent the day in rounding up some of the loose threads of evidence in Lakewood. The entire investigation was carried on with the greatest secrecy and the news of Leehan's arrest came as a great surprise to the village.

While he was here he was employed by a number of the cottagers, among them Alexander C. Soper and Mrs. E. M. Horne. He was Mrs. Horne's private secretary for several years, this being the last place he held before leaving here.

Immediately after the murder Leehan was one of those suspected, and it was made known to-day that the detectives had been working on this line for almost eleven months, practically since Prosecutor Newman assumed office. No attempt was made to put Leehan through the "third degree." The prosecutor, in fact, left Tom's River early in the morning and left Leehan in the care of his jailers.

The arrest has revived discussion of the murder, which occurred under atrocious circumstances. The body was found with the skull partly crushed, the face lacerated, and a huge pine trunk that apparently could only have been wielded by a giant, lying near, with blood stains covering it. The detectives at first could not find any apparent motive for the crime, and although several false starts were made, responsibility for the outrage was not fastened upon any one.

The entire case was gone over thoroughly before this arrest was made. Two witnesses have been found who saw Leehan enter the path where the murder occurred within a few minutes of the time the murdered woman was last seen there.

Leehan was one of the first suspects. Soon after he became ill and for a long time he was kept from seeing anybody. Immediately after this he left Lakewood.

Leehan, during his stay here, was known as a heavy drinker, and his habits were the cause of his failure to hold a job for any length of time.

MANCHESTER, N. H., April 4.—The "W. J. Leehan" arrested at Tom's River, N. J., charged with the murder of Mrs. Charles L. Turner, is believed to be Michael J. Moriarity, Jr., who formerly made his home here with two aunts, Hannah and Catherine Leehan.

Moriarity is 35 years old. His mother died in New York about twenty years ago, soon after the family arrived there from Ireland. The father, who is a brick and tile layer, still lives in New York. Moriarity was a messenger at the Amoskeag National Bank here from 1894 until 1897, when he went to Boston, where he was employed in newspaper work.

Later he went to New York and worked for an incandescent light concern on Murray Street. His health failed and on the advice of his physician he went to Lakewood, N. J., where he opened an office as a public stenographer, and thus was engaged when he first met Mrs. E. H. Horne, by whom he was employed as private secretary.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 4.—Mrs. Leehan, the wife of the man arrested for the murder of Mrs. Turner at Lakewood, said to-day that she knew nothing of the crime. Leehan and his wife and young son Bradley lived in poorly furnished rooms at 8 South Lexington Avenue. Leehan worked here for a time as a stenographer for John J. Ackerman, a lawyer.

Mrs. Leehan said to-day that she was destitute and was anxious to ascertain the address of Leehan's father, so that she could appeal to him for aid.

REPUDIATES ARSON STORY.

Fink Has Not Confessed to Setting Fire Here, Prosecutor Says.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 4.—Replying to questions from THE TIMES correspondent, Prosecutor Johnston said to-day that, despite published reports about the confession of Fink, the so-called "Chief Fierbug of the Arson Trust," Fink's confession at South Bend, Ind., now in his possession, contained no such statement as that he had caused the fire in Israel Gitenstein's shirt factory, at 12 White Street, New York, last Summer.

Reports from South Bend have had it that Fink in his confession mentioned this fire as among those he had set, by arrangement with certain fire adjusters, and Mr. Gitenstein, proprietor of the factory, has indignantly denied that this was ever possible. Prosecutor Johnston said to-day:

"Fink's confession at South Bend, as a matter of fact, has never been given to the press. The South Bend correspondents, in my opinion, merely guessed at its contents. J. B. Engel, counsel for Mr. Gitenstein, has been to Chicago and asked me if Fink had made any confession regarding Gitenstein's fire, and I told him this. I myself have never questioned Fink about the Gitenstein fire, because I am not interested in that matter."

$20,000 for Flower Show Prizes.

Judging at the International Flower Show in the New Grand Central Palace will begin at 2 o'clock this afternoon and the awards will be posted when the doors are opened to the public at 6 o'clock. On Sunday and every day thereafter for a week the doors will be open from 11 A. M. until 11 P. M. To-day's classes will be of stand displays by florists and from private greenhouses, and will include a wide range of ornamental plants. About 150,000 varieties of flowers in bloom, palms and plants are entered for the $20,000 offered in trophies or cash as prizes in the 600 classes to be judged.

BRONX COUNTY GRAB BILL IS ANALYZED

Max S. Grifenhagen Checks Up Stilwell Measure as Spelling $1,473,154.

NO NEED OF A NEW LAW

Register Points Out That Same Plan Followed When Nassau County Was Formed Will Do.

If Senate Bill No. 1,324, introduced by Senator Stephen J. Stilwell of the Bronx, which has passed the Senate and is now in the Assembly, passes that body and is signed by Gov. Sulzer, the people of the newly-created County of the Bronx will find that the pleasure of footing a bill of about $1,500,000 will have been thrust upon them by the government at Albany. The bill as introduced by Senator Stilwell, provides for the appointment of a Commissioner of Records for Bronx County, whose duty as stated in the bill will be the "depositing in the office of the Register of Bronx County certified copies of the records of the County of New York affecting title to real estate now within the County of Bronx, and for filing in the office of the Register of the County of Bronx certified copies of maps now on file in the office of the Register of New York County, showing real property now in the County of Bronx.

A few days ago Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward J. McGoldrick wrote to Register Max S. Grifenhagen and asked him to look over the Stilwell bill and transmit to him his opinion of the measure. Mr. Grifenhagen did so, and as he studied the document as it had passed the Senate he became more and more interested, particularly after he found out that the estimated approximate expense that would be entailed on the taxpayers of Bronx County would total $1,473,154, a sum which Mr. Grifenhagen said in his reply to Mr. McGoldrick, "was so great in amount that it led me to a study of the matter."

The salaries that would have to be paid during the remaining nine months of this year, Mr. Grifenhagen ascertained, would amount to more than $40,000, while the typewriters that would be needed to print what the Stilwell bill calls for would total $29,000 more.

Present Laws Sufficient.

Mr. Grifenhagen also found out that the bill was not needed, and that the work it called for could be accomplished under existing laws at very small expense to the people of the Bronx.

Speaking of his investigation of the Stilwell bill Mr. Grifenhagen said yesterday that he preferred not to express any opinion other than those contained in his letter to Mr. McGoldrick. Section 6 of the bill, it may be mentioned, was considered very interesting reading by some of the attaches of Mr. Grifenhagen's office, and in his letter to Mr. McGoldrick. Mr. Grifenhagen says the method proposed is without precedent in the history of this city. This is Section 6:

Section 6. The Commissioner of Records of the County of Bronx may accept the certificate and certification of records referred to in the foregoing sections of any title insurance, abstract, or searching companies, organized and doing business under the laws of this State and shall be entitled to contract to pay for the same and forwarding each certified copy required by this act, an amount not exceeding the legal charge per folio or the legal charge for recording like instruments in the office of the Register of the County of New York, excluding, however, the statutory penalty for long forms. And he shall be entitled to contract for making and certifying and forwarding each certified copy of a map and index required to be made and forwarded by this act.

The Commissioner of Records of the County of Bronx shall contract for and provide all of the volumes and books required by this act. All the expenses of this act shall be borne and paid by the County of Bronx and shall be raised, levied, and collected in the same manner as other expenses which are by law a charge upon said county. Upon the presentation to the Controller of the City of New York of any bill provided for in this act approved by the Commissioner of Records of the County of Bronx, said Controller of the City of New York shall pay the amount of such bill, including maps, indexes, records, and other expenses, rent, salaries of Commissioner of Records, chief clerk and assistants. The Controller without concurrence of any other board or body, shall, and is hereby authorized to issue special revenue bonds of said city to provide the means necessary to pay the same.

The letter of Mr. Grifenhagen to Mr. McGoldrick was written on Thursday of this week. On the same day the Register wrote to Deputy Comptroller Douglas Mathewson an answer to an inquiry of Mr. Mathewson as to the amount of expenditures the bill would involve in the event it became law. The compilation as requested by Mr. Mathewson is on six sheets, and for convenience each sheet is referred to by a separate number and deals with some specific section of the Stilwell bill.

Provides for 35 Salaries.

The first sheet has to do with salaries, there being thirty-five salaried positions provided for in the bill, including a Commissioner of Records to be appointed by Mr. Grifenhagen, but who becomes independent of the Registrar of New York County the moment he is appointed to the position. All the salaries as given are for nine months. That of the Commissioner is $4,500, the first and second assistants $3,600 and $2,700 respectively, the chief clerk $2,250, the secretary $1,800, twenty-five clerks and examiners $22,500, three orderlies $2,025 and two laborers $1,080.

Sheet No. 2 gives the figures for supplying certified copies of Westchester County instruments which would require 374 Libers of Conveyances and Mortgages at $541 each, making a total of $202,334, and thirty-nine Libers of Discharges of Mortgages at $635 each, the total of which is $24,765, making a grand total for Sheet No. 2 of $227,099.

Sheet No. 3 has to do with certified copies of records covering the period from 1874 to 1891 affecting the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Wards. To carry out this provision the total number of folios necessary would be about 2,000,000, these 2,000,000 folios necessitating 200 Conveyance Libers at $525 each and 300 Mortgage Libers at $515 each, the total amount involved being $259,500.

Sheet No. 4 gives the figures for supplying certified copies of records from 1891 to date, the number of folios required being about 4,949,000, or about 1,249 libers, containing each 4,000 typewritten folios and approximately 180 instruments. These libers would cost $517 each, and the total amount of money that would be required to carry out this provision would be $641,090.

Sheet No. 5 concerns certified copies of discharges of mortgages and miscellaneous libers covering the period from 1874 to date. Each liber would cost $765, and the total amount to be expended would be $141,520.

Sheet No. 6 refers to the maps of which certified copies of which about 2,500 will be required, necessitating an expenditure of approximately $125,000. Here is the recapitulation:

Sheet No. 1	$78,935
Sheet No. 2	227,099
Sheet No. 3	259,500
Sheet No. 4	641,080
Sheet No. 5	141,320
Sheet No. 6	125,000
Grand total	$1,473,154

In his letter to Assistant Corporation Counsel McGoldrick, Register Griffenhagen gives in detail the result of his study of the proposed Stilwell law.

After giving the approximate expense the bill would entail, which, as stated, would be nearly $1,500,000, Register Grifenhagen gives the outline of plans which, if adopted, he believes, will greatly reduce the proposed expenditure, if not to practically avoid it.

Takes Nassau as an Example.

"The first plan I propose," Mr. Grifenhagen says in his report to Mr. McGoldrick, "is that which was followed in the creation of Nassau County, when the old records relating to real estate in the area of that county were continued in the office of the Register of Queens County, while the Nassau County records were to comprise only those instruments which were to be recorded after the date of the erection of the new county; under this plan, which would avoid all present expense to the County of the Bronx, all the records pertaining to real estate now in Bronx County would remain in this office, and after Jan. 1 next all instruments relating to real estate in that county would be recordable in the office of the Register of Bronx County.

"The alternative plan is that the County of New York furnish to the County of the Bronx all original records, certified records, original maps, and certified maps pertaining to real estate in Bronx County not required for the business of the office of the Register of New York County as delimited by the erection of Bronx County, compensation for which, if any, shall be determined by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the City of New York, and also that certified copies of all other instruments and maps pertaining to real estate in Bronx County, with such exceptions as are hereinafter indicated, shall be furnished by the Register of New York County to the Register of Bronx County at a price for which such work can be done, to be fixed by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the City of New York, which board should also receive the power to waive the statutory fees for the certifications of such instruments."

The Stilwell bill, it was said yesterday, comes up for consideration in the Assembly early next week.

VETERAN SHERIFF ON TRIAL.

Maine Man, 30 Years in Office, Faces Impeachment Inquiry.

AUGUSTA, Me., April 4.—John W. Ballou, 80 years old, and for thirty years Sheriff of Sagadahoc County, appeared at a joint session of the Legislature to-day to answer the charge that he had failed to enforce the prohibitory law.

The hearing was the first in the impeachment proceedings directed at the Sheriffs of five counties and one County Attorney. Sheriff Ballou appeared at the State House smiling and said that he had no idea of resigning under fire. He said he was sure that the people who had elected him year after year had confidence in him.

The others who will be tried are Sheriffs Moulton of Cumberland County, Tolman of Knox County, W. Emerson of Penobscot County, and Lowe of Androscoggin County, and County Attorney William H. Hines of Androscoggin County.

20,000 Books of Permanent Worth
Half and Under Half Their Published Prices
Extraordinary Event at Loeser's Today

A Book Sale of tremendous and far-reaching interest is announced this morning; a disposal of many thousands of volumes from publishers of standard literature at low prices that will seem hardly credible.

But this Store has become, through its very large outlet, a sort of clearing house for publishers' remainders, surplus stocks and ends of editions. The collection ready for today includes a wide variety of Books on Art, Science, Natural History, Travel, Music and Drama, Biography, Belles Lettres, etc. All are cloth bound, unless otherwise stated. All are original editions.

Private Library of the Late J. F. Poole Actor-Manager of the Old Bowery Theater

THIS is a library of about a thousand volumes collected by Mr. Poole during his lifetime and peculiarly rich in books that are now very hard to get. Many books concerning the theater; a fine group of books relating to Ireland, American history and biography, etc.

It is one of the choicest small libraries we have yet had to dispose of, and though many have asked the privilege of selection before the general sale this morning the library will be intact and with all the choicest books here when the store opens today. Just a few among the choice titles are listed:

Lamb's New York, 1877, 2 vols., ½ calf, $10.
Hall's Ireland, 3 vols., $10.

J. J. MURPHY ESTATE VALUED AT $91,731

High Appraisal of Shares of Contracting Company of Tammany Leader's Brother.

REPORTED RECENT LOSSES

Secretary Testified It Had No Good-Will Because Business Depended Upon "Personality."

John J. Murphy, brother of Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, left an estate of $91,731, according to an appraisal by Transfer Tax Appraiser John T. Martin. The largest holding of the estate was 47½ shares of the stock of the New York Contracting and Trucking Company, valued at $35,431 on an appraisal of $645 a share. Among the assets of the estate was a check of Charles F. Murphy for $7,500.

According to the examination of one of the stock experts who reported to Appraiser Martin, the New York Contracting and Trucking Company had no good-will, because its business depended upon "personality" and upon bidding for contracts. The value put upon the stock of this company, $100 par, and $645 in the appraisal, was a subject of comment in the Surrogates' office yesterday, because of its apparent liberality in the face of a statement under oath by Frederick R. Killeen, the company's Secretary.

Mr. Killeen's statement showed that the company had lost about $10,000 a year for the three years before Mr. Murphy's death, and that its assets were only $75,000 above its liabilities. This was the statement:

ASSETS.

Cash	$100
Outstanding accounts	5,556
Gansevoort Bank	23
Fifth National Bank	1,008
Building 515-521 East Seventeenth Street	200,000
Plant—Dumping boards, Seventy-ninth and Ninety-sixth Streets	4,000
Scows	20,000
Estate of J. J. Murphy	438
Total assets	$231,722

LIABILITIES.

Accounts due to creditors	$2,134
Mortgages on Seventeenth Street building	150,000
Notes payable	5,000
Total liabilities	$157,134

STATEMENT OF PROFIT AND LOSS.

1900, loss	$17,432.08
1910, profit	1,730.02
1911, profit	5,949.83

Mr. Murphy died Sept. 21, 1911. His will was dated the previous June 26. James E. Gaffney and Richard J. Couch were witnesses. Under this will his estate was distributed, $10,000 to his sister, Margaret Cray, and $27,243.33 each to his children, Mary A., William J. and Katherine C. Murphy. His funeral expenses were $2,669.25, which included $1,000 for a monument and $425 for a stained glass church window. His debts amounted to $27,749.34. Charles F. Murphy was sole executor of the will, and was represented by George E. Weller of 47 Cedar Street as his attorney.

Mr. Murphy's total equity in real estate was $27,700. In connection with William P. Kennealy and Dr. John E. Herrity, he held a one-third interest in various parcels of Brooklyn realty, in which his interest was $17,200. He also owned a house at Juniper Street and Jamaica Avenue, Flatbush, worth $1,200; a house at Belle Harbor, Rockaway Park, worth $3,500; the property at 204 East Twenty-second Street, worth $12,500, but encumbered with a $10,000 mortgage, and a lot at Seventy-ninth Street and Nineteenth Avenue, Brooklyn, in the Morris Park section, worth $6,200, but encumbered with a $5,000 mortgage.

Among Mr. Murphy's personal property was jewelry appraised at $525, but not itemized. His automobile was valued at $2,200. His life insurance was $12,100, and he held mortgages of the New York Contracting and Trucking Company for $25,000.

Besides his stock in the contracting and trucking company he held 150 shares of Rock Island valued at $3,421.25, 500 shares of the Palmer Union Oil Company valued at $237.50, and a few shares appraised as of no value.

PURPOSES TO STOP DUELS.

Sing Sing Sentence for Bertuglio Aimed at "Code of Honor."

Adherents of the code of honor, which calls for the settling of human differences by the parties adjourning to some vacant field and shooting at each other, received a setback yesterday from Judge Burt J. Humphrey when he sentenced Giovanni Bertuglio, a hotel keeper, of 174 Meserole Avenue, Brooklyn, to not less than two nor more than four years' imprisonment in Sing Sing, in the Queens County Court. Bertuglio was convicted on an indictment charging him with assault in having fired two bullets into Francesco Salli. The duel occurred on Dec. 29, 1912, when Salli was found lying in a field while Bertuglio was making his escape. Two pistols were found at the scene of the shooting.

Ex-Judge Palimeri, who defended Bertuglio, said the man had fought a duel, and he wanted the conviction set aside on the ground that his client should have been indicted for dueling and not for assault. In sentencing Bertuglio Judge Humphrey admitted that the evidence showed the men probably had fought a duel, and in sending Bertuglio to jail he proposed to discourage others from resorting to the code of honor within the limits of Queens County. Following the sentence he granted a certificate of reasonable doubt and Bertuglio was released on $3,000 bail pending his appeal from the conviction. It is said the two men fought over money matters.

Albert Wangler's Estate.

Albert Wangler, ex-cashier of the College Point Bank, who died in Flushing on July 13, 1910, accoring to affidavits filed with Philip Frank, Transfer Tax Appraiser for Queens, held title to real estate in Queens worth $93,150. Loans amounting to $3,682 were due him, and he owed $48,182.

TROOPS CALLED OUT IN AUBURN STRIKE

Militia Company Routs Rioters After Police Have Wounded Four Persons.

ONE VICTIM IS A GIRL

Strikers Throw Salt in Policemen's Eyes and Get Volley of Lead In Return.

AUBURN, April 4.—State troops are on guard to-night over the plants affected by the twine workers' strike, following a day of rioting, in which the police fired a volley into a mob, seriously wounding four persons, one of them a girl.

The shooting occurred near the Columbian Rope Company's plant this morning. Between 200 and 300 strikers gathered in that quarter of the city and renewed the rioting that they began several days ago. They rushed the police, who drew their revolvers and fired a round over the heads of the strikers. As the fighting continued, the police fired another volley into the crowd. Six were said to have been hit. Four were picked up and taken to the City Hospital. They are:

Pedro Juskiw, shot through shoulder and chest; Adam Jzonkey, shot through body; Louis Medisolc, shot in knee; Annie Kernoff, 17 years old, shot in back and chest.

The strikers re-formed and made another attack while the wounded were being taken to the hospital. They obtained bags of salt and threw it into the eyes of the policemen, who finally took refuge inside the mill gates.

The strikers continued in an ugly mood until Mayor O'Neill decided to ask for the aid of the militia. He had a conference with Capt. Frederick S. Johnston of Company M, Third Regiment, and the riot call was sounded. Soon the company was assembled at the State Armory.

An attack was made on the International Harvester mills while the police were concentrated in the west end of the city. A militia detachment was rushed to the scene, and the strikers were dispersed.

The arrest of Maria Saveria Peluso caused the rioting this morning. The police reported that they found in her possession two pouches filled with what appeared to be salt. The salt is being analyzed, the police contending that it contains some corrosive liquid which burns clothing and blisters the skin.

Mayor O'Neill has called a conference of the employers and strike leaders. It will be held to-morrow, when William C. Rogers, State Mediator, arrives in Auburn.

NO TAXABLE AMES ASSETS.

Surrogate Fowler Signs Order Correcting Transfer Tax Report.

An order correcting the transfer tax report on the estate of Oliver Ames, a resident of Massachusetts, who died on Oct. 22, 1895, was signed yesterday by Surrogate Fowler. The Surrogate decides that there are no assets taxable in New York and that the appraiser erred in valuing the New York property at $94,241.82.

The question involved was whether certain stocks given as collateral for loans totaling $1,000,000 were taxable. A large part of the securities were foreign ones and the executors contended that only Northern Pacific bonds and stock of the General Electric Company, the total value of which was $389,434, were "property in New York State for the purpose of transfer taxation." "Offsetting this property," the executors argued, "is debts due to residents of New York, which total $1,000,000." This contention the Surrogate upholds.

"SAFETY DAY" IN SCHOOLS.

Children Warned of Dangers from Matches, Wires, and Gas.

It was "Safety Day" in the public schools yesterday. At 2 P. M. each of the teachers read to the pupils a paper on "Safety and Caution" which had been prepared by the American Museum of Safety. This was done in accordance with a circular sent by City Supt. Maxwell to the Principals of all the schools in the five boroughs.

The children were told of the agencies of civilization, such as fire, electricity, and gas, and of the dangers from trolley cars, &c. They were told that annually 7,000 persons were killed in fires throughout the country and about $200,000,000 worth of property was destroyed. Among the safety rules laid down were the following:

Never buy any except safety matches. Never allow matches to lie around loose. Never use matches to light dark closets or cellars. Never light matches in a place where there is waste paper or rubbish. Never throw lighted matches anywhere. Never allow a lighted match to lie on the floor or street; step on it and put it out at once. Never carry matches loose in the clothing. Never play with matches.

The children were also warned against the danger of live wires in the streets and against some of the dangers of the use of gas for lighting and cooking.

The Times Acknowledges Receipt.

Contributions received by THE TIMES yesterday for the flood sufferers' fund were: $2 from the Young People's Society of the Emanuel Baptist Church and $1 from "S. C. S." Both contributions have been turned over to Jacob H. Schiff, Treasurer of the New York State branch of the American Red Cross Society.

THE TIMES also received a contribution of $10 from Mrs. L. S. W. to assist Hyman Wiener of 97 Goerck Street. Mr. Wiener, who is elderly, and his three children had after months of self-denial, succeeded in saving $97 with which to bring the grandfather here from Russia. The night before the day the money was to be sent Mr. Wiener was robbed of the $97 by three men.

CALL COLD STORAGE A BOON TO PUBLIC

System Defended at Social Science Discussion of High Cost of Living.

"STOPS FOOD SHORTAGES"

Abram I. Elkus Describes New Factory Laws at Philadelphia Meeting.

PHILADELPHIA, April 4.—Political and household economists, sociologists, investigators, and others who have studied the wants of human beings began a two days' discussion to-day on "The Cost of Living" at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

Cold storage warehouses were hotly defended at the afternoon session, when F. G. Urner and Frank A. Horns of New York were called to the platform. They declared that the practice of storing commodities in cold storage warehouses was a benefit to the public, because it prevented shortages of food and excessive prices. As an example, both said that through the storage of butter and eggs the people had been able to buy those commodities at reasonable prices all last Winter. Their remarks were called forth by a paper read by Mary E. Pennington of Philadelphia, who said that an examination of cold storage chickens showed that they compared favorably with fresh killed birds.

Mrs. Elmer Black of New York advocated establishing a modern municipal market system in every American city.

Mrs. Robert W. Bruere of New York said that the home of the average American family consisting of five members could not be run on less than $1,200 a year.

Abram I. Elkus, representing the New York State Factory Investigating Commission, described the investigations made by that body and the legislation it had recommended. His subject was "Social Investigation and Social Legislation." He denounced haphazard investigation and ill-considered legislation.

"Of the thirty-two bills submitted by the commission, the most important are those providing for a thorough reorganization of the State Labor Department," said Mr. Elkus. "This is creative legislation; it provides the machinery whereby the other recommendations of the commission may be carried into effect. It has become a law, having been passed by the Legislature and signed by the Governor. The Legislature has extended the time of the commission for one year and instructed it to inquire into the wages of labor in all industries and employments and the conditions under which labor is carried on throughout the State, and into the advisability of fixing minimum rates of wages.

"Of the remaining bills the majority have already received the signature of the Governor and become law, such as the fire prevention bills; the bill in relation to the housing of factory employes; the bill providing for a physical examination of children employed in factories, and the cancellation of their employment certificates in case of physical unfitness; the bill preventing night work on the part of women; that providing for sanitary conditions in factories; and, finally, the bills for lessening the danger to life and health in the dangerous trades."

Prof. Simon N. Patten, touching on the various vice investigations in different parts of the country, said that vice was not so much a question of the wages a girl receives as of the girl's being allowed independent control of what she earned.

TO RENEW EATON INQUEST.

State, It Is Assumed, Has Not Completed Case Against Widow.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 4.—The announcement by District Attorney Barker of Plymouth County to-day that the inquest into the death of Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton was to be resumed indicated that the State has not fully made out its case against the accused widow.

"There is much in this case that the public doesn't know," Mr. Barker is reported to have said. The inquest was halted abruptly when Mrs. Eaton was arrested on the charge of murder, on March 20.

The authorities wish to learn the identity of a light-haired man who has visited the Eaton home twice this week and is supposed to have talked with the widow's mother and two daughters.

June Ainsworth Keyes, the elder daughter, has moved all her belongings to the house in Assinippi from her flat in Medford.

Efforts are being made by detectives to ascertain the address on a bulky letter which Mrs. Eaton, on the Sunday before the inquest, gave to a messenger to be mailed. It was addressed to a number in Broadway, New York. The messenger remembers nothing more about it.

Mrs. Eaton apparently is the least perturbed prisoner in Plymouth Jail. She occupies herself daily in making notes to be used in her defense. Occasionally she does fancy work, which her daughters took to her on their visit.

ALDERMAN DAVIS LOSES.

Appellate Court Deaf to His Appeal from Conviction for Extortion.

The Appellate Division dismissed yesterday the appeal of Percy L. Davis, a former Alderman, from a conviction for extortion. Davis was convicted with Eben J. Owen, a Tombs missionary, of forcing Mrs. Eva B. Carroll to sign a check for $5,000 after threatening that they would participate in having a criminal charge lodged against her son. The episode followed the arrest of Viola Dawson, a girl in the employ of Mrs. Carroll, for forging her employer's name to a $25 check.

According to Davis and Owen, the girl would have become complainant against Mrs. Carroll's son unless Mrs. Carroll signed the check. In dismissing Davis's appeal the Appellate Division characterized as futile his explanation of the transaction, which was that it was in Mrs. Carroll's interest.

OFFERS RAILWAY TO STATE.

Grand Trunk Wishes Rhode Island to Finish Extension.

PROVIDENCE, April 4.—President Chamberlin of the Grand Trunk Railway, in a letter received by Gov. Pothier to-day, offers to turn over to Rhode Island the Southern New England Railway as it stands as an inalienable gift, on condition that the State shall complete the road and operate it in one of two ways which the writer suggests. The alternatives are set forth as follows:

If the State desires to operate the railroad we will grant running rights on reasonable terms over the New London Northern from Palmer to Brattleboro, Vt., so as to make the line sufficiently long to constitute an operating division, and we will also make a traffic agreement between the Central Vermont and the State-owned railroad for a division of through rates on a mileage basis, with a reasonable additional allowance for terminal charges.

Or the Central Vermont will lease the State-owned railroad for a rental equivalent to 5 per cent. interest on the actual cost to the State of completing the whole line.

Mr. Chamberlin explains the line cannot be completed by the company unless the State becomes the second guarantor of the necessary bonds, and that if the State is unwilling to accept the road as a gift and complete it, the line will be abandoned definitely this month. He says almost $2,500,000 has been expended on the line, and its completion requires several millions more than was estimated.

The services of the Grand Trunk engineers are offered to the State, which also would receive all plans, surveys and other data used by the company. If the State does not wish to accept the offer, it is asked to consider the earlier request to guarantee the company's bonds.

HARRY M. COUDREY GUILTY.

Ex-Representative and Associate Convicted of Misusing the Mails.

ST. OLUIS, April 4.—Representative Harry M. Coudrey and Harry B. Gardner were found guilty in the Federal District Court to-day of using the United States mails for fraudulent purposes.

The charge against Coudrey and Gardner grew out of the promotion of what was known as the twin Insurance companies—the Continental Life Assurance Company of America and the International Assurance Company of America. Both companies went into the hands of a receiver.

Coudrey represented the Twelfth Missouri District in Congress in 1909-11. Recently he has been living in New York City.

SEIZE IMPROPER BOOKS.

Former Officer in Italian Army Held in $7,500 Bail.

Chief William Offley and special agents of the Department of Justice yesterday raided a tenement house in Thirty-eighth Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, and seized two tons of improper pictures and books, which filled three large trunks, four big barrels and several suit cases. According to Assistant District Attorney Walker the place has been for years a wholesale depot for the distribution of such matter through the country.

In order to avoid the law against sending such matter through the mails, it was the practice, Mr. Walker said yesterday, to forward packages of it by express to distant places, and until a recent amendment of the Interstate Commerce Act had been pased they were free from Federal interference.

Camille Nicholas, an ex-officer of the Italian army, was arrested by Capt. Craft as the principal in this business. He has been indicted and was arraigned before Judge Mayer. He was held in $7,500 bail and in default of security was committed to the Tombs. He used to make arrangements for the sale of the books and pictures, the Federal officials say, in a near-by table-d'hote.

GET SUBWAY PICKPOCKETS.

82 Arrests Made Since July, 1911—Majority by Interborough.

Criticisms having been made of the number of cases in which pickpockets had been caught operating in the Subway, Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough, gave out a statement yesterday of the number of arrests which had been made in the last few months by the employes of the company.

From July 1, 1911, he said, to March 17, 1912, thirty-four alleged pickpockets were arrested by the special policemen of the Interborough. Of these, twenty-six were sent to prison for sentences varying from one to twelve years; the Grand Jury refused to indict four, and four were acquitted. From March, 1912, to yesterday twenty-three were arrested, of whom seventeen were convicted, three were discharged, while the cases of the others have not been decided. In addition, the police records show that another twenty-five were arrested by the regular police on the technical charge of jostling and were sent to the Workhouse for terms varying from one to six months, and in a few cases were fined $10 each.

JOHNS HEARING ENDS.

Wife, Asking Separation, Says Husband Attacked Her with Iron Toy.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 4.—Justice Tompkins took final testimony to-day behind closed doors here in the action brought by Catherine S. Johns against Henry Ward Johns, both wealthy residents of Ardsley Park, for separation and alimony. The action was first begun in New York and later was transferred to Westchester County. There are two children, Henry Ward Johns, Jr., and Ward Hitchcock Johns.

Mrs. Johns alleges in her affidavit that Johns is a stockholder and one of the founders of the Yellow Taxicab Company of New York City, that he owns the home and fourteen acres in Ardsley, which she says is worth $75,000; that he sold his interest in the Johns-Manville Company five years ago for $125,000, and that he still gets an income from that concern for the use of his name, that he has United States Steel stock which is alone sufficient to keep him, and that he has an insurance policy for $30,000 payable when he is 50 years old.

The plaintiff alleges cruel and inhuman treatment and says her husband neglected to provide for her. Mrs. Johns says on one occasion she asked her husband for car fare to go to New York, and he knocked her down the stairs. She says that in March, while at dinner, her husband tried to brain her with an iron toy and she jumped from a window to escape injury. She was in evening dress, she says, and her husband ordered the servants to lock the doors, refusing to admit her. She finally crawled through a cellar window, and got into a coal bin. The servants told Johns, and he allowed her to go to her room.

Mrs. Johns says she was forced to eat at a separate table with her husband's aunt, while Johns and the children ate at another table where Johns drank highballs, cocktails, and champagne in the presence of the children.

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL ASSAILS CHURCHILL

Miss Winslow Resents His Rebuke Because She Addressed Teachers in Opposition to McKee Bills.

SPOKE IN SCHOOL BUILDING

Board of Education President Told Her She Could Not Influence Legislation in Her Official Capacity.

Miss Margaret S. Winslow, Principal of Public School 140, which stands at Sixtieth Street, near Fourth Avenue, in Brooklyn, has taken exception to a rebuke administered to her by President Thomas W. Churchill of the Board of Education, because she spoke to her teachers in the noon recess one day against the McKee bills.

These bills were introduced in the Legislature by Assemblyman McKee. They lessen the present power of the Board of Superintendents and increase the power of the Board of Education. Among other things, they authorize the Board of Education to plan a course of study independently of the Board of Superintendents, to appoint additional District Superintendents without nomination by the Board of Superintendents, and to conduct investigations of public school conditions.

"In view of the treatment which I have received from Mr. Churchill," Miss Winslow said yesterday, "I cannot but wonder how much sincerity there is in his professions of open-mindedness upon questions which affect the schools. Just before the Spring vacation the Interborough Association of Women Principals sent circulars to the schools throughout the city, requesting Principals and teachers to write to the Governor, Senators, and Assemblymen, urging the passage of the McKee bills. I am not in favor of those bills, as I believe they would work serious harm to the schools. I have as much right to my opinion as the Interborough Association has to its opinion.

"As the quickest way of reaching my teachers, I asked them to meet me for a few minutes in the noon hour. I told them they were free to act as they chose, but I wished them to hear my views. I spoke briefly on each of the statements made in the Interborough Association's circular. I closed my address by saying:

No doubt you feel as I do that you owe a great deal to the Interborough Association, but we owe a great deal to the school system of the city. It should be our earnest desire to see that we do nothing which may injure our schools.

"On Saturday I was summoned to Mr. Churchill's office. I had not the slightest idea why I had been called, so when I entered the office I extended my hand cordially to him. He remained seated, and in a tone and manner which I considered offensive demanded to know why I had attempted to influence legislation while acting in my official capacity. He asked why I had not hired a hall if I wished to influence legislation and wanted to know what right I had to take the school time to discuss matters of legislation. I told him I believed I had a right to express my opinion to my teachers upon any matter of school policy. He said that as a Principal I had no such right. I told him that I understood from what I had read in the papers that he desired a full and free discussion of all important questions affecting the schools. He answered curtly that he thought he had made himself clear and that he had nothing further to say to me.

"Mr. Churchill knows that for years the practice of influencing legislation has been carried on in the schools. He must know that it was done throughout the equal-pay fight; he knows that literature intended to influence legislation is sent through the schools constantly. He has administered no rebuke to those who do this, yet he has rebuked me because I, as Principal, thought fit to express my opinions verbally to my teachers. If this be a sample of the treatment we are to receive at the hands of the reformers, then may we speedily be delivered from them."

President Churchill said last evening that for the present he would not reply to Miss Winslow's comments upon his action in regard to her. Abraham Stern, Chairman of the Committee on Elementary Schools, said that he was present when Miss Winslow had the talk with President Churchill.

"Not one discourteous word," he said, "was spoken by Mr. Churchill. His manner was gentlemanly throughout. He told Miss Winslow that she had no right in school hours to speak as a Principal to her teachers as she had done. Outside of school time she was at perfect liberty to give free expression to her views,' he said."

BLAU'S CONVICTION STANDS.

Appellate Division Dismisses Appeal of Lincoln Hotel Man.

The Appellate Division dismissed yesterday by a unanimous vote the appeal of Philip Blau, part owner of the Hotel Lincoln, Fifty-second Street and Broadway, and its active manager, from a conviction for running the hotel as a disorderly resort.

Blau was one of the group of downtown proprietors who invaded the upper districts at the same time that Herman Rosenthal moved the base of his gambling operations from lower Second Avenue to West Forty-fifth Street. Blau was a close friend of Bridgey Webber and a business partner at one time of Sam Paul and Max Hochstim.

The affirmation of his conviction is a great blow to his associates, lawyers pointed out yesterday.

COLLEGE JOURNALISTS HERE.

Principal Universities Represented at First Conference at Columbia.

College journalists, representing the dailies of at least fifteen institutions, will convene at Columbia University today. This is a new step and is being followed with interest by the universities. The programme includes a luncheon at which Dr. Talcott Williams, Director of the Columbia School of Journalism, will be the guest of honor and make an address of welcome, conferences and inspection tours in the afternoon, and a dinner at the Kaiserhoff in the evening, at which well-known New York journalists will speak.

The colleges that have so far signified their intention of having representatives present to-day are: Princeton, Hamilton, Dartmouth, Union, Williams, Brown, Haverford, Lafayette, Harvard, Hobart, Amherst, Cornell, University of Pennsylvania, Yale, and Columbia.

Among the topics that will be discussed at the afternoon session will be "News Service and Methods," headed by a member of The Princetonian board; "News Competition," by a member of the Board of The Amherst Student; "The Editorial Column," by the editor-in-chief of The Williams Record, and "Administrative Organization," by a member of The Pennsylvanian.

HOLD WIFE FOR NEGLECT.

Coroner Moves Against Woman Who Did Not Report Death.

Mrs. Julia McLean was committed to the Tombs without bail yesterday by Coroner Shongut after he had examined into the circumstances by which more than sixty hours passed before the authorities received any word of the death of her husband in their flat at 497 East 156th Street. The charge was criminal neglect, not only in that Mrs. McLean slept for two nights beside her dead husband without having sent any word to Coroner, police or undertaker, but because she did not call in a physician to attend him.

She explained that after Mr. McLean's death she made several attempts to communicate with friends and to consult with them as to what was the proper thing for her to do, but she had not been able to reach them until Thursday evening.

So many hours elapsed before the body was committed to the Coroner that it will take several more days to make preparations for the desired autopsy.

CONVICTS AUTO THIEF.

Kaplan, Horse Dealer, Said to Belong to Organized Gang.

Louis Kaplan, a horse dealer at 811 Second Avenue, was convicted before Justice Seabury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court yesterday for stealing an automobile. He was remanded one week for sentence.

The testimony showed Kaplan belonged to a gang of auto thieves, who kept a garage at 26 Charles Place, Brooklyn. They are said to have stolen more than $100,000 in automobile supplies and automobiles.

The testimony brought out by Assistant District Attorney Moscowitz showed that Abraham Begal, now in the Tombs awaiting trial, called upon Charles H. McCausland, manager of the Kissel Kar Company at 1,696 Broadway, to buy an automobile. Mr. McCausland showed him a car for $2,100. This was accepted, and Begal offered to pay $500 down and give notes for the remainder. Kapian was called in and asked to sign the notes. He agreed, and showed two check books from the Fifth National Bank.

One book showed an account of $2,500 for the East Side Trucking Company, and the other a similar amount in Kaplan's name. Kaplan then signed the notes and Begal took the car. Kaplan, it turned out, did not have $10 in the bank.

ATTACKS WEIL BILLS.

Measures Benefit Loan Sharks, Legal Aid Society Points Out.

The Legal Aid Society, which has done so much to thwart the loan sharks, calls on every one to fight the two bills introduced at Albany by Assemblyman Weil and calculated to draw the teeth of the usury laws. Says the Legal Aid Society:

"Both bills, if enacted into laws, would undo with one fell swoop the patient labor of years of the Russell Sage Foundation and the Legal Aid Society, employed in a disinterested endeavor to curb the injurious activity of the loan sharks. The rates of interest allowed by the bills, if added to the fees and commissions, would make the charges exorbitant—a maximum of 240 per cent. per annum, and a minimum of 104 per cent. per annum.

"The bills are shrewdly and cunningly worded, full of ambiguity, giving the loan sharks plenty of rope with which to squeeze the borrowers of money. They suspend the operation of the usury laws of the State in all cases in which the loans do not exceed $200."

TENOR CHARMS A COURT.

Sings in Prisoner's Pen to Cheer Himself, and All Listen.

During a lull in the court proceedings at Jefferson Market Court yesterday afternoon the spectators and Magistrate were surprised to hear an excellent tenor voice singing an opera selection. The singer was in the prison pen, and although it was a most unusual occurrence there was no interruption. The Magistrate and the spectators sat silent until the singing stopped, and then there was a commotion.

The singer was Nathan Kopaa, 18 years old, of 139 Norfolk Street, and was brought out to the courtroom by Policeman Kennedy of the Traffic Squad, who had had arrested him for driving in violation of the traffic rules. He was somewhat frightened and beban to apologize for disturbing the court by his singing, but the Magistrate assured him he had nothing to apologize for, and when he pleaded guilty to the charge against him he was discharged.

The Magistrate asked him what firm he worked for, and he said he was a driver for F. Frankelstein of 309 East Forty-second Street.

"You ought to try and make your living by singing," Magistrate Appleton said.

"I would like to sing all the time," the youth replied; "I sing all day on the wagon, and it always makes me happy. I did not mean to sing in prison, but I felt down-hearted, and I thought if I could sing a little I would feel more cheerful."

He was asked if he had ever taken singing lessons, and he said that nine years ago, when in London with his parents, he had been in a class of young Jewish boys who were taught to sing by Sirota. He said he had learned much by going to the opera, which he did every time he could save enough money to buy a seat.

Important New Books from CASSELL'S List

Panama: and What It Means

By John Foster Fraser

Author of "The Land of Veiled Women," "America At Work," "Canada As It Is," etc.

In this volume on the great canal we have the point of view of an international traveller, student, and author of repute.

The author not only gives us his impressions of present conditions in the work of the canal and in the canal zone—the engineering and sanitation difficulties overcome—obtained from careful studies and personal observations made on the spot, but he presents us with a vivid history of the canal project from the beginning—" the dream of four centuries." He discusses the meaning of the canal to the commerce of the nations of Europe, North and South America, and Asia; the question of tolls, fortifications, and the canal as an instrument of war.

The illustrations, made from photographs, number over forty-five and add much interest to the volume. 12mo, cloth. Fully illustrated. Net, $1.75. Postage, 15 cents.

Announcement of An Important New Book By

Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace

Social Environment and Moral Progress

Dr. Wallace, the eminent scientist, at his ninetieth year, gives the world his ripened meditations upon human progress both in intellect and morals. He destroys much of the common belief in the progress of the race, but, with keen insight, he sees the root causes of social degeneracy, and, with a prophet's fierce zeal, he exposes and denounces them, and then offers a constructive policy worthy of the serious consideration of every progressive person. 12mo, cloth. Net, $1.25. Postage, 15 cents.

NEW FICTION

CLEEK

The Man of the Forty Faces

By T. W. Hanshew

The dramatic adventures of a remarkable detective genius. "The crimes are all properly baffling and the solution of them capitally worked out by Cleek, with the result that this is the best book of criminal fiction in recent years."—N. Y. Press. 12mo, cloth, with cover inlay on cover, and jacket in colors. Net, $1.25. Postage, 12 cents.

Two Shall Be Born

A Romance of the Wilds

By Theodore Goodridge Roberts

Mr. Roberts's hold upon the American public has grown with each novel he has written. His craftsmanship and technique have shown constant improvements, and the new book shows him at his best. The early scenes are laid in Canada, and the reader's interest is continuous from first to last. 12mo, cloth, with four illustrations. Net, $1.25. Postage, 12 cents.

JULIUS CAESAR

Edited by HORACE HOWARD FURNESS, Jr.

Being the Seventeenth Volume of

A NEW VARIORUM EDITION OF THE WORKS OF WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

Royal 8vo. Cloth. Gilt top. Uncut edges. $4.00 net. Half Morocco. Gilt top. Uncut edges. $5.00 net.

The publication of a new volume of the Variorum Edition is always an event in the literary world, and it is therefore with pleasure that we announce the completion of the Seventeenth volume.

The preparation of the new Variorum Edition of the Works of Shakespeare was the life work of Dr. Horace Howard Furness, who is acknowledged to have been the world's greatest authority on Shakespeare.

For many years he was assisted by his son, Horace Howard Furness, Jr., who has contributed two volumes to the set—Richard the Third, and a revised edition of Macbeth. The publication of these volumes demonstrated the wisdom of Dr. Furness in associating his son with this invaluable work so stupendous as to be beyond the ability of a lifetime to complete.

To Horace Howard Furness, Jr., now falls the task of editing the remaining plays. This important work will, therefore, be continued along the same lines laid down by Dr. Horace Howard Furness.

New Fiction

A Splendid Romance of Love and Adventure

The Road of Living Men

By WILL LEVINGTON COMFORT

Author of "Routledge Rides Alone"

Frontispiece in color. $1.25 net. Postpaid $1.37

Every lover of good fiction looks for the books which come all too seldom, the books in which there is a spirit of youth, of romance, of adventure and the warmth and color of real life. To all such readers we recommend this new novel. From the first scenes in China during the Boxer Rebellion until the end there follow swiftly scene after scene of splendid conception, told with a swing and go and a growing intensity of emotion that sweeps one along until the fine poetic climax. It will be pronounced one of the year's greatest romances.

An Absorbing and Baffling Mystery

The Maxwell Mystery

By CAROLYN WELLS

Author of "A Chain of Evidence," etc.

Illustrated in color by Gayle Hoskins. $1.25 net. Postpaid $1.37.

An elusive mystery and a delightful love story in which Fleming Stone, the great American detective, again figures. Well planned crimes are often those which are easily ferreted out, but in this case the solution of the mystery on account of its very simplicity eludes all investigation, and the climax is a complete surprise.

A Timely Book

The Passing of the Turkish Empire in Europe

By CAPTAIN B. GRANVILLE BAKER

Profusely illustrated. 8vo. Cloth. $3.50 net

The author is a man of wide experience and has served in both the British and German armies. He has, therefore, had peculiar opportunities of getting behind the scenes in Europe. The present work is not an ordinary book about the war, but deals more particularly with the results of the conflict, and also the diplomatic causes which have gone to bring the Turkish Empire to its knees. We believe that this is the only book published that gives, in the way Captain Baker does, a thorough account regarding not only Turkey but also her present opponents.

New Travel

Camp and Tramp in African Wilds

By E. TORDAY

With 45 illustrations and a map. 8vo. Cloth. $3.50 net

A record of adventure, impressions and experiences during many years spent among the savage tribes around Lake Tanganyika and in Central Africa, with a description of native life, character and customs.

The Land of New Guinea Pygmies

By CAPT. C. G. RAWLING, F.R.G.S.

48 illustrations. 8vo. Cloth. $3.50 net

An account of the British expedition dispatched to Dutch New Guinea for the purpose of exploration and zoological research.

A Turkish Woman's European Impressions

By ZEYNEB HANOUM

Edited and with an introduction by Grace Ellison. With 23 illustrations from photographs and a drawing by Auguste Rodin. Deckle edge. 8vo. Cloth. $1.75 net

Giving the experiences of a Turkish woman of good family and high culture, who fled from the monotony and intolerable spying system which makes the life of such Turkish women a burden.

NEW SPRING BOOKS

A NOVEL OF BEAUTY AND HAPPINESS

A MIDSUMMER WOOING

By Mary E. Stone Bassett

Author of "Judith's Garden" and "The Little Green Door." Illustrated in Color. Decorated Cover. $1.25 net; postpaid, $1.37.

When tired of novels either too strenuous or simply dull, come close to nature with this author, laugh at the delicious humor which the experiences of a gardening "match-maker" are treated. The real heroine is the woman who tells the story. She finds true happiness in her luxuriant garden and successfully deals with the whims of quaint natures until she brings about a happy wedding by means of her summer-house "built just for two." The handsomely presented book pleases the eye, and the author's bright wit and cheery optimism delight the mind.

DAVE PORTER

and The Runaways or Last Days at Oak Hall

By Edward Stratemeyer

Illustrated, $1.25.

This volume tells of the young hero's final term at the Academy which he had attended for several years. Dave Porter will now be more popular than ever with the thousands of readers of this series.

St. Dunstan Boy Scouts

By Warren L. Eldred

Illustrated, $1.50.

The boys of the school called "St. Dunstan" in this series, types of the best sort of American youth, good fellows and good students, in most cases, but not too good, become interested in the Boy Scout movement and organize a company in the school. There is work for them of a mysterious and puzzling nature, and they acquit themselves well. In conclusion, they have a very enjoyable week's "hike." The story is complete in itself, and especially separated from other titles of the series by the "Boy Scout" feature.

Prue's Jolly Winter

By Amy Brooks

Illustrated by the Author. $1.00.

Prue Weston, the same lively little Prue that so many already love, enjoys a winter so jolly that more little readers than ever will like to know about it. The story closes with a round of good times and a warm-hearted display of child friendship.

The Red-House Children at Grafton

By Amanda M. Douglas

Illustrated. Net, $1.00. Postpaid, $1.10.

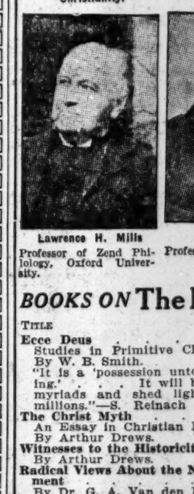
The story is complete in itself, though the children have already become well known in a previous volume. Fun and frolic in plenty are a part of their wholesome development and the story does not drag for a moment.

A Story Garden for Little Children

By Maud Lindsay



Author of "Mother Stories" and "More Mother Stories" with introduction by Emilie Poulsson. Profusely illustrated. Square 8vo. Net, $1.00. Postpaid, $1.10.

Equally suitable for home or school is this happily named, happily written "garden of stories" by an expert in the very difficult art of worthily interesting the little ones. There are twenty stories, in large, clear type and each with a full-page picture and smaller decorative illustrations by an excellent artist.

The Silver Island of the Chippewa

By D. Lange

Author of "On the Trail of the Sioux." Illustrated. Net, $1.00. Postpaid, $1.10.

Here is a boy's book that amounts to something. It tells of the famous Silver Island in Lake Superior from which it is a fact that ore to the value of $3,089,000 was taken. Much is told of Indian nature and ways—also of nature and woodcraft along with the accounts of exciting adventures with which the book teems.

WHEN I WAS A BOY IN GREECE

By George Demetrios

Fourth Title in "Chilren of Other Lands Series." Illustrated and with Map. Net, 60c. Postpaid, 67c.

A graphic account is given of the country and its customs, with the home and school life, tasks and pleasures of a real boy in a land strange to us. Naturally, much is said of relations with the Turks, and the book has peculiar importance from the Balkan war. The young author was compelled to witness very thrilling scenes before coming to this land of opportunity.

HOLD FRIEDMANN TO HIS CONTRACTS

Berlin Physician Will Be Forced to Stay Here to Complete His Cures, Doctor Says.

FORM VACCINE SYNDICATE

W. E. D. Stokes Says ex-District Attorney Gardiner Is Forming Concern to Handle Preparation.

Dr. Friedrich Friedmann would be liable to arrest if he attempted to depart from this country without treating for a second time the patients who received his vaccine for tuberculosis, according to a physician who has watched the tests of his preparation here. This physician said last night that Dr. Friedmann would be held to his contract to treat for a second time patients now under his care, and that he would be held to any oral contracts he might have made regarding the distribution of the vaccine. It was said that Dr. Friedmann would probably be sued if his cure was indorsed by the Government to determine whether he was bound by promises he was alleged to have made in regard to the method of disposing of the vaccine here.

Dr. Friedmann, notwithstanding his statement of the day before that hereafter he would talk for himself, said through Dr. Storm, formerly his assistant, yesterday, that the treatment and the turtle vaccine would be patented. He said that this was done as a protection rather than for commerical benefit.

'The public must be protected from inexperienced, incapable physicians and quacks," he said. "The treating of patients even after one has had possession of the vaccine is no small mater. The question of the second injection is one that must be known, for with the second injection ill-timed ulcers may retard and check any cure by the Friedmann method."

He said that Dr. Friedmann looked forward to getting together a class of skilled physicians in order to teach them the use of the vaccine. Dr. Sturm said that these physicians would have to go to Dr. Friedmann for new supplies of the vaccine.

Dr. Friedmann's brother, Dr. Arthur Friedmann, denied yesterday that he intended to take any drastic measure against his brother. He has hoped for a reconciliation with the Berlin physician. Meanwhile the lobby of the Ansonia was filled again yesterday with stock promoters, each one anxious to form a company to exploit the turtle vaccine.

W. E. D. Stokes, proprietor of the Ansonia, in which Dr. Friedmann lives, said that several thousand shares in a new syndicate to handle the preparation were ready for distribution. He asserted that Asa Bird Gardiner, ex-District Attorney, was drawing up the final papers for such a combination.

"The idea of the syndicate," he said, "is to obtain the Friedmann cure in order that the traffic in human lives may be stopped. It is not a case with the syndicate of obtaining money so much as to take the cure from the hands of those who would dispose of it for money, and to place it at the disposal of the poor. We expect, if such a company is formed, to make a dividend through the treatment of rich patrons. Personally I do not believe that Dr. Friedmann's cure can be patented. There are others experimenting along the same line, and to patent the result of his work would be to stop further research. If Dr. Friedmann's cure was effective in at least fifty cases out of a hundred, it would still be one of the most remarkable cures of the age. As I understand it, Dr. Friedmann does not expect to cure hopeless cases."

Dr. Friedmann met Dr. William Parke, bacteriologist of the Board of Health, at the Willard Parker Hospital yesterday and talked with him regarding the inoculation of guinea pigs and monkeys by Dr. Parke's assistants. Dr. Friedmann had furnished the vaccine necessary for these experiments some time ago, and Dr. Sturm said that the experiments promised to terminate successfully.

Mrs. Bishop Too Ill to Appear.

The case of Mrs. Abagail Hancock Bishop, divorced wife of James Cunningham Bishop of 22 East Sixty-fifth Street, for whom a summons was issued by Frank Fallon of 157 West 103d Street in connection with the disappearance from his possession of a necklace valued at $1,000, given by Mrs. Bishop as security for a loan of that amount, was adjourned until Monday by Magistrate Butts in the Harlem Court yesterday. An attorney representing Mrs. Bishop informed the court she was too ill to appear.

FILE DUVEEN APPRAISAL.

Sir Joseph's Estate $2,867,475—$6,500,000 in Art Business.

Sir Joseph J. Duveen, head of the London branch of Duveen Brothers, art dealers, who died on Nov. 9, 1908, while traveling in Southern France, left an estate valued at $2,867,475, according to the appraisal filed yesterday in the Surrogates' office by Percival E. Nagle, one of the New York County appraisers. The only property taxable in New York State was his interest of 27½ per cent. in the New York firm of Duveen Brothers at 720 Fifth Avenue, which was valued at $382,578, and interest on this capital of $15,781.

According to affidavits from London accountants, attached to the New York appraisal, the capital of Duveen Brothers is not divided between the London, Paris, and New York branches, but is distributed as the need arises. In all, there is invested in this art dealing business $6,544,832, of which Sir Joseph Duveen's share was $1,749,325. The only other property in the United States which Sir Joseph Duveen possessed at the time of his death were bonds of the Pennsylvania Railroad valued at $37,-040.

Although Sir Joseph Duveen was knighted in 1907 for the gift of his Turner collection to the Tate Gallery and the building of an extension for housing the collection, his will contained neither charitable nor public legacies. To his widow, Lady Rosetta Duveen, he gave an annuity of $25,000. After making specific bequests of $85,000 to each of his four daughters, Miss Esther Duveen, Mrs. Annette Abrahams, Mrs. Eveline Abrahams, and Miss Florence Duveen, and legacies of $137,000 to each of four sons, Charles, Edward, Henry, and Ernest, the residuary estate is divided into twelve equal parts and distributed among his twelve children, the four sons, Joseph, John, Louis, and Benjamin not receiving special bequests.

SUIT OVER WEDDING FEAST.

Court Decides Liveryman Needn't Pay Because Coaches Were Delayed.

When Michael Pawlysxyu was married in January the wedding coaches were so late that all the guests grew tired of waiting at the church and went away and the $100 wedding breakfast served at Tarta Hall grew cold untouched.

So the bridegroom sued the liveryman to recover the cost of that wedding breakfast, but Municipal Court Justice Snitkin decided yesterday that there was no cause for action and therefore dismissed the suit.

ALIENS OPPOSE DISCHARGE.

Judge Mayer Holds M. Rosett for Many Depositors.

The corridors of the Federal Building were filled yesterday morning with a crowd of men, women, and children, who had come to oppose the application for the discharge of the firm of M. Rosett of Liberty Street in this city, with branches in Perth Amboy and Wilkesbarre. The liabilities of the firm were placed at $600,000 and the assets at about $200,000. A number of the creditors were Italians, Swedes, Poles, and other immigrants.

Archibald Palmer, who represented 579 depositors with claims of more than $100,000, opposed the discharge, and asked for an examination of the bankrupts at some time the receiver might fix and the payment of the costs of the examination out of the estate. Judge Mayer granted his motions.

Irving L. Ernst, counsel for the Trustee, said that he had $200,000 in cash and hoped to get more soon. He would have declared a dividend for the creditors before this, but he was awaiting the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals with reference to the $100,000 security fund of the firm. This M. Rosett had put up under the New York State law, and Judge Holt had held it should be applied only for the relief of the New York State creditors. An appeal has been taken from his decision in behalf of the New Jersey and Vermont creditors, and till it is decided the dividend had been withheld.

Democratic Club Man Had $52,000 in Cash When He Died.

John Slattery, contractor, who died on Nov. 19, left a net estate of $304,277, according to the appraisal filed yesterday. The largest items in the estate were mortgages of $158,371, corporation stocks aggregating $95,000, and bank accounts of $52,655. The large amount of deposits was accounted for by the fact that shortly before his death Mr. Slattery had disposed of his contracting business and had become ill before being able to invest the proceeds.

Mr. Slattery was for many years active in Democratic politics in New York City, but had always refused to hold office. He lived at the Democratic Club. He gave his property in equal shares to his sister, Mrs. Bridget Burke, and his nephew, Father John R. Slattery.

THE MUSE IN EXILE

By

WILLIAM WATSON

Because of its breadth of appeal this new volume by the distinguished English poet will rank as his most notable book of recent years.

There is a scholarly preface and a masterly paper in prose on the Poet's Place in the Scheme of Life, in which Mr. Watson maintains that the function of the poet of today is "to keep fresh within us our often flagging sense of life's greatness and grandeur."

Among the poems are "The Muse in Exile," a dignified and beautiful appeal of the poet; "Imperial Mother," "Home Truths," and other verses alive and glowing with patriotic loyalty.

In fact the whole volume is characterized by the inspiring thought and stately measures of the poet in the full maturity of his genius.

The Story of Don John of Austria

By P. Luis Coloma, S. J.

of the Real Academia Espanola

The meteoric career of Don John is traced, first as the attractive youth, the cynosure of all eyes at the Court of Philip II.; then as conqueror of the Moors, culminating as the "man from God" who saved Europe from the terrible peril of a Turkish dominion, ending with glimpses of life in the luxury-loving Italy of the day and the war in the Netherlands. Many of the illustrations are from private Spanish sources. Illustrated. $4.50 net.

Fire and Frost

By Maud Cruttwell

Fire is an Egyptian Prince and Frost is an English girl living in Florence. The impetuous temperament of the Oriental is matched against the steadfast, rational nature of the heroine. The uncompromising desire of the former is to make the English girl his wife. The natures of East and West in conflict have been employed as material for fiction already, but it can be safely said that never have the dramatic possibilities of the subject been treated with better judgment. $1.25 net. Postage 12 cents.

H. G. WELLS

The Discovery of the Future

"Where there is no vision, the people perish." A book of prophetic foresight in which the author—pre-eminent among English writers of to-day—shows that by utilizing the intellectual forces which have enabled us to write the history of the past we may with reasonable certainty forecast the future. Wit, humor and the distillation of a lifetime's pondering combine to make this essay a noteworthy contribution to the season's literature. It will stimulate thought and provoke discussion. The entire first page of the Magazine Section of last Sunday's Times was devoted to an abstract of this book. No admirer of Wells can afford not to read it. 60 cents net; by mail, 65 cents.

FIREMEN TO CLOSE THEIR CASE TO-DAY

Their Demands for Wage Increases "Down to Bedrock," Says W. S. Carter.

DEFENDS THE PAY TABLES

When Roads Finish Summing Up Judge Chambers Will Leave City to Study Statistics.

W. S. Carter, President of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, began yesterday his final argument before the Arbitration Board that is to settle the differences between the fifty-four Eastern roads and their firemen. After he concludes to-day, Elisha Lee will sum up for the railroads, and the presentation of the case will be completed.

Judge W. L. Chambers, Chairman of the board, is going into the country for a while to study the statistics and other exhibits, while the other arbitrators, Vice President W. W. Atterbury of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Albert Phillips, Vice President of the Brotherhood, who are naturally more familiar with the technical points, will discuss matters here.

When Judge Chambers returns and the full board meets, the first question to be decided will be that of standardization—that is, whether all the roads shall pay the same wages for similar work, regardless of their financial condition. With that settled, the board will take up each of the nine demands of the men and make a specific award on each, with a view to preventing the usual difficulties over the application of a general award to each of the roads.

The expectation is that the award as a whole will be signed by all three of the arbitrators, with the dissent of any one upon any of the nine points noted at the bottom, in the same way that a decree is rendered by a court which may be divided on some of the points. This will prevent the possibility of a majority and minority award on the matter as a whole.

Judge Chambers intends to submit to both sides to-day a series of questions on statistical points and to refer the answers to an impartial statistician connected with the Census Bureau to reconcile, if possible, or otherwise to give his opinion upon.

At the opening of his address yesterday Mr. Carter took up first the subject of arbitration, as viewed by the men.

"Labor unions in general," he said, "have always been opposed to any arbitration that had even a semblance of a judicial or a compulsory character. They opposed the enactment of the Erdman law. The contention has been that whenever you denied to workmen the right to improve their condition by withdrawing in a body and to that extent coercing the employer, labor reverted to the condition of servitude, from which it had escaped many years ago.

Railroads Favored Erdman Bill.

"The railroad organizations, however, had faith in arbitration, and in the face of the protests of all other labor unions they urged the passage of the Erdman bill. They realized that under its terms arbitration was optional. Their attitude, I believe, has been vindicated. The Erdman Act, more particularly through its mediation feature, has avoided many a useless strike.

Mr. Carter took up the various requests seriatim. The first article fixes a day's work as ten hours or less or 100 miles or less, after either of which overtime accrues. He pointed out that thirty-nine of the Eastern roads had this rule and said the only purpose of the request was to obtain uniformity. It also provided that a fireman's time shall begin when he is required to report for duty and end when the engine is delivered at the point designated by the company. This, too, he said, was in force on many of the roads.

Then he went into the subject of uniformity in general. This was the largest issue in the engineers' arbitration last Summer, and uniformity was opposed by the roads on the ground that the minor ones could not afford to pay the same as their larger and richer competitors, and also that the minor roads did not handle as much traffic as the others. The report of that commission, of which Oscar S. Straus and later President Van Hise of Wisconsin University was Chairman, went into the subject of standardization at great length and finally decided to go no further than to fix a minimum wage. This is the principal reason why the union leaders regard that arbitration is a failure from the standpoint of the men, although they received some increase of wages.

Mr. Carter argued yesterday that in every trade, except that of transportation, the employers favored uniformity within the same competitive territory, as it brought more settled conditions of their competition. The railroads themselves were strongly in favor of uniform freight rates. The poorer roads used smaller engines and under the proposed scale would pay less wages for that reason. Roads which used the heavy, modern engines not only had to pay for them but had to prepare the roadbed for them and lay heavier tracks, so that taking the capital investment into consideration the small roads would be as well off as the others.

Taking up the second article, which fixed rates of pay based on the division of engines into twelve classes according to their weight on drivers, Mr. Carter replied to criticisms on this basis for wages. He read a letter written by the Chairman of the Managers' Committee in the western territory declaring it the best basis, and declarations by B. A. Worthington, now President of the Alton, before the engineers' arbitration board, to which he presented the railroads' case to the same effect.

Proposed Scale on Bedrock.

Mr. Carter asked the board not to regard the proposed scale as something on which the difference might be split, saying that boards had been criticised for taking that course. The schedule, he said, had not been prepared with that possibility in view, as he had expected the matter to be settled by negotiation, and in the final proposition had got down to bedrock in the demands.

"We are not asking the Lake Shore," he said, "to pay the same as the Rock Island, although they both run into the same stations in Chicago. We are asking them to pay a little less than the average of all the Western roads."

Mr. Carter defended the tables he had presented showing the average wages paid on Western roads for different sized engines, which were a shade higher than those now asked in the East.

"As Mr. Lee," he said, "questions the accuracy of these averages, I will drop them temporarily and give some actual figures. After that he may be willing to go back to averages."

The figures he gave were for four Eastern and four Western roads—the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Lake Shore, and Big Four in the East, and the Rock Island, Burlington, Union Pacific, and Atchison in the West. The Western rates he gave were materially higher than those on the Eastern roads, and from 5 to 40 cents a day higher than the rates now asked in the East.

It was arranged, at the instance of Judge Chambers, that Mr. Lee and his associates should go over these rates and see whether they agreed to them as matters of fact.

Judge Chambers announced that he had received a ruling from the Controller of the Treasury Department that the statutory expenses of the arbitration would be paid by the Government, notwithstanding that by general agreement the time had been extended three weeks beyond the term fixed by the Erdman act. This supersedes the agreement that the entire expense after the expiration of the thirty-day limit last Wednesday should be paid by the two parties.

NOTABLE WINSTON PUBLICATIONS

Upton Sinclair's New Novel

Sylvia Ready May 15th

This is the greatest thing that Sinclair has ever done, surpassing The Jungle both in the bigness of its theme and in its dramatic intensity. Just as the timeliness of The Jungle enhanced its great sale, so Sylvia appears at the psychological moment when social questions are at the front. It is the "inside" story of a great society wedding and reveals the things the public rarely hears. In its picture of the old, fast-vanishing Southern life, and in the unfolding of the character of a charming girl, the book is surpassing, while in its final startling scenes it brings home the horror which is hidden in the phrase "wild oats." The culmination of the story is so powerful, yet told so chastely, and in so alluring a style, as to prove irresistible. The book will inevitably command instant, wide-spread attention by its appeal to the hearts of men and women. Price $1.20 net. Postage extra.

Written in the Sand By G. R. Duval Author of "Shadows of Old Paris."
Published March 8—Second Edition Already on Sale.
A stirring romance of an extraordinary girl who journeys into the Sahara and enters the life of a French captain of spahees. Their days together are described with all the power of one who knows intimately the mystery and charm of the desert. 335 pages. Jacket and frontispiece by George Gibbs. $1.20 net.

The Reluctant Lover By Stephen McKenna
A book for those who admire the refreshingly unconventional. All of the young men in this story are preoccupied with the idea of matrimony—except one, the capture of whose cool, chaste heart is undertaken by a determined girl. There is a bon mot in every paragraph and many laughs to a page. 320 pages. Decorated jacket by John R. Neill. $1.20 net.

The Mystery of 31, New Inn By R. Austin Freeman
The fact that Jeffrey Blackmore made two wills, seemingly alike yet cunningly different, caused John Thorndyke, mastermind, to suspect a tragedy. With the logic and cool analysis of a lawyer and scientist he works out and proves his theory in the most startling manner. 340 pages. Illustrated. $1.20 net.

Great Cases of Famous Detectives Ready May 3d
By George Barton Author of "The Mystery of Cleverly," Etc.
The most famous cases of the world's greatest detectives, realistically told, with biographical sketches of each detective. Illustrated. 50 cents.

A Living Legacy (3d Edition) By Ruth Underwood
A powerful story of love, conflict, suspense and victory. 438 pages. Colored illustrations by George Gibbs. $1.35 net.

The Gulf Between By Anna Constantini
A dramatic portrayal of the married life of a beautiful American girl and an Italian nobleman, by one "on the inside." 320 pages. Illustrated. $1.20 net.

The Ranch Girls at Boarding School Ready May 3d
By Margaret Vandercook, Author of The "Ranch Girls" Series.
The Ranch Girls at Boarding School was planned for publication next fall, but so many insistent demands have been received for another of Mrs. Vandercook's fascinating stories for girls that we have decided to bring it out this spring. The Ranch Girls at Boarding School, which continues the experiences of four delightful western girls, will undoubtedly increase Mrs. Vandercook's already wide circle of readers. Illustrated. Price, 60 cents, postpaid.

Monarchs and Men By Maximilian Harden
A book that is causing more discussion abroad than any other book of the year because of its freedom in criticism and breadth of interest. This translation of Harden's sketches of the ruling heads of our time comes as a refreshing novelty among present-day biographical works. Harden's brilliancy and force, his courage, his uncompromising and fierce championship, his delight in his art and his artist's power of color and perspective, as applied to these studies, makes each one of intellectual, and even historic, interest. 312 pages. Illustrated. $3.00 net.

Notable Women in History By Willis J. Abbot
Author of Numerous Historical Works.
One of the most entertaining, incisive and original volumes of biography ever published. Highly endorsed by Jane Addams, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, Mrs. Champ Clark, and many others, as a book that will measurably advance the cause of woman and attract a tremendous clientele of readers. *450 pages. 32 illustrations. PANAMA CANAL TOLLS.

The American Association for International Conciliation petitions Congress for the settlement of the difference with England regarding Panama Canal tolls in either of three ways. Nobody would object to agreement upon the matter, and not many who have no intrinsic interest in the matter object to arbitration. The third method is a novelty. It proposes the repeal of the discrimination in favor of the coastwise marine and the payment instead of a direct subsidy. The difference with England would disappear because England admits that we have a right to pay subsidies if we like. But this would pacify England at the cost of an affront to our domestic monopolists. They never would assent to the payment of a subsidy equivalent to their present privileges because Americans would refuse to pay it after its annual amount was disclosed. For that proposal there is no prospect of adoption.

The friends of the monopoly privilege to charge dear freights have another plan to preserve it. The trouble is that it is impracticable for the same fault of excess of candor which impedes the plan of the society with the long name. If the plan to discriminate in favor of "our" marine is obstructed by a treaty the obvious escape from the dilemma is to denounce the treaty. It might be dishonorable to break the treaty, but it is all right to throw it out of the State Department window. The merit of this plan is that it allows us to keep the goods we bought, and yet relieves us from the necessity of paying the price we promised. To make the job thorough Senator CHAMBERLAIN proposes to denounce both the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. We did not dare to repudiate the latter treaty when we substituted for it the former, but there are those who are bold enough to denounce both together.

Since they are so very bold it is a mystery why they stop at defrauding England by tearing off the Nation's signature. Why not let the treaties stand and insult England as well as defraud her? That has all the merits attaching to the topnotch of international boorishness, and long would remain the classic example of what nations ought to avoid who respect themselves as well as their neighbors. The proposal is attractive in itself to some, and has the reinforcement of those who manage "our" marine for their personal profit. There are merits about both these new plans, but the latter is the better because it is the worse, and needs so little explanation to those who profit by running ships under monopoly conditions.

THE WAR OF THE WOMEN.

The hysterical women in England who have been followers of Mrs. PANKHURST in her defiance of law and decency are now threatening to institute a reign of terror. Mrs. PANKHURST has been convicted as an accessory to the crime of arson and has been sentenced to three years' imprisonment—a mild sentence. The behavior of the trial Judge and the latitude accorded to the prisoner, who was permitted to conduct her own defense, seem unaccountable on this side of the Atlantic, where we are inclined to boast of our liberty. The court seemed to be afraid of the prisoner, as, indeed, the Home Office seems to be afraid of the whole gang of female mischief-makers.

We have all been saying that if woman suffrage is to triumph in Great Britain these militants, who represent but a small part of the suffrage movement, would surely delay the hour of triumph. But it begins to look as if the PANKHURSTS and little Miss KENNEY, formerly a half-starved mill girl, have hit upon the right way to compel Englishmen to do their bidding—by bullying them. A bullying game they have been playing from the first, though some real depredations have been committed.

The attempted destruction of the valuable paintings in the famous Manchester Art Gallery was a despicable act. The contemplated burning of railroad cars and railroad stations is even more serious. It looks like war, and all Great Britain seems to be more or less panic-stricken, but in the midst of it all, with Mrs. PANKHURST's and ANNIE KENNEY's threats still ringing in his ears, a stolid British Judge sentences the Hocken girl, convicted of attempted arson, to four brief months in prison. Everybody is willing to believe that neither she nor Mrs. PANKHURST will stay in prison long. They will pretend to be starving and will be released. And their pals will continue to smash, burn, and threaten in their expressed desire to "stagger humanity."

How is it all going to end? Will the Home Office arouse itself to the terrible danger of continued defiance of the law in any community, or will the red-coated troops be called out to suppress these women who now are threatening to commit murder? Mr. ASQUITH's Government has nothing worse to its discredit than its foolish and cowardly paltering with the suffragettes.

SLANDERING THE TEA DANCE.

The tea dance is a comparatively new diversion in New York, a custom of not more than two seasons' growth. It began, informally, in some artist's studio. Friends were invited to tea, and a few musicians were hidden behind ferns and palms. A waltz was played, and some of the guests were impelled to dance. Then followed other teas with dancing, and after a while the hotels and restaurants where shoppers and others drop in for tea took up the thé dansant. So far as is known there have been no deplorable goings on at the public tea dances. Even in the restaurants where they have the so-called cabarets at night, the afternoon dancing has been orderly, if informal. Of course, if girls dance in these places with strange men they are not nice girls, but thus far there is no widely proclaimed evidence that the tea dance is one of the lures of Satan. Probably MILTON's hero sets his lures wherever he can. As for the whisky and cocktails, they have nothing whatever to do with the tea dance. Where they abide there is assuredly no thé dansant.

The reported movement of the Mayor and Police Commissioner WALDO against the afternoon tea dances in public places is unfortunate unless stronger evidence is forthcoming of evil doings. There is no obvious reason why people should be permitted to dance at tea in the fashionable and exclusive hotels and restaurants and refused that privilege in others of less social distinction. But if the Mayor and Commissioner WALDO are sure they are on the trail of the evil one, let them go ahead. It seems a pity, however, that the blight of slander should be cast on a diversion which seemed so innocuous as the tea dance.

THE PRESIDENT'S OPPORTUNITY.

Within the next few days President WILSON will appoint to office in this city a Collector of the Port of New York and a United States District Attorney for the Southern District of New York. These appointments will be scrutinized with the most searching care by all classes of voters, and they will be regarded as a practical indication of the purposes and of the chosen associates of the Wilson Administration.

It is a frequently demonstrated fact that a clear majority of the voters of this city are opposed to the domination of Tammany Hall, and that this opposition is very largely made up of voters of the Democratic faith, but these independents have found in the past no consistent and inspiring leadership such as President WILSON established as Governor of New Jersey. If he will make an appeal to the voters of this State who are under the domination of no boss and no machine in a manner which cannot be misunderstood, his Administration and his power as the National leader of his party will be strengthened and enhanced.

But if he is to secure the support and confidence of the independent and progressive elements here, those whom he may choose to fill the local Federal offices should not only be of unquestioned ability and integrity, but should as well by consistent records have demonstrated their freedom from Tammany control. The appointment of men of respectable reputation who are or have been willing to trade their respectability for an office from Tammany Hall will be little, if any, better than the frank appointment of one of the inner ring of the Tammany faction.

AS TO CONGESTION.

The congestion at Forty-second Street and Broadway is harped upon as the reason for establishing the express station of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company's Broadway line at Forty-eighth Street instead of at Forty-second Street, where it belongs. But congestion is added to, not relieved, by withholding needed facilities of travel. The Public Service Commission ought to understand that. There are thousands of subway passengers leaving Forty-second Street and Broadway every day, as well as thousands arriving there. An express station at that point is for departing passengers as well as for arriving passengers. It is what both classes want, for they want to come, do come, and will come to Forty-second Street and Broadway, not to Forty-eighth Street and Seventh Avenue.

The defenders of the Forty-eighth Street site talk of congestion as though if were a disease, something to be cured and prevented. The truth is too plain to be masked by such false reasoning. There are crowds at Forty-second Street and Broadway because it is the centre of the hotel and theatre district, and it is a business centre already important and rapidly growing. To put the express station at Forty-eighth Street will not keep the crowds away from Forty-second Street—it will simply incommode them and add to existing congestion. It is the duty of those who lay out and operate the new subways to make them conform to the habits of the people in such a way as to afford a maximum of public accommodation. Any other rule of procedure would be false and stupid.

Any one who has observed the theatre crowds at Forty-second Street and Broadway on matinée days and at the close of evening performances could hardly have any doubt as to the proper site of the express station, unless his mind was moved by some other than the avowed reason for the selection of the Forty-eighth Street site. There are no crowds at Forty-eighth Street because few go there and few depart from that point. As we said yesterday, if the commission is determined that there should be no express station at Forty-second Street, then the Forty-eighth Street express station would be quite superfluous, and it would be a waste of money to continue the express tracks north of Thirty-fourth Street.

FULL CREWS AND ACCIDENTS.

Gov. SULZER supports his signature of the Full Crew bill by a statement which lacks almost everything that a statement having to do with figures should possess. The fact that five times as many passengers were killed in the last reported year as five years before shows nothing whatever regarding the need of full or fuller crews, because there is no showing that the fewness of employés had anything to do with the number of deaths. Among the causes of railway accidents in the United States the first is "negligence, error, or forgetfulness of some member of the train crew." And the second cause is like the first—"recklessness, carelessness, over-looking or disregarding orders, or taking chances," &c. These two causes together account for over half of all accidents in the entire country.

The worse the accident record, the greater the need of using such funds as are available in the best manner. If the railways are to be ordered to expend two millions it would be better to order them to fence their tracks, or to remove grade crossings, or to employ signalmen at crossings, or to improve their tracks or equipment. But the more money the roads spend in wages on employés who are unnecessary, or of the quality which is indicated above, the less there will be available for the uses also indicated above.

Besides, the Governor is unnecessarily harrowing in his exposition. Accidents were exceptionally few in the year which he selects to make his fivefold comparison. Accidents are too many, but it must be expected that they will grow with increase of travel. In order to discuss accidents in a manner to deduce any lesson it is necessary to look far beyond totals. It is necessary to consider units at risk, the number of cars and miles and passengers as well as simply the number of deaths. It is particularly misleading to base any deduction on any comparison of single years, for a single bad accident which is truly such and perhaps unpreventable by any care or expenditure will disturb all deductions from accidents which are not truly such, being preventable if the causes were truly known. But of causes the Governor has nothing to say, and of remedies he knows only one, the one for which he is being blamed.

The justness of these remarks is attested by the Lackawanna Railroad, which cites the facts of the Corning accident to show that the number of the employés had nothing to do with the case. It makes no matter how many brakemen there are if the engineer is not in condition for his duties. The Governor is on firmer ground when he remarks that the railways sought to protect themselves behind the Public Service Commission, and yet they resist its action when it seeks to correct the shortcomings within its jurisdiction. The railways would find the public more sympathetic if they co-operated with the demand for safety and efficiency. Doubtless the railways should resist unjust laws or oppressive administration of law, but if they were friendlier toward the object of the law the details of the law might be made more favorable to the railways than is possible so long as the railways resist everything their critics oppose, regardless of the merits. The railways know as well as anybody that in some respects the laws which they have resisted have operated to the advantage of the railways as well as of their patrons. A more candid recognition of the fact and a more open-minded attitude toward the law in general would pay the railways dividends in friendlier sentiment, which would strengthen their case against the law and legislators when their case, as now, is meritorious.

MILLIONS OF BACHELORS.

It has been computed that our planet is peopled by about 1,100,000,000 living members of the human species, and that this very respectable total includes some 5,500,000 more men than women. Supposing all women to be married or assured of marrying, this disproportion signifies 5,500,000 men who are bachelors willy-nilly, without considering the few who may have had bachelorhood thrust upon them by the unresponsive ladies of their choice.

This may be the secret of the rather widespread masculine opposition to the feminist movement, which encourages in woman the unresponsive attitude. Of course there are other reasons and to spare, and not all are unchivalric. Few men boast of their chivalry in desiring to support a family, but many men sacrifice all second-best pleasures to that end. And the feminist movement tends to limit the supply of positions suited to the ordinary man and lowers salaries into the bargain by the increased competition, even where the employer loyally supports the equal pay ideal.

But leaving all this to the sociologists, who are numerous and efficient, may not there be in the deep heart of man a well-concealed dread of the moment when the term "old bachelor" shall be used as rudely as the old abusive epithet "old maid"? In America, where the numbers of men and women are almost equally divided, there are still thirty-six out of every thousand of the former inluctably dedicated to bachelorhood. Their fate is not to be made the subject of jeering. One moves naturally toward marriage, PLOTINUS tells us, as toward noble deeds.

SPRING BOOKS.

The Spring Book Number of THE NEW YORK TIMES BOOK REVIEW, to be published to-morrow with THE SUNDAY TIMES, will contain, besides an interesting selection of special articles dealing with literature from the publisher's, the author's, and the critic's points of view, a list of 500 new books of this Spring, classified in a new and thorough way, and containing descriptive notes of the more important works. While fiction still dominates, as it always must in any list of books published within a specified time, fiction itself indicates the new trend of thought and the growth of self-consciousness which affects the American people; and the increased number of books treating of various social problems and the economic questions now uppermost is noticeable.

The contents of the special number are varied by fair and readable reviews of the newest books, news and gossip of the writers and publishers, and editorial comment, while the long established departments of THE BOOK REVIEW have not been neglected.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Dirigible Secrets Disclosed.

Just what was shown as to dirigible balloons by the equally interesting and amusing adventure of the Z4, the latest and biggest airship of its kind, depends upon the confidence one feels in the explanation of its wanderings and descent given by its navigators. On general principles, as given by army officers on their word of honor, that explanation should be accepted as true, and so it evidently has been accepted by the French military authorities, since they have consented to let the payment of a $2,000 duty on the involuntarily imported craft close the incident. They kindly consent to ignore the obvious fact that the flight was intended to convince the German Government that the Z4 could be driven along for many miles just within the frontier line—which would be not less of a demonstration of its ability, in case of need, to cross that line and so facilitate close observation of the French fortresses.

It is suggested, not without plausibility, that the French officers would have viewed the episode with greater severity were it not for the opportunity it gave them for minute study of a machine which doubtless illustrates all that the German scientists have accomplished in the way of making safe and efficient a form of aerial navigation which has been carried further in Germany than anywhere else. Thus, it may be assumed, the Frenchmen have learned, or think they have learned, a lot of important secrets hitherto carefully and successfully guarded.

So far as this assumption is correct, the joke is on the Germans rather than the French, and the latter have been at least as much instructed as warned. Another thing which the crew of the Z4 have involuntarily but clearly put in their narrative is an indirect but full confession that, in spite of all the wonderful improvements in the dirigible which Count ZEPPELIN and his associates have effected, it remains a highly uncertain means of travel. Its irremediable fragility was not manifested on this occasion, but the likelihood of getting over unrecognizable territory and of forced descents among what in time of war would be hostile forces was well shown.

That dirigibles have their military uses is undeniable, and that they have others is more than probable, but they are terribly expensive, and nothing has been accomplished with them to discourage belief that, everything considered, the aeroplane better solves the problem of aerial navigation.

Vindication of Habit by Science.

That eggs are good food is a fact that the world learned without the help of modern chemistry, just as it learned many another fact which science sees as a problem to be laboriously solved. To be informed, however, as to what there is in eggs that gives them the more than nutritive value with which people everywhere have always credited them is to gain worth while knowledge, and this the chemists have done for us.

As reported in The London Lancet, these high authorities have discovered that the notably restorative effect that follows the eating of eggs is due to the presence in their yolks of what, when separated, is the drug lethecin. This The Lancet describes as an "interesting phosphatized oily substance," called, by those who want to be quite correct, "mono-animo-phosphatide." By physicians lethecin is given in nervous breakdowns of various kinds, and some of them assert that upon its presence in sufficient quantities depends the performance by the nerve centres of their highest functions, and that brain exhaustion is another name for its excessive consumption and consequent lack.

However that may be, its administration makes people put on flesh and gives them a sense of well-being. Now, a hen's egg of average size contains sixteen grains of lethecin, according to the recent analyses, and, curiously enough, this is almost precisely the amount which, divided into three doses, the doctors have been taught by experience to give daily to patients whose nerves are on strike or not doing their full duty.

Thus is the popularity of the matutinal egg vindicated by science, and, if it does not produce effects as easily measurable as does the medicinal "exhibition" of the isolated drug, the failure is ascribed by The Lancet to the absence from a familiar breakfast dish of the suggestional power that increases the efficiency of many a trusted remedy.

This lethecin theory goes far to account for the firmly established relation between eggs and Easter. No food could be better after a period of fasting or so quickly make up the losses incidental to insufficient nutrition.

Victimizers as Good as Victims.

In a discussion of "get - rich - quick" schemes from the standpoint of a prosecuting lawyer, United States District Attorney HENRY A. WISE expressed this week the opinion that between the men who devise the various swindles thus described and the victims of their ingenuity the moral difference is so small that sympathy is about as little deserved by one as by the other.

In both cases the effort and the desire are to get a lot of money without doing any honest work for it, and so eager is the yearning of many for easily and rapidly acquired wealth that nothing but the promise of it is needed to bring out money for which legitimate enterprises appeal to the same people in vain.

As Mr. WISE puts it, "You can't protect them against themselves, and if you locked one of these susceptible, gain-seeking persons in a house, he'd manage to shove his cash up a chimney to the get-rich-quick man outside."

That this statement is not much of an exaggeration has been proved a hundred times by the successful working of schemes which to the eye of common sense were obviously impossible and in all probability fraudulent. The get-rich-quick investor in a "proposition" that certainly would never come to him—or her—if it were really a good one is not quite so wicked as the purchaser of "green goods," but he or she is much more foolish. There is at least a remote chance of getting hold of counterfeit money to work off on unsuspecting neighbors, but none at all of receiving the enormous dividends offered by the manufacturers of wildcat stocks. Such dividends must be paid out of capital, if at all, and that is a process that never goes far.

PAPER SODA WATER CUPS.

Dr. Robinson Gives a Reason for a Hygienic Crusade.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

By all means let us have paper cups for the soda water fountains. In our hygienic crusade we are apt to notice motes and overlook beams. If there is a place where infection is likely to take place it is at the soda water counter. It is much more likely to happen there than at the street fountain. Plain water is drunk quickly, and it contains in itself nothing solid or viscid which would be likely to retain any infective material. This is different with our ice cream soda and syrup drinks, and if anybody should ever take the trouble to look behind the soda water counter in the trough in which the soda water glasses are washed he would never again care to partake of the "delicious" ice cream soda.

Only yesterday I treated a patient afflicted with the loathsome disease of lues, whose mouth and lips contained many patches of a very dangerous infective character. I explained to him what danger he was to the community and to those around him, but he said that he knew all about that, and that in his house he had separate plate, fork, spoon, towels, &c. Later in the afternoon I entered a drug store near by, whose soda counter is one of the most patronized in the city, and there my patient was sitting, calmly and coolly quaffing an ice cream soda. When he saw me he turned somewhat pale, but I went up to him without hesitation and told him that he had no right to do any such infamous thing, and advised him at least "accidentally" to drop the glass on the marble floor, which he did when he got through.

Some people afflicted with the above-mentioned blood disease are very sensitive and very careful about infecting anybody, often driving the thing to painful extremes. Others, however, seem to be utterly devoid of any moral scruples in this respect. It is on account of such people that we want to do everything in our power to avoid infection, and soda fountain paper cups are, in my opinion, a much more necessary precautionary measure than are paper cups in stations or on railway trains.

Prof. Fessenden's System.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the interest of accuracy you will doubtless wish to correct a false impression which has been created by an article in your issue of Saturday last, March 29, headed "Radio Concerns Protest," and referring to the proposed naval wireless station at Caimito, Panama. The Federal Telegraph Company, which you credit with the erection and successful operation of the Government high power radio plant at Arlington, Va., and with ownership of the Brant Rock transatlantic station, has actually nothing to do with either of these equipments.

You are quite correct in stating that the Marconi and Telefunken compahies have protested against the navy's specifications for the Caimito station, on the ground that they unduly favor the Federal Company, (a newly formed corporation operating on the Pacific Coast,) but I feel that in justice the recent establishment of new ship and shore communication records between Arlington and the United States Steamship Salem, as very lately described in your columns, should be recognized as the work of Prof. Fessenden (the inventor of the system) and the National Electric Signaling Company, contractor for the Arlington and Salem stations, and owners of the Brant Rock plant.

Late Call for Morgan Pictures.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Would it be possible for me to buy from your publication one colored proof of Reynolds's portrait of Lady Betty Delme and one of Lawrence's portrait of Miss Farren, both published in this week's Sunday supplement? The reproductions are so fine I want these proofs very much, and will greatly appreciate your kindness if you will help me to get them.

COLLECTIONS OF COSTUMES.

Giver of Smithsonian Exhibit Tells of Possibilities for Designers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The National Museum intends to exhibit the costumes worn by persons connected with the history of the United States, taking as a guide the different Presidential periods, and illustrating by means of the dress worn at the time by the men and women of the hour. The effect of the exhibit would, of course, be as complex as the impressions of those viewing it—in some it might inspire a patriotic feeling, others may find practical application in the preparation of costumes.

In the National Museum exhibit, as projected, the opportunity of the designers would be much less than in a collection whose subject is the entire history of dress. The latter is, without doubt, very desirable and would be of far-reaching economic importance, stimulating by suggestions of style, design, materials, &c., the host of industries which are based upon dress.

The gathering together of adequate collections for an exhibit of costumes would be difficult and costly, even though it were confined to the costumes of selected epochs in the life of historic nations, and its preparation would require reconstructions bringing into play various talents.

There is in existence a great amount of material which could be gathered together in libraries where it would serve the purpose of designers and as a basis for an exhibition of costumes. I refer to plates of fashions, fashion journals, works on costume, portrait collections, photographs, prints, &c., a nucleus of which exists in most libraries and of them it is probable that designers do not make use.

TO SUMMER FOLK OF MAINE.

An Appeal for the Mitigation of Animal Suffering There.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you kindly publish our annual appeal to Summer residents of Maine for the support of the humane traveling agent in that State? This unique charity is maintained almost wholly by Summer residents. The agent, Dr. Rollins, widely known as an expert in all matters relating to horses, travels to any part of the State where his services are requested or needed, and is ready at all times to co-operate with the local agents. Since he began this work in September, 1907, he has visited and warned 1,394 persons, has mercifully taken and killed 574 wornout horses that were being slowly worked or starved to death, and has prosecuted 44 cases in court, in all but one of which the defendant was convicted.

There are several active humane societies in Maine, but they have not the means or the machinery to cover the whole region. In the more remote parts of Maine, as in every other State, there are cruelties to horses and cattle, especially in Winter and in early Spring, when fodder becomes scarce, of which the passing visitor has no conception.

Contributions will be received with gratitude by either of the undersigned:

ELIZABETH W. STORER, Treasurer,
51 Garden Street, Cambridge, Mass.
HENRY C. MERWIN, Secretary,
356 State House, Boston.

Goucher College's Need.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It gave me pleasure to see on your editorial page an article referring to Goucher College. Over twenty years ago the college was founded; its standards have been high; it has sent out into all parts of the world young women who are doing much for the betterment of humanity. Dr. and Mrs. Goucher for years from their private resources have met the deficit, as there has been no adequate endowment.

Some months ago the word went forth to alumnae and friends, "A million dollars must be raised by April 4 or the college will be forced to close its doors." Of this amount over $200,000 is yet to be pledged, and only a week remains.

Dr. Eliot, when President of Harvard, visited Goucher. Later he made a statement before a meeting of college Presidents that he had found no woman's college in the country so well equipped as that one at Baltimore. Is it possible that for the comparatively small amount of $200,000 such an institution will be allowed to die?

A BALLAD OF MORE REGRETS.

I mingle my tears with Mary McMullen's,
Deploring that ladies there are no more—
My anger kindles against the vixens
That would help to govern our native shore.
Yet they always have lived, these sexless creatures,
Grasping the law in unmanicured hands;
Far into the past their history reaches,
Spreading their shame among many lands.
There's Boadicea! You remember reading
How, instead of climbing high in the tower,
And sweetly waving god-speed to the soldiers,
Or casting a rose from a lovelit bower,
She herself grasped the spear of a coward near her,
She herself led the battle, avenged her wrong.
Her anguish was crushing, her daughters were dying—
If she were more gentle she'd warrant a song!
And Joan of Arc! How oft have I shuddered
At the spectacle offered in her sad history,
Clothing herself in vile masculine armor!
How she ever could stoop to it truly's a mystery—
Pleading her own case against learned graybeards,
Knowing full well she would fail, it is said,
Just as that Emmeline Pankhurst is doing—
'Twould sound more romantic, of course, were she dead.
Why can't she stay home and take care of the babies?
Just as Joan of Arc might have tended her sheep.
"Her babies are fighting beside her," you tell me?
Oh, shades of Moll Pitcher! I fear I shall weep.
Thank Heaven there still are refined ones among us,
Who can faint and gurgle and utter weak cries.
Ours are more glorious orbs to gaze in
Than Sylvia Pankhurst's blood-stained eyes!
Down with the woman who slaves for posterity—
Who gives and gives all without thinking of pelf,
Who asks and asks rudely, if people won't listen,
Who asks for a voice in law-making herself—
Asks for a voice for the mothers of children!
Man is the parent, and woman is nil—
Anyhow men know more about babies—
Let the bosses now governing govern us still!

Ah! ask me not, when they are gone,
The justice of their rude complaint.
I only know what they have done—
My vinaigrette, or I shall faint!

THE RIGHT TO DRINK.

Keeps Prohibitionists From Banning Purchase of Liquors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to my charge that the prohibitionists, and more especially "The Church in Action," invariably except the drinker of alcoholic beverages in preparing what is known as prohibitory legislation, THE TIMES declares:

It has always been more than a little mysterious why the more thorough-going enemies of liquor have nowhere ventured on the course suggested.

But it does not agree with me that the prohibitionists preserve "the rights" of the drinkers because they do not want to do without toddies themselves. Your article even declares that my charge "is accusation degenerated into absurdity and stupidity" because of the fact "that whatever else the teetotalers may be, they are not drunkards or tipplers."

But I was not writing about teetotalers. For teetotalers I have the very highest respect; but for the rank and file of the Anti-Saloon League, and more especially for the leading officials of that organization, I must admit contempt, because I have had overwhelming evidence that, while raising millions to pass prohibition, they are opposed to any law that would prohibit the purchase, possession, and use of alcoholic beverages.

To make myself clearly understood, I would say that I do not believe in the theory of prohibition, because it is opposed to the individual sovereignty of man, and I do not believe in the practicability of prohibition, because sixty years of experience proves that the people of this country will not be prohibited.

It is not a difficult matter to prohibit the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages. People will vote for such laws without regard to the amount of private property destroyed or of revenues surrendered, and in voting for such laws they will honestly commend themselves for having done a pious service. But when it comes to voting for a law that will prohibit the manufacture, the sale, the purchase, the possession, and the use of alcoholic beverages, then the people of this country will have none of it, because the people of this country will not surrender each his individual right to take a glass of beer or wine or a drink of whisky.

The point that I make against prohibition is this: that since the advent of the Anti-Saloon League the per capita consumption of alcoholic beverages has enormously increased, whereas we were promised a decrease, and I contend that if prohibition is to lessen, even, the consumption of alcoholic beverages, it must prohibit the purchase, possession, and use, as well as the manufacture and sale. Then, I go further and declare that I will join with the Anti-Saloon League and ask every State in which there is dry territory to amend the laws so as to prohibit the use as well as the sale of liquor.

The heads of the Anti-Saloon League declare that this would mean the destruction of the prohibition movement.

Now, if the purpose of prohibition is not to prohibit the use of liquor, then I think the people should be more fully advised, because I do not believe that there are many men in this country who would willingly vote to destroy millions of dollars' worth of property and millions in revenues if they really understand that the consumer is not to be interfered with and is to be permitted to buy all the liquor that he can use.

Recently the North Carolina Legislature passed a law prohibiting the delivery of liquors in North Carolina except to consumers, and prohibiting the delivery of more than one gallon to a single consumer. Such prohibition, I take it, is not prohibition at all, because a gallon of liquor is about as much as the average family would want at one time, and under the law of the prohibition State of North Carolina he can have another gallon delivered as his supply runs low.

If the Anti-Saloon League will introduce a bill into any Legislature for submission to the people for either Statewide prohibition or prohibition by counties, and if it prohibits the purchase, possession, and use of alcoholic beverages, in addition to the sale, and with heavy penalties and with a search and seizure clause, I will not only not oppose the bill, but I will ask the Legislature to pass it and submit it to the people.

If this is done, I will then make the prediction that less than 1,000 people will vote for such a law in any State in the Union.

President National Model License League.

SCRATCHING RIVER BEDS.

Won't Prevent Floods Like Those in Ohio Valley.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I sincerely hope that the current newspaper accounts of Secretary Lane's discourse concerning the Ohio floods have greatly misrepresented what he really said. He is quoted as saying: "All that is needed is the deepening of the channels of the rivers." Splendid thought! I suppose he would have told the Hollanders at the time of the tidal wave in the Zuyder Zee that all they needed to do was to deepen the ocean a bit, dig a hole in the North Sea.

Even those who never saw that region may judge of the foolishness of such an idea by considering the Dayton news of two days, as presented in THE TIMES and other newspapers. On Wednesday it was reported: "The entire valley is a rushing sea, four miles wide, from hill to hill; the current is so swift that boats cannot be handled, even to rescue men and women from burning houses." On Thursday came the news. "The water has begun to recede slightly." That is to say, the entire valley was filled for more than twenty-four hours with a swift-rushing flood, eighty feet deep in places and ten feet deep in Main Street, an elevation where no one dreamed floods could ever reach, any more than they would expect the North River to rise and flood Broadway in New York. And a man-made scratch on the bottom of that valley is recommended as a means of accelerating a racing ocean!

DANGERS OF DUST.

Dry-Swept Parks and Streets Declared a Menace to Health.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The article entitled "Flying Dust Fattens Flies and Kills Babies" and the Sunday Magazine article on "Preventive Work," which dealt with the large number of poor in our dispensaries at this season suffering from severe colds, deserve serious attention.

Now, for four years I have walked across Madison Square to my office every morning, observing the children of the rich and poor alike having their outings amid the whirling dust resulting from sweeping on the part of the attendants who clean the park. This flying dust, it is needless to say, contains, among other things, the effete matter in the sputum of the derelicts, degenerates, and diseased who likewise are permitted to lounge in that and the other parks.

In the late Winter and early Spring our sidewalks, streets, and parks are particularly dangerous as disease breeding places for the reason that the sweeping and cleaning are done without moistening those places. Undoubtedly the prevalent colds are largely due to infection from this germ-ridden dust.

There is scarcely anything that can be done in this city which would add so much to health as finding a way to get rid of this horrible dust. It has been a matter of amusement to me that there has not been some campaign on this subject.

BORDEN WHALEHUNT GOES TO THE ARCTIC

Yacht Adventuress Undertaking a Quest for the Museum of Natural History.

SEEK BOWHEAD SPECIMEN

To Complete Collection Here—Roy C. Andrews to Join Ship Next Summer in Seattle.

The sailing of John Borden of Chicago in the especially built yacht Adventuress from Boston for the Horn a few days ago was explained yesterday when it was said at the Museum of Natural History that Mr. Borden was going on an arctic whaling expedition and was to be accompanied by Roy C. Andrews of the museum, who wanted to collect specimens of the bowhead whale, in order to complete the museum collections.

The yacht Adventuress was built by Rice Brothers of East Boothbay, Me., and was designed by B. B. Crowninshield of Boston. It cost $50,000, and is equipped with every conceivable apparatus for hunting whales in the arctic. At the time of her sailing considerable mystery was made of her destination, although it was said Mr. Borden was going on a whale hunting expedition.

Yesterday it was learned that the Adventuress would reach Seattle early in May, and after receiving a thorough overhauling Mr. Borden, accompanied by Mr. Andrews and some friends, would board her and sail for the arctic early in June. The Adventuress will go from Seattle up through the Behring Strait, and will then take either an easterly or westerly course in search of the bowhead whale.

While sailing along the coast of Alaska the yacht will run close to the shore and several species of fish and sea mammals will be caught or shot by Mr. Borden, who will donate them all to the museum. Mr. Andrews will make a special study of the habits of the fish or animals bagged and will attend to their preparation for shipment to this city, where they will be stuffed and added to the museum's collection.

A peculiar thing about the expedition is that, while the bowhead whale has been hunted for 1,000 years, there is no complete specimen of it on exhibition in any museum. There are several incomplete skeletons in Europe, but none in this country. Mr. Andrews explained this by saying that, owing to the splendid quality of whalebone found in the bowhead, the skeletons have been mutilated or the whaling masters have blown the carcass up after extracting what blubber they could. This is the only species of whale not yet obtained for the whale exhibition, which will be opened as soon as the so-called "Whale Hall," which is being built at the eastern end of the museum is completed, and with this prize at hand the collection will be the biggest and most valuable collection in the world.

Borden Makes the Offer.

When it was discovered that the bowhead whale could not be bought or obtained through any of the regular channels the authorities of the museum considered equipping an expedition and placing Mr. Andrews in charge. This would have cost a great amount of money, and hearing of this proposition, Mr. Borden communicated with the museum and offered to obtain a specimen for them. Mr. Andrews accepted the offer, and arrangements were made to build and equip the Adventuress. The only thing which Mr. Borden demands of the museum is that it allow him to kill the whale himself and have it marked as his trophy. This was agreed on.

The Adventuress has an engine room containing an 85 horse power motor and is also furnished with several auxiliary motors, and has a lower main mast eighty feet high. She also carries a complete equipment of bomb guns and apparatus for killing whales. The harpoons have been made with the greatest of care, and she will carry an extra dory, a power launch, and a whaleboat of the most modern type. Her engines will be run by oil, and there are lines of big tanks along her sides, while the stern is taken up with a modern cold-storage plant.

When she sailed from Boston she had $3,000 worth of food on board, but this was not intended to last for any length of time, as the Adventuress will touch several ports and replenish her larder before leaving for the frozen North.

Moving Pictures to be Made.

Mr. Borden is particularly interested in the advancement of science, and besides getting his whale he hopes to be able to make several land expeditions in search of game. He has hired an expert moving picture operator to accompany the expedition and take pictures of the whale hunt. These pictures will be exhibited in the museum and will also be taken about the country.

The bowhead whale is generally 65 feet long when full grown, and weighs anywhere from 72 to 75 tons. It is called bowhead because of the arch-like formation of its head, which is caused by heavy plates of bone. This whalebone is much stronger and tougher than the ordinary whalebone, and for this reason is in high demand as a commercial product.

Mr. Andrews has just recently returned from an extended expedition into Korea and along the Korean Coast, where he obtained the best specimens of the California whale, or "devil fish," as it is called by the natives, in existence.

The Adventuress is commanded by Capt. Frederick D. West. Capt. West has had three vessels sink under him. One of these was the schooner Hattie M. Cowell, which, in February, 1884, ran down and sank the schooner S. C. Noyes off Block Island. Capt. West lost his right arm by the accidental discharge of a gun, and this arm now lies buried in a violin case off the mouth of the Mackenzie River.

GARRISON WRITES OF PIERS.

Secretary of War Recalls City's Promise to Build New Ones.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Secretary Garrison notified the New York City authorities and the White Star Steamship Company that he would refuse to extend the permit under which the steamship company has erected an extension to its piers in the Hudson River, unless both parties redeemed their promise to erect long piers in places where they would not obstruct navigation.

This notice was conveyed in a letter to R. A. C. Smith, New York Dock Commissioner. The letter said: "Unless the municipality acts it will be in no position to express surprise or to raise a valid objection in the event of this department acting as it may be advised under the circumstances."

Although R. A. C. Smith, the new Dock Commissioner, will not take charge of his office until Monday, it is known that he feels that the city has fully assured the War Department that it intends to carry out its promise to build enough piers to take care of all steamships without encroaching on the fairway of the Hudson River.

ETHEL ROOSEVELT WED TO DR. DERBY

1,000 Persons with Band Cheer Bride as She Appears at Oyster Bay Church.

COLONEL'S HOME PACKED

Roosevelt Baby Granddaughter Enlivens the Marriage Service—Derbys Sail for Europe To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., April 4.—Miss Ethel Roosevelt, youngest daughter of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, was married at Christ Episcopal Church here to-day to Dr. Richard Derby. Miss Roosevelt entered the church on the arm of her father at three minutes after the hour. The service was brief and at 12:15 o'clock the bridal party left the church and went by automobile to the Roosevelt home, Sagamore Hill, where breakfast was served and a reception held. The Rev. Dr. Endicott Peabody, Master of Groton School at Groton, Mass., read the bethrothal service, and the Rev. Dr. Cotton Smith, rector of the church Miss Roosevelt attended in Washington, D. C., pronounced Dr. Derby and Miss Roosevelt man and wife. Miss Roosevelt and Dr. Derby made the responses in voices that were audible in all parts of the church. The Rev. George E. Talmage, rector of Christ Church; Father Bernard Powers of St. Dominic's Roman Catholic Church of Oyster Bay, and Father John C. Yorke of the Huntington Catholic Church were present at the service and also at Sagamore Hill.

There were twice as many guests as had been expected and the little church was so crowded that half a hundred were unable to find seats. Outside a crowd of nearly 1,000 assembled, including many of the townspeople. When Miss Roosevelt arrived with her father in a closed automobile they cheered lustily, and the Oyster Bay band, which had been brought along as a surprise, began a lively concert. It was evident that this demonstration by the people of Oyster Boy pleased Col. Roosevelt and Miss Roosevelt mightily. The Colonel bowed and smiled as three hearty cheers were given. As if recognizing this as a signal the people pushed forward, thrusting aside the newspaper photographers. The Colonel and Miss Roosevelt virtually had to fight their way into the church, and Miss Roosevelt's wedding veil was somewhat disarranged. But both enjoyed it.

Special Train from City.

A special train from New York brought nearly 300 guests, arriving at the Oyster Bay station fifteen minutes before the service began. The guests were taken from the station to the church in a dozen motor buses which had been brought from New York. Fully 100 automobiles were also lined up along the street. It was by all odds the busiest hour Oyster Bay ever witnessed.

The interior of the church was artistically and tastefully decorated. On the side and back walls Southern smilax was trained to resemble the natural growth, and the altar and lecturn were massed with great bunches of pink rambler roses. Spring flowers were also used in profusion and under the memorial window in back of the altar were Easter lilies.

The church was filled some time before the service began, the members of the immediate family and other relatives occupying a section of pews in front and to the left, facing the altar. Mrs. Roosevelt arrived perhaps three minutes before her daughter and walked down the middle aisle on the arm of her son, Archie Roosevelt. The crowd outside the church had cheered for her, also, and her face was wreathed in smiles as she hurried along.

Dr. Frank L. Seeley, organist of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, Manhattan, was the organist, and there was a programme of music also by Nahan Franko's orchestra preceding the arrival of the bridal party. It included these numbers: Violin solo, "Hymn to St. Cecelia," Gounod, Nahan Franko; Aria from Bach, "My Heart Ever Faithful," Miss Ernestine Merrill; violin solo, "Love's Dream," Liszt, Mr. Franko; Biblical song, "Whither Thou Goest," Rossel, Miss Merrill, and "Traumerei," Mr. Franko.

As Miss Roosevelt entered the organ pealed forth the Lohengrin Wedding March and the guests rose and stood throughout the service.

Miss Roosevelt's Gown.

Miss Roosevelt wore a gown of ivory white satin, with a long train. It was trimmed with Venetian lace, a gift from her mother, who wore it the day of her marriage to Col. Roosevelt. The entire bodice of Miss Roosevelt's gown was covered with the lace and it was draped on the skirt. She wore a tulle veil, caught by a wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a great bouquet of orange blossoms and gardenias. The only jewel the bride wore was a corsage ornament consisting of an emerald set in two rows of diamonds. It was the gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Cornelia Landon was maid of honor and there were two bridesmaids, Miss Hester Chanler and Miss Helen Coster. They wore gowns of pink taffeta silk trimmed with shadow lace; leghorn hats covered with blue chiffon and trimmed with a pink rose, and streamers of pink and blue satin ribbon. The maid of honor and bridesmaids carried bouquets of pink sweet peas. Miss Josephine Osborne, who had been chosen as a bridesmaid, was unable to be present because of a death in her family.

Mrs. Roosevelt wore a dress of blue, black, and white striped silk and a black hat. Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., wore a gown of sapphire blue satin covered with chiffon and a leghorn hat trimmed with yellow and pink flowers. Mrs. Nicholas Longworth (Miss Alice Roosevelt) wore a blue pompadour silk gown draped with blue net and a leghorn hat trimmed with a blue bow and a wreath of flowers. Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, who was among the guests, wore a blue and green shot silk gown and a large corn-color hat with wheat trimmings of the same shade.

Between the betrothal ceremony and the wedding service there was a violin solo, "O Perfect Love," by Mr. Franko. The recessional was Mendelssohn's "Wedding March."

Roger Derby as Best Man.

Roger Derby, brother of Dr. Derby, was best man, and the ushers were Lloyd Derby, Archie Roosevelt, Nelson Bartlett, John Waterbury, Edmund P. Rogers, and Dr. Henry James. The bridegroom's gifts to the ushers were gold cuff links. No list of the wedding presents was obtainable. One little bit of information did leak out, however, and that was that Charles Lee, the Roosevelt's negro coachman, had presented Miss Roosevelt with a hand-carved mahogany desk. Lee is an old servant of the family and was with Col. Roosevelt when he was President.

The service in the church was concluded so quickly that the crowds outside were scarcely expecting the bride and bridegroom when they hurried out and were escorted to their automobile. The Oyster Bay Band began playing loudly and the cheering was renewed as the automobile headed for Sagamore Hill. Then the guests in the church poured out and the long procession of automobiles and motor busses started on the three-mile climb to Sagamore Hill.

All the members of the immediate family were present, with the exception of Kermit Roosevelt, Col. Roosevelt's chum on his South African trip. Kermit sent a message from Brazil, where he is studying railroading and has just been promoted to a most important post. Besides Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt, the members of the family at the church were Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and his wife, who was Miss Alexander, and their baby daughter, Gracie Green Roosevelt, Quentin Roosevelt and Archie Roosevelt.

The baby Gracie took a sudden interest in the service just at the juncture when Dr. Peabody asked if any one knew any cause why the bride and bridegroom should not be joined in wedlock. Miss Gracie gave a gleeful little chuckle. Relatives at the service included Mr. and Mrs. J. West Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Douglas Robinson, George Roosevelt, cousin of Col. Roosevelt, and his sister, Miss Margaret Roosevelt. Nicholas Longworth was unable to be present because of a delay caused by the flood conditions near his home in Cincinnati.

500 Persons at Reception.

Although every effort had been made to keep the wedding as small as possible, there was a large number of the friends of Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt who came on. Not more than 200 guests were expected at the church or at the reception at Sagamore Hill, and there were nearer 500.

Col. Roosevelt's private study was converted into a coatroom, and the front drawing room, looking out over the bay, was reserved as the room in which the guests were received by Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt and by Dr. and Mrs. Derby. All the other rooms on the first floor were used to serve the breakfast, and tables were set on the broad veranda. There was a special table for the bridal party with its huge wedding cake. The floral decorations at the house included roses, Southern smilax, daffodils, and Spring flowers. The table of the bridal party was a mass of flowers.

Dr. and Mrs. Derby left for New York at 3 o'clock by automobile. They will sail for Europe to-morrow on the Hamburg, the liner that carried the Colonel on his African trip, on their wedding trip. The special train left Oyster Bay at 3:30 o'clock for New York.

Among those at the church service and reception were:

Mr. and Mrs. Snowden Fahnestock, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Choate, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, Miss Jeanette Alexander, Miss Harriette Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. John Archibald Murray, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, Gifford Pinchot, Munro Douglas Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Cortelyou, Miss Grace Cortelyou, Mrs. E. A. Hegeman, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Leavitt, Miss Grace Potter, the Rev. W. J. Wrightman, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Youngs, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parish, Jr., Mrs. Paul Morton, Mrs. J. Hopkins Smith, Jr., Dr. Lyman Abbott, Lawrence Abbott, Jacob Riis, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bacon, Miss Martha Bacon, Robert L. Bacon, Eliot C. Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. Willard D. Straight, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Brown, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Weeks, Jr., Dr. and Mrs. John A. Hartwell, Mr. and Mrs. George Von L. Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Brander Matthews, Miss Virginia Murray, Frank A. Munsey, George W. Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Tucker, Herbert C. Pell, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. William Loeb, Jr., Miss Marion Hollins, Miss Marion Kennedy, Miss Claire Bird, J. Coleman Drayton, Mr. and Mrs. W. Bourke Cockran, Mr. and Mrs. E. Reeve Merritt, Matthew Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Henry White, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Mr. and Mrs. Lucien L. Bonheur.

MISS KELLY'S WEDDING.

She Will Become Grover A. Whalen's Bride on April 23.

Miss Anna Dolores Kelly, a daughter of Mrs. Hugh Kelly of 30 Washington Square West, will be married to Grover A. Whalen on Wednesday, April 23, at 11:30 A. M., in the Church of St. Ignatius Loyola, Park Avenue and Eighty-fourth Street. The Rev. David Hearn, S. J., will officiate.

Miss Kelly will have the Misses Margaret McBride, Kathryn Murray, Mary Brennan, and Florence Mowbray as bridesmaids. Miss Marie Kelly will be her sister's maid of honor, and a second and littler sister, Marguerite Kelly, is to be the flower girl. Miss Kelly will have a matron of honor. Mrs. Jerry O'Leary.

Mr. Whalen's brother, H. Stevenson Whalen, will be his best man, and the ushers selected are Thomas and James Kelly, brothers of the bride-to-be; Joseph Gallagher, Alfred Meehan, Edward Holland, and Jerry O'Leary.

Hugh Kelly, a brother of Miss Kelly, will give her in marriage.

MISS PELL'S QUIET NUPTIALS.

Weds H. Pendleton Rogers at Small Home Ceremony on May 7.

The wedding of H. Pendleton Rogers, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. Pendleton Rogers, and Miss Gladys Pell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howland Pell, and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gallatin, will be a very quiet home ceremony at the Pell residence, 14 East Fifty-fourth street, on May 7.

There will be no ushers. Mr. Rogers will have his brother, John Shillito Rogers, who married Miss Catherine Dodge, as his best man.

Miss Pell will have Mrs. H. Pelham Rogers as her attendant. The Rev. Herbert Shipman of the Church of the Heavenly Rest and the Rev. Endicott Peabody of Groton, Mass., are to officiate. As Mr. Rogers is in mourning the invitations will be confined to relatives and a few intimate friends.

MRS. LENA W. SAMPSON WEDS.

Becomes Wife of Charles H. Wilson, Pittsfield Manufacturer.

LENOX, April 4.—Mrs. Lena Wyman Sampson, who was a daughter-in-law of the late Mrs. T. Pope Sampson of New York, and Charles H. Wilson of Pittsfield were married at noon to-day in the First Congregational Church in Pittsfield by the Rev. James E. Gregg, Louis Wyman of Cambridge, brother of Mrs. Sampson, gave away the bride. The ushers were Zenas Marshall Crane of Dalton, Milton B. Warner, Irving P. Thompson, E. C. Merrick, and Dr. Thomas Flourney of Pittsfield. Mr. Wilson is a manufacturer and a graduate of Yale.

Dunn-Herbert Wedding April 22.

The wedding of Miss Gertrude A. Herbert, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Herbert of 835 Fifth Avenue, and Edward De Laney Dunn of Newark will take place on April 22 in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Morningside Heights. The engagement was announced several months ago at a dance given by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert on Miss Herbert's eighteenth birthday. The details of the wedding plans have not yet been decided upon.

American to Wed in England.

LONDON, April 4.—The engagement is announced of Edward Hamilton McCormick of Chicago to Phyllis Mary, second daughter of Sir Francis Samuelson, Chairman of B. Samuelson & Co., Ltd., iron masters. The home of Sir Francis is Breckenbrough Hall, Thirsk, Yorkshire.

Son Born to the Cunninghams.

A son was born on Thursday to the Rev. and Mrs. Gerald A. Cunningham of Wappingers Falls, N. Y. Mr. Cunningham was formerly senior curate at St. George's Church in Stuyvesant Square, and is now rector of Zion Church at Wappingers Falls. He was married last April to Miss Van Zile, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Van Zile of this city.

Art Treasures Scattered at Two Sales to Dealers and Private Collectors.

$41,000 FOR A TAPESTRY

A Botticelli Brings $11,300 and a Walnut Chest of Fifteenth Century $10,700.

The art treasures of the Rita Lydig collection were sold yesterday for a total of $362,555. Mrs. Lydig had filled her house at 38 East Fifty-second Street, one of the last creations of the late Stanford White, with a rare collection of works of art and furnishings of the Gothic and Renaissance periods, and it was feared by some people that they might be unappreciated by the great buying public.

This was disproved yesterday afternoon by the crowd which filled the American Art Galleries, where the sale was started, with standing room only long before the sale was half over. While prominent New Yorkers were present there was an unusual number of out-of-town buyers, some of them from as far away as Arkansas, as well as from Boston and Philadelphia. Many of Mrs. Lydig's art treasures will leave the city. The total for the afternoon was $157,105.

The ballroom of the Plaza was not so crowded for the evening sale, but there was a bigger total and individual prices were higher. The returns for the evening were $205,450.

A Flemish tapestry, Brussels, about 1510, with gold and silver threads, the highest development of Flemish weaving, set in a gold frame, brought the top price of the evening, going to Duveen Brothers for $41,000. The tapestry was 7 feet 9 inches by 6 feet 7 inches, and was entitled "Noli me Tangere," a scene showing the risen Christ in the garden with Mary Magdalen. There was gold and silver in both costumes and landscape.

Of the other tapestries a Burgundian from the atelier of Jean Grenier, 1505, went to Seligman & Co. for $10,000; P. W. French & Co. paid $15,500 for a Flemish pastry, 1530, with a mythological subject; Seligman $15,500 for another Burgundian tapestry, 1460, and Huber & Co. $2,500 for a smaller Burgundian tapestry, "The Triumph of the Innocents," 1470. Several of the rugs of the so-called Ispahan type brought more than $5,000.

Of the paintings, "Venus," by Botticelli, went to T. Steinmeyer for $11,300; Lutetti, the agent, paid $10,500 for "Virgin and Child with SS. Bernardino and Catherine of Siena," by Matteo di Giovanni. Two Tintorettos, "Scenes from the Legend of the True Cross," went to Seaman, as agent, for $4,000; the Erich Galleries gave $6,000 for the "Portrait of a Man," by Antonio Moro, and $5,200 for the "Portrait of a Woman," by the same artist. The Blakesley Galleries gave $10,300 for the "Portrait of a Noblewoman," called "The Girl in Red," by Alonso Sanchez Coello, which was a feature of the Music Room in Mrs. Lydig's house.

An ecclesiastical mitre, arranged for an electric light, sold later in the evening, hung from the ceiling between the upper parts of the pictures, the light illuminating the face and the figure in the shadow.

Another Spanish painting, "The Infanta Margarita," by Mazo, went to Seaman, as agent, for $6,000. A number of beautiful Spanish ecclesiastical banners were in velvet, elaborately embroidered with gold and silver. An unusual one of blue-green velvet embroidered with silver went to Seaman, as agent, for $3,000.

The hangings covering the walls of the music room, sixteenth century Italian of crimson velvet, 176 lineal yards in all, were sold to Huber & Co. for $7,100.

Three pairs of curtains and lambrequins to match went to the same buyer for $1,650, and a pair of portieres of the velvet, finished with long embroidered strips taken from ecclesiastical vestments went to Hiber for $3,500. There were good prices and fast times spirited bidding at the afternoon sale, and the returns for the 123 numbers sold were $157,105. Enrico Caruso, the tenor, was one of the buyers at the sale, paying $900 for a colored stucco relief by a fifteenth century Italian artist, of Madonna and Child with St. John. A second purchase by the singer was a bronze statuette, "Satyr," after the antique, for which he paid $575. He disputed the possession of a "Gladiator," another bronze statuette, with another buyer, to whom it had been knocked down for $625, and it was put up again, but after a bid of $700 Caruso let it go to his opponent, Hugo Blumenthal, for $725.

Yesterday was one of the days when the mellow voice of Mr. Kirby earned more money in a given period of time, as a clever man once said, than Caruso could at his best. The $157,000 in three hours was only one of Mr. Kirby's records.

There was an average of good prices, but a walnut chest or cassone, Roman, of the sixteenth century, brought the highest price of the afternoon, going to French & Co. for $10,700. A pair of similar chests of the same period went to the same buyers for $8,000. A lustred faience dish with mock Arabic inscriptions from Valencia, Spain, dating from about 1400 to 1430, went to Seligman & Co., from whom it was purchased by Mrs. Lydig, for $8,000. A two-handled majolica vase of the fifteenth century, Florentine, went to B. Valentiner for $5,000. Seligman & Co. paid $3,800 for a French Limoges reliquary, thirteenth century, which also came from them, for $3,800, and they gave $3,100 for a German crucifix, copper, champleved, enameled and gilded, twelfth century.

A lustred faience apothecary jar or Albarello, with mock Arabic inscriptions, fifteenth century, went to D. W. Walker for $1,300; Mortimer L. Schiff paid $500 for a deep blue and white porcelain jardiniere, Ming; Potter Palmer, Jr., paid $500 for another Chinese jar of the same period and $500 for a copy in glazed pottery of a bronze "Tsun," or sacrificial wine vase.

A silver gilt table ornament in the form of a horse went for $1,800 to Bohler & Steinmeyer, who paid $1,200 for another in the form of a goat; a table ornament in the form of a lion to J. & I. Goldschmidt for $2,200, and the same buyers paid $2,200 for a rampant lion, $2,200 for a hen, and $2,700 for a jumping horse, all table ornaments.

In the sculptures a "Madonna and Child," marble in middle relief, by Mino da Fiesole, went to Seligman & Co. for $7,700, and the marble figure of a youth, nearly lifesize, by a follower of Michael Angelo, went to H. F. Huber & Co. for $1,700. A crouching Venus by Giovanna da Bologna, in alabaster, went to the Hubers for $1,700.

The "Madonna of the Lilies Suckling the Child," late fifteenth century, by an artist working in the atelier of the Della Robbias, went to Seligman & Co. for $2,400 and for a "Madonna and Child," high relief tondo in enameled terra cotta, they paid $7,600. P. W. French & Co. paid $3,100 for another tondo in the enameled terra cotta, "Madonna Adoring the Child," and J. W. Pratt gave $1,400 for a "Madonna and Child," stucco, polychrome, gilded, by a fifteenth century Italian artist for $1,000, and $1,200 for "Madonna and Child," stucco, by an Italian seventeenth century artist. Mortimer L. Schiff gave $1,000 for a white marble basin in the form of a child's sarcophagus.

A bronze inkstand in the form of a casket by a follower of Donatello went to D. W. Walker for $2,000; a statuette in bronze, "A Man Carrying a Child," to Duveen Brothers for $8,000; D. H. Farr paid $3,100 for another, "Hercules and the Arcadian Stag," by Giovanni da Bologna, and Duveen Brothers $5,000 for a pair of bronze statuettes in the form of Putti; "Wrestling Women" went to Goldschmidt for $3,100, and R. H. Lorenz paid $3,000 for "The Bothchese Warrior." A French sculpture in wood, "King Clotaire and an Attendant," went to Seligman & Co. for $5,500. A Florentine walnut ceiling of the fifteenth century, which was catalogued, was omitted from the sale.

Among those at the afternoon sale were Mrs. William Douglas, Mrs. James Speyer, Arthur B. Davies, Thomas B. Clarke, Miss Elsie de Wolfe, Dr. Valentiner, Alexander Morten, Mrs. George T. Bliss, Miss Helen Sears of Boston, Mrs. Horace Harding, Mr. and Mrs. V. Everit Macy, Potter Palmer, Mr. and George Blumenthal. Miss Mercedes de Acosta, a sister of Mrs. Lydig, was said to have been at the sale.

$10,000 SYMPHONY PRIZE.

Italian Philharmonic Society Announces Contest for Composers.

Following an invitation to participate in the Congress of Music at the Panama Exposition in San Francisco, the Italian Philharmonic Society of New York announces that a prize of $10,000 is to be awarded to the Italian composer, now resident in the United States, who submits the best symphonic work in competition, to be completed by May 1, 1914. This work will be the exclusive property of the Philharmonic, and will be presented for the first time at the exposition.

This offer is to be made by the publishing house of G. Ricordi & Co. in the interest of the society. Mr. Ricordi is now in Milan to make arrangements with Puccini, Franchetti, Sgamboti, Boito, and Perost, to act as judges.

The rules of the contest are very simple. The successful composer must be of Italian birth, but a resident of this country. He may choose any symphonic theme he wishes. His score must be in the hands of the judges not later than May 1, 1914, he retaining a copy. Decision is to be made as soon as possible after that date, the payment of the award then entitling the society to all rights of production.

METHODISTS MAKE APPEAL.

Conference Says Veterans Are In Shadow of Poor House.

The New York Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at yesterday's session asked for a more generous contribution to the Board of Conference Claimants.

"There are 4,000 men and women veterans in the service of Methodism," Dr. R. C. Clemens said, "who are in the shadow of the poor house because there is not enough money in the hands of the board to give them sufficient aid. It is the duty of this conference to aid us in supporting those who have grown old in the service of the great Methodist Church."

The anti-saloon enthusiasts were encouraged in their work by the report of Secretary Iglehart of the New York Anti-Saloon League, who said that only in fourteen of the largest cities of the United States are the Sunday drinking regulations unenforced.

"Dr. I. T. Headland, who used to be head of the Methodist missionary service in China, said some nice things about the late Dowager Empress.

"The only foolish edict she ever issued," he observed, "was the one ordering the massacre of all Chinese Christians and foreigners. The man now at the head of the republic diplomatically evaded the order by saying he thought

EBBETS FIELD OPENING TO-DAY—BASEBALL IN THE SOUTH—BOXING—BILLIARDS—SOCCER

TO LIFT LID ON NEW YORK BASEBALL FANS

Yankees and Superbas to Open New Ebbets Field in Brooklyn To-day.

Well, now you ought to be satisfied. The baseball season is here.

The scene of combat to-day is Ebbets Field in Brooklyn, the new $700,000 ball yard of the Dodgers, which will be thrown open for the first time. The New York American League Club, with a new manager, Frank Leroy Chance, will have the honor of being Brooklyn's first opponent on the new field and with good weather to-day, a crowd of 25,000 is expected at the new park. There has been an advance sale of 12,000 seats.

Here's the way the teams will line up:

Manager Chance had the Yankees out for three hours at the Polo Grounds yesterday mussing up the tender blades of grass which Groundkeeper Murphy has been coaxing along all spring. The long drill did the Yankees a world of good, because they had sealegs to get rid of, and had to become accustomed to New York weather, which seems a bit chilly after the balmy air of Bermuda.

More than an hour was spent in batting practice and it may be safely said that the longest hit of the rehearsal was made by the Peerless Leader himself, who whanged the ball to the centre field fence. Then came New York's first peek at Hal Chase as a second baseman. Chase's injured ankle still bothers him and he favors it while running. Hal turns quickly in getting the ball to first base and gets the ball over to Chance fast.

The experiment of Chase at second will be watched with interest to-day because the game will show whether or not a left-handed second baseman will be able to keep out of a runner's way at second while turning to whip the ball to first. Chase practiced for about ten minutes yesterday and then went to the club house. He will start the game to-day at second. Derrick, the new shortstop, showed much speed in the short field and Manager Chance says he will prove to be a big addition to the infield.

Caldwell has been chosen to oppose Nap Rucker and Brooklyn is confident that the Yankees will be unable to hit the Dodger southpaw. Caldwell is in fine shape, but if he shows signs of weakening, McConnell will take up the pitching task. Manager Dahlen says that Rucker will be able to pitch the nine full innings without trouble, but in case of a break Pat Ragon will go to the firing line.

The Brooklyn team had a lively workout at Ebbets Field yesterday and the team's snappy showing was satisfactory to all concerned. The Dodgers outfield this year is made up of Stengel, Meyers and Wheat, which Manager Dahlen says is a fine combination of hitters.

So to-day's the day the season really opens in New York, and there will be baseball from now until October, and plenty of it. There will be a band concert at Ebbets field, beginning at 1 o'clock, if you want to get there early, and just before 3 o'clock Nap Rucker will wind up his left wing and shoot a fast one on the inside to Bert Daniels.

Then you can sit back in your seat and chew peanuts while the diamond warfare is waged. The Yankees will play in Brooklyn again on Monday, while to-morrow they play at Jersey City. The championship season will open at Ebbets Field on Wednesday, April 9, with Philadelphia, the same day that Yale plays at the Polo Grounds against the Giants.

The championship season opens at the Polo Grounds on Thursday, April 10, with the Boston Braves as the Giant guests.

Yes, the season's here, all right.

DISSENSION AMONG CUBS.

Trouble Comes to a Head When Trainer Semmons Whips Evers.

CHICAGO, April 4.—Alleged dissension between Manager John Evers and members of the Chicago National League Club came to a head with the return of the team here to-day after a seven weeks' training trip, when Trainer Semmons presented his resignation in the form of a blow to Manager Evers's jaw.

The fight occurred just as the train was pulling into the city from Kansas City. The Journal this afternoon says that the training trip has not been as harmonious as had been reported. Evers, the Journal learns from persons who took the trip, has not been able to control his temper, and there have been numerous minor squabbles. The new manager is said to have been rather sharp in his criticisms and has engaged in feuds with newspaper correspondents as well as with members of his squad. While there were no open outbreaks, resentment was obvious, and Semmons brought the affair to a crisis to-day.

The fight started when Evers asked Semmons if he had ordered the team to report for practice this afternoon. The trainer replied that he gave such instructions when told to do so by the manager. At this Evers lost his temper and is said to have applied foul language to the trainer, and the latter replied with his fist. Evers fell over into a seat and the players ended the fray and prevented further damage. Evers was not knocked out, but was pretty well shaken up by the punch. He admitted using the language to which Semmons objected, but said he did not mean it the way the trainer took it.

Semmons left the squad at the railway station. He said Manager Tinker wanted him at Cincinnati and that he would sign a contract to train that team.

Athletic Managers at Princeton.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 4.—J. A. Evans, Jr., of Memphis, Tenn., was to-day chosen as assistant manager of the Princeton baseball team by vote of the three upper classes of the university, and Thomas M. Galbreith, Jr., of Babylon, N. Y., was elected as assistant track manager. Both men, who are sophomores, will be 'Varsity managers in their senior year. J. G. McConnell of Pittsburgh will manage next year's freshman baseball team, and Homer G. Garlow of Morgantown, West Va., will take care of the Tiger cubs' track team.

GIANTS ROMP FOR RUNS.

Big Leaguers Gather 19 Against Richmond's Virginia League Team.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., April 4.—Another day of wholesale hitting was enjoyed by the Giants this afternoon and the Richmond team was swamped by a score of 19 to 5. Yesterday seventeen hits were made against Norfolk and ten runs, hence the Giants have made twenty-nine runs and thirty-two hits in two successive days against Virginia League clubs.

To-day's pastime was just a romp for the Giants, and after they had gathered twelve runs in the first three innings they didn't care much what became of them. The game furnished four home runs, of which number the Giants made three. Those who fashioned the grand tour drives were Burns, Merkle, and Meyers. They were all clean-cut homers, and Merkle's was a hoist over the left-field fence. The fence is said to be 479 feet away from the plate. This being so, Merkie's hit must have traveled 500 feet before it hit the ground. It went into an adjoining golf course and holed out at the seventeenth green.

Mr. Plez of Richmond also laid against the bulb for a four-bagger. He did it off Marquard. The Rube was unhittable until the Giants had taken a long lead. In the fourth and fifth innings he was hit freely. While he was going strong he had a change of pace which was effective. Demaree breezed through two innings and let up in the ninth. The score:

Washington Pitcher Blows Up.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—By pounding one of Clark Griffith's recruit pitchers in the ninth inning the Boston Braves, with the score 7 to 0 against them, nosed out an 8 to 7 victory over the Washington Americans in an exhibition game here this afternoon. Walter Johnson was in the box for the Senators during the first six innings and allowed one hit. Gallia, who succeeded Johnson, was not only wild and hit hard, but the victim of poor support at critical stages, and it was while this youngster occupied the mound that Boston scored the eight runs. The same teams will play here to-morrow. Score:

Four Straight for Athletics.

PHILADELPHIA, April 4.—By taking today's game, making it the fourth straight, the Philadelphia Americans won the local Spring series from the Philadelphia Nationals. The score was 9 to 3. Connie Mack's team hit all the National pitchers hard. Wyckoff, pitching for the Americans, weakened in the seventh inning, and was relieved by Plank. While the Americans have won the series, the schedule of seven games will be played out. The score:

U. S. League Adopts Schedule.

PHILADELPHIA, April 4.—Representatives of the eight clubs comprising the United States League of Professional Baseball Clubs met here to-night and adopted a schedule of 126 games. The season will open on May 10 and close Sept. 27. It was decided to respect the rules of organized baseball and to adopt the playing rules of the National League. The Presidents of the clubs who attended the meeting were David Driscoll, New York; Lee Groom, Brooklyn; James A. Timony, Newark, N. J.; William Abbott Witman, Sr., Reading, Penn.; George Brubaker, Philadelphia; A. N. Elrod, Baltimore; William Carsey, Washington, and Harry C. Boyer of Lynchburg, Va.

Princeton Ball Player Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 4.—J. B. Schmidt of Naugatuck, Coan., a junior in Princeton University, was injured while playing baseball on one of the college diamonds to-day. Schmidt, who was centre on the Tiger basket ball team this year, slid into third base and was rendered unconscious by a blow at the base of the brain. It was said at the University infirmary to-night that the injury was not serious.

Four Boston Players Insured.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 4.—Four of the Red Sox players—Joe Wood, Hugh Bedient, Tris Speaker, and Larry Gardner—are considered very valuable assets by the Boston American League club.

Life insurance policies aggregating $100,000 in favor of the Boston club have been taken out on these four players, each policy for $25,000. There is not much difference in the premiums.

$3,500 BOXING FUND FOR FLOOD VICTIMS

Boxers and Wrestlers Exhibit for Benefit of the Ohio Valley Sufferers.

Several hundred boxing enthusiasts, including a number of women, attended the boxing and wrestling carnival held last night at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory, Sixty-eighth Street and Broadway, for the benefit of the flood sufferers in the Ohio Valley. Past and present champions figured in the numerous boxing exhibitions, which furnished a much greater amount of real boxing than is expected from exhibition contests. As a result of the carnival it is expected that a sum approximating $3,500 will be turned into the fund.

The most prominent of the many bouts between former ring heroes was a three-round bout between Terry McGovern and Young Corbett, former holders of the featherweight title, with Abe Attell, who held the same title later as the referee. It was announced before the bout that it would undoubtedly be the final appearance of both men in the ring. They went three short rounds and delighted the crowd with their action and comedy alike.

Other former boxing stars who figured in the carnival were Jack Mc Auliffe, one-time lightweight champion of the world, who boxed three rounds with Freddie Welsh, the present English lightweight champion; Kid McCoy, who went the same distance with Frank Moran of Pittsburgh; Peter Maher, noted in the heavyweight ranks a few years ago, whose opponent was Fred McKay of Winnipeg; Patsy Haley and George Monroe, and Kid Griffo and Joe Bernstein. The last-named pair put on the boxing comedy sketch, which proved to be one of the big features of the entertainment.

Among the present day boxers who took part were Luther McCarty, the white heavyweight champion, who boxed three rounds with Al. Norton of Los Angeles, his sparring partner. Joe Rivers went over the same route with his sparring partner, Abdul the Turk. Both of these bouts were marked by as much action as is usually seen in regular matches. Young Ahearn of Brooklyn, Soldier Kearns, Chicken Roskin, Mickey Brown of Boston, Young Mickey McDonough, Young Herman, Kid Mahoney of Racine, Frankie Conifrey, Battling Reddy, Battling Larry Doyle, Eddie Smith, Teddy Hobbs of Pittsburgh, Babe Davis, Jack Britton, Young Otto, Joe Mooney, Jimmy Moran, Ike Carroll, Kid Williams, Soldier Bartfield, Tommy Madden, Sam Robideau of Philadelphia, Lew Siegel, Mike Leonard, and Mike Donaldson participated. Joe Jeannette boxed three rounds with Bob Armstrong and Jim Dunbar boxed the same number with Billy Lletch.

The referees were changed for each bout, and the list included prominent boxers of other days as well as many men who have lately gained prominence in the sporting world. The number included Joe Cain, Billy Joh, Patsy Haley, Sammy Kelly, Hank Hawkins, George Monroe, Tom Shortell, Joe Skidmore, Benny Yanger, Eddie Forbes, Jim Donovan, Tom Sharkey, Jim Buckley, Brooklyn Jimmy Carroll, Warren Barbour, Bob Vernon, John Pollock, Martin Julian, Jack Gleason, and Jack McGuigan of Philadelphia. Joe Humphries and Peter Prunty acted as masters of ceremonies.

Besides the numerous three-round boxing bouts the crowd was treated to a four-minute exhibition of wrestling between two former world's champion wrestlers, Tom Jenkins and Ernest Roebert. The bout was refereed by William Muldoon, known as the world's greatest exponent of the art of wrestling. The old-timers showed surprising agility, and the contest had every appearance of a match at which something was at stake.

Yoja Nanto and Yari Kama, two Japanese exponents of jiu jitsu, went to a finish in their favorite sport, at which everything is allowed, including the strangle hold. Yari Kama was the winner after five minutes of spectacular work. The referee of the match was Will Bingham, another noted artist at this particular game.

The auction of specially made cartoons by some of the most noted cartoonists in the country brought out some spirited bidding, and, incidentally, added $500 to the fund. The cartoon by Robert Edgren on John L. Sullivan was purchased by Leach Cross for $50. Jack Britton paid $100 for a drawing by R. L. Goldberg, and Joe Jeannette paid the same amount for a drawing by Tad. The best price was for a drawing by Ripley, depicting a boxing match surrounded by a fight crowd, with a scene above from the flooded district in Ohio. It was finally purchased by Billy Gibson for $250, after a spirited bidding contest with Dan Morgan. Charles J. Hearney was the auctioneer.

Mapp's Twenty-second Regiment Band furnished a concert before the bouts went on, and Al Re sang several selections during the evening.

New Polo A. A. Bouts.

Jack Levett and Fred McManus were the participants last night in the star bout at the New Polo Athletic Association in a battle which lasted five rounds, the referee stopping the "go." Levett was beating his man in workmanlike fashion, although handicapped by twenty-two pounds, his opponent scaling 192 pounds. In the first round McManus closed his opponent's left eye, but from that stage on Levett had all the better of the argument, landing rights and lefts at will. McManus was well beaten up at the end.

Young Bedwell stopped Barney Burns in the first round of the semi-final, the referee interfering in order to save Burns from a knockout. Young Ketley defeated Al Sullivan in a four-round encounter, scoring at times almost at will. In the first bout McCormick beat Franklin in a go which satisfied the onlookers.

Cornell Loses to Virginia Again.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 4.—The University of Virginia to-day again triumphed over the Cornell team by a score of 13 to 3. The Ithacans showed their lack of condition plainly, and the Orange and Blue scored almost at will. Jack Ryan in an attempt to develop a good right-hander for the box shifted Neff from shortstop to the rubber, and the latter gave an excellent account of himself, considering the fact that it was his first attempt at twirling for a college nine. He had very good control, and held the opponents to three hits after they had gotten fourteen the day before. The game was called at the end of the seventh inning to allow the Cornell team to catch a train for Washington, where it plays Georgetown to-morrow. The batting of Capt. Finley of Virginia, who got three singles and a homer out of five trips to bat, was the feature. The score:

Silver cups go to first, second, and third; silver medals to the next six, and bronze medals to the succeeding six. A special cup will be given to the first Bronx man to cross the line and a silver cup to the first pennant man. The team prize will be a plaque. Entries close to-day with John Keane, 2,732 Third Avenue.

RACQUET CHAMPIONSHIP.

Williams and Soutar Ready for First Game of Series for Title.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 5.—Great interest is evidenced in the match to-day at the Queens Club for the professional racquet championship of the world between Charles Williams, the professional of Harrow School, and Jock Soutar, who holds a similar position with the Philadelphia Racquet and Tennis Club. To-day's match will be the first of a best of three series, with the second match to be played in Philadelphia next month. The match is expected to provide a game higher in class than any since 1897, when Peter Latham defeated George Standing, the New York Racquet and Tennis Club professional.

PROFESSIONALS TO MEET.

Queal, Kolehmainen, and Others Entered at Celtic Park Sports.

William Queal, who is the acknowledged middle-distance professional champion of America and Great Britain, has entered in the one and five mile races to be held in conjunction with the sports of the Celtic Field Club at Celtic Park to-morrow. Pitted against Queal will be William Kolehmainen, the recognized professional long-distance champion of the world, who has on several occasions demonstrated his ability to run shorter distances in record time. From an authentic source it was learned that Queal has been showing some remarkable trials in preparation for these races.

He already has a record of 4:20 for the mile and 1:58 for the half mile. It would not surprise the followers of athletics to see him approach W. G. George's professional record of 4.12¾. Kolehmainen, who is entered in both races, yesterday turned off five miles in 25:09, which equals the American amateur record. J. P. Sullivan will make his debut as a professional in the mile, and endeavor to make the pace so fast in the early stages that it will stave off any sprint that Queal or Kolehmainen may possess in the last quarter. Other entrants in this race are: Harvey Cohn, former amateur champion; Al. Raines, Jimmy Lee, William Powers, George Hooley, and, possibly, Frank Kanaly, trainer of the M. I. T., Boston.

In addition to the running races there will be a five-mile amateur bicycle race in which Eddie Woodwin, William Van Ingen Jones, Franklin Fisher, and other pedal-pushers will strive for honors. The programme will wind up with a championship Gaelic football match between Kildare and Mayo. These teams are very evenly matched The game marks the opening of the championship series of matches at Celtic Park.

Michigan Alumni Conference Stand.

CHICAGO, April 4.—The Chicago Alumni Association of the University of Michigan at its twenty-fifth anniversary dinner last night went on record in favor of the return of Michigan to the Western Conference. The resolution, which instructs officials of the association to obtain favorable action by the Board of Regents in regard to faculty control of athletics, which is the chief point of difference with the "big nine" conference, was adopted, but a number of votes were cast against it. According to John D. Hibbard, alumni member of the Michigan Board of Control, all that remains for formal readmission to the conference is action by the Regents in changing the complexion of the council which controls athletics. This action, he said, probably will be taken within the next two months, and at the June meeting of the Western Conference everything will be ready for the re-entrance of Michigan into Western athletics.

New Rochelle Y. C. Schedule.

Beginning on May 4, when the club will hold its annual shad dinner, the New Rochelle Yacht Club has arranged for a series of competitions and entertainments for the coming season. During June there will be special entertainments arranged for ladies, and in July mid-week dances and Venetian fete day will be held. The annual smoker and vaudeville show will be held some time in September. The racing dates are as follows: July 5, sailing yacht race to Stratford Shoal and return; race for motor boats over same course; Aug. 9, annual cruise with daily races for sail and motor boats; Aug. 23, Summer regatta, open to all classes, and Aug. 30, club power boat race.

Colorado Boxing Bill Reconsidered.

DENVER, April 4.—Prospects for legal ten-round boxing contests in Colorado under a State Boxing Commission became brighter to-day when the Senate reconsidered the boxing measure killed recently. After amending the bill to provide ten-round bouts the clubs paying an annual license of $250, the Senate passed it on second reading, thus paving the way for final consideration. The measure has passed the House.

NOTES OF THE BOXERS.

Forfeits were posted yesterday guaranteeing weight and appearance for Leach Cross and Joe Rivers, who come together in a ten-round bout at the St. Nicholas A. C. next Tuesday night. Joss McMahon, representing the club; Sam Wallach for Cross, and Joe Levy for Rivers posted $1,000 each with a local paper. The conditions call for 133 pounds at 9:45 o'clock on the night of the contest, with the additional provision that the boxers must be in the ring at 10 o'clock. The advance sale of tickets for this match has already reached $3,500, and the indication is that it will reach the highest figure for any bout outside Madison Square Garden. Rivers is to receive a guarantee of $5,500, while Cross is working on a percentage basis.

Sam Wallach, manager of Leach Cross, announces that if Leach is successful against Joe Rivers in their bout next week he will immediately post a forfeit of $2,500 to bind a match between Cross and Ritchie for any number of rounds or for any weight which Ritchie may demand.

The sixth and last of the amateur boxing tournaments which have been conducted at the Crescent A. C. of Brooklyn during the Winter months will be staged on April 10 and 12, with bouts in five divisions—108, 115, 125, 135, and 150 pounds. Nearly all of the metropolitan champions have signified their intention of entering, and a number of the lesser lights will endeavor to reverse some of the verdicts of the recent tournaments. The entry list will remain open for several days.

J. MAYER WINS BILLIARD HONORS

Brooklyn Player Beats Gardner in Deciding Game for the Amateur 18.2 Title.

STANDING OF PLAYERS.

	Won.	Lost.	High Run.	Best Average.
Mayer	6	0	130	22 4-18
Conklin	5	1	100	17 9-32
Gardner	4	2	89	15 10-26
Collins	2	4	93	14 22-27
Morton	2	4	72	11 11-22
Dunlway	1	5	81	11 11-33
Uffenheimer	1	5	65	10

PHILADELPHIA, April 4.—Joseph Mayer of Brooklyn won the national amateur 18.2 billiard championship of America to-night, defeating E. W. Gardner of East Orange, N. J., in the final game of the tournament by the score 400 to 267. The winner made a high run of 130 and his average was 19 1-21. Gardner's high run was 48 and his average 12 15-21.

Mayer's run of 130 in the sixth inning was the highest of the tournament, and among the best in the history of amateur 18.2 billiards. He had made a run of 55 in the preceding innings, and it looked as though he would establish a new best average record. His runs of 22, 68, and 43 in the eighth, ninth, and tenth innings, which he closed by missing a bank shot by a narrow margin, were followed by blank innings, and his average was rapidly reduced. Six times in succession the balls were left widely spread by Gardner and Mayer, in spite of his knowledge of cushion play, was unable to tally. His first shot in the seventeenth inning was of the scratch variety, the cue ball connecting on the rebound after it seemed that he had been blanked for the seventh time.

Gardner was blanked in his first three innings, missing comparatively easy shots. He showed a flash of his true form in the fifth and sixth, when he compiled totals of 45 and 48, and played fairly consistent billiards from the tenth to the fourteenth inning, when he had runs of 20, 33, 25, and 27, leaving his opponent safe in each instance. Summary:

Gardner—0 0 0 6 45 48 15 3 0 20 2 33 25 27 2 1 18 0 13 8 1. Total, 267. High run, 48. Average, 12 15-21.

Mayer—0 8 17 6 55 130 1 22 68 43 0 0 0 0 0 6 30 10 7 2. Total, 400. High run, 130. Average, 19 1-21.

Mayer, by his victory, secures a leg on the trophy of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, which must be won twice to secure permanent possession. He also won the prizes offered for the highest run and best average.

J. E. Cope Morton of Philadelphia defeated Wilkie C. Duniway of Portland, Ore., in the afternoon game by the score of 400 to 179. Morton's high run was 43 and his average 9 13-43. Dunfway's high run was 28 and his average 4 7-43.

The Pacific Coast champion was suffering from a heavy cold and played below his usual form. This enabled the Union League representative to play a more open game, and when he had the balls together to score rapidly. Although Morton required forty-three innings to complete his string, the actual time consumed was less than in any previous match in the tournament except the one in which Mayer went out in eighteen innings. The game was completed in less than two hours and a quarter.

Duniway failed to score in his first two innings, and Morton took the lead with runs of 16 and 19. The Philadelphian continued to lead by a good margin to the end, and was more than one hundred points ahead in every inning after the fifteenth, when he had his high run of 43.

His victory puts Morton in a tie for fourth place with Percy Collins of Chicago, each having won two games and lost four. Summary:

FIGHTS REAL MUTINY OF FIRE FIGHTERS

Commissioner Johnson Can't See the Use of Firemen Who Won't Go to Fires.

APPEAL TO THE GRAND JURY

Head of Department, Unable to Make Newtown Chief Obey Orders, Goes to Courts.

After several weeks of ineffectual parleying with the volunteer fire companies at Newtown, in Queens, Fire Commissioner Joseph Johnson has decided that he has a real mutiny upon his hands. It is the first mutiny with which the Fire Department has had to deal, and Commissioner Johnson has been rather disconcerted about it.

For several hours yesterday the Fire Commissioner read the laws to see what could be done with mutineers. He read the laws of the sea and learned that if he were the skipper of a fireboat and it was his crew that had mutineered he could clap them all in chains and be done with it. But he found that the men of Newtown manned only engines and trucks and that there was no chance of coaxing them out to sea on a fireboat.

So the Commissioner turned to the ordinances of the city. Here he struck another snag, for while he found plenty of authority for bringing charges against a city fireman who might want to select what fires he should go to and what fires he should sleep through, he found that the Newtown firemen enjoyed a unique civic contract. Under this contract Commissioner Johnson has to furnish them with hay for their horses and harness and fire engines and pay, but he can't say a single word by way of command to the Newtown Chief.

"Pay" Hidden Under "Grant."

The "pay," it should be explained, isn't exactly called that. It is a "grant," and as it is in excess of all the other costs of keeping up the fire equipment, including the furnishing of fire hose, Commissioner Johnson insists that in the equivalent of pay. The grant amounts to $1,200 per year to each of the six engine companies in Newtown, and $1,000 per year for each of the seven truck companies in Newtown.

This brings the budget for the Newtown volunteers up to $14,200 per year, and Commissioner Johnson concluded after figuring it up that the sum is entirely too large to pay to a fire chief who tells his men they need not mind the alarms unless they come in through certain styles of boxes.

The final hope of smashing the mutiny Commissioner Johnson thought he found in the State Penal Code. He read a paragraph setting forth that it is a misdemanor to "interfere with putting out a fire." The Commissioner's conclusion was that Fire Chief Victor B. Webber of the Newtown companies had certainly interfered with his men while they were—that is while they should have been—putting out a fire.

With the penal code to back him up, Commissioner Johnson appealed to District Attorney Matthew J. Smith of Queens County to call a Grand Jury together and have the law on the mutinous fire chief, that were in any way possible. Commissioner Johnson furnished District Attorney Smith a full statement of the mutiny, its causes, the threats made in writing that it would occur, and what he alleged were the results in the destruction of the home of Joseph Lavlano at 9 Lenox Avenue, Winfield, on the night of March 31. The loss at this fire Commissioner Johnson put at $5,500, and he gave it as his belief that a full investigation would prove conclusively that the house burned down because the Fire Department refused to answer an alarm.

What his statement of the trouble with the Newtown volunteers Commissioner Johnson gave to the Queens County District Attorney a document which he said would plainly prove that mutiny had been planned and intended. This letter announced that the Newtown Fire Department would refuse to answer alarms unless they came from a certain type of fire box, different in design from the type adopted by the city as a standard. This was the concluding paragraph:

"You may think this is stubbornness on our part, which, no doubt, it is; but it is only a matter of principle. This trouble can easily be adjusted by your department if you will only take off the keyless door (on the fire alarm boxes) and substitute it with a lock and key on same, and until this is done we shall not answer to any of these boxes or any other keyless boxes which you may install in the future."

The letter bore the signature of Burkhard H. Herold, Secretary of the Fire Department.

And They Kept Their Word.

At the office of Commissioner Johnson it was said that the letter was considered to be just a bit of rhetoric until two days ago, when reports came in of the destruction by fire of the Lavlano home, the reports asserting that no firemen appeared to assist in putting out the fire.

The trouble over keyless boxes, it was explained, was a trouble the department could not adjust, since a standard box had been decided upon, and it had to be used in every part of the city. An odd feature of the trouble, according to Commissioner Johnson, is that the keyless box was devised precisely to do away with the evil which the Newtown volunteers fear it will foster. It was decided upon because of the number of false alarms turned in from the dealers' row paying from $4 to $6 a ton, as against $2 a ton charged last year.

"We expect the public to help in our fight. Joseph A. Sheridan, who is organizing it, is receiving offers of help from ice cream men, liquor dealers, and restaurant proprietors."

DELEO APPEAL DISMISSED.

Saloonkeeper Who Shared in Taxi Robbery Must Go to Prison.

There was an echo of the $25,000 Church Street taxicab robbery in the Appellate Division yesterday, when the court handed down a decision dismissing the appeal of Robert Deleo, the Thompson Street saloonkeeper, from his conviction for criminally receiving stolen property. The robbery took place on April 15, 1912.

On that day the East River Savings Institution sent two clerks to the Produce Exchange Bank in a taxicab to get cash. The chauffeur drove under the elevated on Church Street, and at Rector Street three men leaped aboard. One of them sat on the seat with the chauffeur and the others attacked the clerks.

The evidence showed that the thieves had gone to a saloon kept by Deleo to divide the money and that the saloonkeeper had received $4,750 of it as hush money. Deleo was sentenced to serve not less than two years and six months, nor more than four years and two months, in State Prison.

AN ANTI-SUFFRAGE ANNEX.

Active Campaign Against Votes for Women to be Waged from It.

An "Anti-Suffrage Annex" will be opened at 28 Fifth Avenue, between Thirty-eighth and Thirty-ninth Street, early next week by the New York State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, Miss Alice Chittenden, its President, announced last night. The association still maintains its headquarters on the third floor of 35 West Thirty-ninth Street and will operate the annex in conjunction with it.

Women prominent in society will unite with wage-earning women as volunteer workers to assist members of the association's Executive Committee who will take turns in presiding over the new annex. This is on the ground floor and strong propaganda work will be done from it, the President said. The annex will be decorated in the anti-suffrage colors, black and white and rose, and each day meetings and group conferences will be held there.

GOUCHER MILLION PLEDGED.

College Fund Completed by Telephone in Lively Finish.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 4.—At 10:30 o'clock to-night, the million-dollar fund for Goucher College was completed, ending a vigorous campaign.

The fund at 10:15 was within $8,000 of the goal. Confidence was expressed that the needed subscriptions would be forthcoming by midnight. The leaders went into conference to consider ways and means.

It was announced five minutes afterward that Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, had called on the telephone from Cincinnati and had his name put down for $10,000.

When, before that, the total showed that over $16,000 still was needed, Bishop Henderson asked why "a Board of Goucher Underwriters" should not be organized at once. He requested that those present assume that part of the fund.

The Rev. John B. Van Meter said he would put the alumnae down for $1,000 more. B. W. Corcoran assured another $1,000 for the Women's Committee. The Rev. C. W. Baldwin and the Rev. E. L. Watson announced $1,000 for the Preachers' Committee. Mr. Stone said if $10,000 were subscribed he would assume the responsibility for the remaining $3,500. That reduced the amount needed to $10,000 by 10 o'clock.

In a few minutes it was announced that Mr. Corcoran would subscribe $500 more; that $1,500 had been subscribed over the telephone, and that $4,500 had been pledged from other sources, making a total of $8,500 since 10 o'clock and reducing the needed amount to $8,000. Then came Mr. Willard's subscription.

DISBARS FOUR LAWYERS.

Appellate Division Sends Charges Against Two Others to Referees.

The Appellate Division disbarred four lawyers yesterday. They were Reno R. Billington, William B. Singer, Martin Zatulove, and Henry M. Heymann. Billington was disbarred for writing two letters to C. E. Stade, who was a fugitive from justice, living under an assumed name in Philadelphia, in 1904 and 1905. The letters concerned the possibility of bribing a detective who was charged with serving a warrant on Stade and suggested that money be sent to Billington. Of this, the court said:

"He not only suggested to Stade that he would violate the law of this State, and not only advised, but actually attempted to participate in the violation and to obstruct the administration of justice."

Heymann was found guilty of having caused a forged satisfaction on an unpaid judgment to be filed in a Municipal Court. He later filed a transcript of the forgery with the County Clerk. The court observed:

"The whole evidence in this case, including the examination of the respondent himself, convinces us that he is not a person who should remain a member of the legal profession."

Singer was disbarred for presenting a false affidavit of service as a clerk in the office of Zatulove. Zatulove was disbarred for making the false affidavit. The court characterized the making of the affidavit as "perjury, fraud, and deceit."

The Appellate Division sent charges against two attorneys, Owen W. Bohan and Charles H. Herbst, to the official referee yesterday. The Bar Association charged that Bohan, who was a member of the Assembly in 1906, 1907, and 1909, went to Joseph K. Van Denberg, President of the Men Teachers and Principals Association, and Warren I. Lee, its attorney, with representations that upon payment of $3,500 he could procure the insertion into the proposed new City Charter of a clause they might prepare and submit to him.

The charge continues that Bohan said he needed the greater part of the $3,500 for the "interests" at Albany.

The charges against Herbst concerns his conduct as assignee for the firm of Grovenan & Kahn. Herbst asserted that he could show that his conduct had been entirely proper and that the charges against him were based on misinformation.

PERFECTING ICE CASE.

Dealers Who Want Inquiry to Visit Whitman in a Few Days.

John McDonagh, an independent ice dealer, who is participating in the dealers' movement to demand an investigation of ice prices by District Attorney Whitman, said last night that the fact that those backing the movement had not yet called on Mr. Whitman must not be construed as a failure on their part to act.

"Mr. Whitman may be ready and willing," he said, "and may even be disappointed that we haven't been to see him, but he will not have to wait longer than a few days.

"We are going a little slower than we first thought would be necessary, as we have wanted to perfect a case that would give the District Attorney a good view of the whole problem at one session with our committee.

"Part of the data we are going to give the District Attorney has to do with the cost of harvest ice. This will help him to make up his mind what a fair and reasonable price would be should the price be based on the cost of production instead of the power to squeeze the New York market.

"So far as we have been able to learn the cost of cutting ice is 18 cents a ton, and the cost of loading it on barges is from 15 to 18 cents a ton. At the docks in this city it should not represent an actual outlay to the owner of more than 40 cents a ton, but we are allowing 85 cents a ton to be extremely liberal. And for ice costing that much dealers are now paying from $4 to $6 a ton, as against $2 a ton charged last year.

"We expect the public to help in our fight. Joseph A. Sheridan, who is organizing it, is receiving offers of help from ice cream men, liquor dealers, and restaurant proprietors."

URGES MORALS COMMISSION

Spokane Chief Has Plan to End Graft Charges Against the Police.

Special to The New York Times.

SPOKANE, April 4.—Z. E. Hayden, Commissioner of Public Safety, is urging the Common Council of the city of Spokane to pass an ordinance creating a public welfare commission to look after the social evil, gambling and juvenile delinquency.

"We can successfully divorce the Police Department from the perpetual and usually false charges of graft and dishonesty in only one way," said the Commissioner to-day. "That is by placing with some other body the duty of looking after the morals of the city. I cannot see any adequate reason why the police, any more than other city departments, should be the sole directors of a city's morals.

"My plan is to have a paid commission of five persons, detailed to look after the social evil, gambling and juvenile matters, in the same manner as the city charities commission looks after the charitable affairs of the municipality. This commission should be under the direct control of the City Council."

AUTO SHOW PASSES FROM THE GARDEN

And Palace Will Offer Pleasure Cars Only Next Year, Trucks Being Banished.

Something of a sensation was created in automobile circles in this city yesterday when it became known that next year's automobile show would be held in Grand Central Palace only, Madison Square Garden being abandoned for the 1914 exhibition. But this was not all the news Automobile Row received. In addition, it was announced that the next show would be one of pleasure cars only, the motor truck show being given up. This action has been anticipated for some time, and there has been much discussion about the value of truck shows. Definite decision has hung in the air, so to speak, however. When the Executive Committee of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers met on Wednesday this matter came up for discussion, and it was decided to withhold action thereon until after the Automobile Board of Trade, under the auspices of which the shows are held in New York, had held a meeting on Thursday. As these two bodies will soon consolidate, the N. A. A. M. Executive Committee thought it well to sound the sentiment of the Board of Trade's meeting.

At its postponed meeting on Thursday, after the board's gathering, however, the Manufacturers' Committee decided to send out a letter to all the members of the organization seeking their opinion on the truck show question, and decided also that unless there was a widespread demand for its continuance it would not be held here again. Motor World was the authority for the further statement yesterday that the truck show would be abandoned next year in Chicago. It was said last night at the offices of the N. A. A. M. that there was no anticipation of any demand for the truck shows to continue, as the manufacturers had found them to cost more than the return warranted.

The decision to hold next year's pleasure car show in but one building was foreshadowed in THE TIMES some time ago, and is a result of the belief of many automobile men that a more effective show can be staged under one roof than under two. It will proably mean the utilization of six entire floors of the Palace for the exhibition of 1914. To many it will seem odd, however, not to see the automobile show in the Garden where it has been put on for thirteen years, ever since the first exhibition of the kind in this country, at which a handful of "one-lungers" and other primitive machines were gathered in the centre of the big floor and were demonstrated around a board track that offered no impediment to their somewhat precarious operation.

One of the newcomers to the sliding valve motor field has just undergone a series of official tests in the testing laboratory of the Automobile Club of America, and attained a high, practical horse power of 32.8 at 1,990 revolutions a minute, although it is a very small motor and has a piston displacement of but 166 cubic inches. The motor has crescent shaped valves between the piston and cylinder wall, there being an inlet and exhaust valve for each cylinder. The valve slides are operated by a box cam, imparting a positive motion, in both opening and closing. In regard to the performance of this novel engine design under the club's test, R. C. Carpenter of the Department of Experimental Engineering of Cornell University, said yesterday:

"The results obtained with the M.A.G.I.C. motor were extremely good for economy and capacity. The engine operated during the tests with practically no noise in its working parts. In general appearance the motor is one of extreme simplicity, since no moving parts are visible."

The Automobile Club of Philadelphia has joined the crusade against roller skating in the streets, which is being waged by many motorists in different cities. It is the contention of the automobile drivers that this pastime is a dangerous one for children, in view of the increasing motor and horse traffic, and that it should be prohibited.

SUIT OVER TOUR BOOK.

Automobile Blue Book Complains of Copyright Violation.

The Automobile Club of America was made defendant yesterday in a suit filed against it in equity, as the publisher of its Tour Book, by the Automobile Blue Book Publishing Company. The complaint was filed by ex-Assistant District Attorney Smith as counsel for Horace W. Swetland, President of the Blue Book Company. It states that this concern was the successor of the Class Journal Company and F. S. Blanchard & Co., and since June 1, 1909, has been engaged in the publication of automobiling books. It has thus issued the Automobile Blue Book as an annual, in which is much information, tables of statistics, and descriptions of motoring routes, which the publisher collected with a good deal of cost and labor.

It is then asserted that the defendant in its Tour Book has copied, pirated, and appropriated for literary purposes a great deal of this costly matter. Consequently an injunction is sought to restrain the defendant from copying any of the matter contained in the Blue Book until the validity of the complainant's copyrights may be established. It is also asked that the defendant be forced to give an accounting of all books it has published and to pay over to the Automobile Blue Book Publishing Company all profits derived from the sale of the Tour Book since 1908.

Among the officers and Directors of the Automobile Company of America are William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Judge Elbert H. Gary, Frederick W. Whitridge, Alexander J. Hemphill, and Colgate Hoyt.

FAVOR CHURCH UNION.

Disciples of Christ and Episcopalians Discuss Reunion of Christendom.

At a conference held this week between members of the Disciples of Christ and members of the Christian Unity Foundation a resolution was adopted indorsing a proposed form of agreement between the Protestant Episcopal Church and the Disciples of Christ, whereby the two churches might be amalgamated. According to a statement issued yesterday by the Rev. Arthur Lowndes, Secretary of the foundation, this was the most important step ever taken in this country toward the reunion of Christendom. The conference was informal and unofficial.

At a conference with the Presbyterians in May, 1911, the resolutions passed in Australia in 1906 and 1907 by representatives of the Church of England in Australia and the Presbyterians, as a basis for corporate reunion, were taken up and passed with some amendments. At a conference with the Congregationalists on Feb. 12, 1912, these same resolutions were passed again. Finally the resolutions were passed with some alterations at the conference this week with the Disciples of Christ. The alterations were slight, and tended simply to make the resolutions clearer.

The Disciples of Christ stand fifth in numerical strength of all Christians in the United States. They are exceeded in number only by the Roman Catholics, the Methodists, the Baptists, and the Presbyterians. In 1910 they had 1,142,850 communicants, as compared with 886,942 in the Protestant Episcopal Church.

"The Disciples of Christ at the conference this week were the Rev. Dr. Peter Ainslie of Baltimore, the Rev. F. W. Burham of Springfield, Ill.; the Rev. Dr. Finis Idleman of Des Moines, Iowa; the Rev. Dr. James M. Philputt of New York, and the Rev. Edward B. Bagby, the Rev. Henry C. Armstrong, the Rev. Francis H. Scott, and William P. Lipscomb, all of Baltimore, Md. The members of the Episcopal Church present were Bishop Courtney, Dean Douglas, the Rev. Reese F. Alsop, the Rev. R. T. Homans, Francis C. Huntington, David B. Ogden, and Dr. Lowndes.

ASK $37,000 FOR CLEANING.

Committee to Go Before Aldermen to Urge Appropriation.

Pressure will be brought to bear on the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen to apropriate the $37,000 necessary for the Spring clean-up of the city when the matter comes before the committee on Monday, it was learned yesterday. The necessity of cleaning up the city was discussed yesterday at a meeting of the Sanitary Committee of the Health Department. Marion B. McMillan, Assistant Sanitary Superintendent, said that a committee made up of representatives of many civic associations as well as a number of merchants would go before the Finance Committee on Monday and urge that the money be appropriated.

"New York has no civic pride," said Mr. McMillan at the meeting. "We don't see people get together for the common good. One borough does a thing in one way and its neighbor does the same thing in a different manner. But this is one thing where we can all meet on common ground."

Alderman Frank Dowling of the Finance Committee said yesterday that he was not opposed to the granting of the money and that he would move on Monday to report the matter out of the committee.

GERMAN FUR TRADE HURT.

Balkan War Hindered Leipsic Business in 1912—U. S. Imports Lower.

Russia was the largest importer, especially of the better class, of furs, from the Leipsic, Germany, consular district during 1912. The declared value of raw, dressed and dyed furs and skins exported from that district to the United States in 1912 was $7,284,867, against $7,656,913 in the year previous. In France, where almost all kinds of furs find a ready market, the trade was much enhanced by the prevailing fashions.

Throughout Germany the season of 1911-12 at first had every indication of an extensive trade, but fell off considerably because of political conditions. There was no material change in the amount of exports to England, while the trade with Italy increased. In the beginning trade with Austria showed great activity, but later was seriously affected by the Balkan war. Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland, and the Dominion of Canada made extensive purchases. Fur dressers and dyers were fully occupied throughout the year.

TRICK TO WEIGH COAL SHORT

Dealer Used an Automatic Balance When Inspectors Were Around.

A new scheme employed by coal dealers to cheat their customers was disclosed in the Tombs Court yesterday when Barnet Fishman, a coal dealer of 101 Broome Street, was arraigned for selling short weight coal.

Commissioner John L. Walsh of the Department of Weights and Measures was the complainant. He said in one of the defendant's wagons he found a box under the seat, which was intended to hold coal that was to be added to the regular coal load when an Inspector was around. This box, Mr. Walsh said, was so arranged that by simply moving his seat the driver could release the coal under the box and register the correct weight.

Arrested with Fishman was one of his drivers, Benjamin Golder. Both men were held for further examination Tuesday.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

The Argentine Government has approved the estimates for working the State lines during the current year, ending June 30, 1913, and made up as follows: General administration, $199,000; administrative department, $360,000; running department, $4,250,000; technical department, $2,843,000.

Grapefruit is known to few in Belgium, and Consul General Diederich suggests that with the co-operation of an active agent a good business might be built up in this Florida specialty. He sends a list of leading Antwerp fruit dealers, which may be had from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Confectionery of all kinds was imported in the Straits Settlements in 1911 to the value of $72,448 United States currency. Of this amount the United Kingdom supplied more than 90 per cent., the remainder originating in France, Germany, and the United States.

AMONG THE SHOPS.

"Marie Antoinette" baskets, filled with artificial moss and small red electric flower bulbs, are priced at $12 and $15. The baskets are of china in a variety of silver holders of very open design. They measure about 10 inches in length and about 8 inches in height.

Crepe silks for gowns are most popular this season and come in several kinds and qualities. Canton silk crepe, 42 inches wide, is $4 a yard. Crepe brocade, plain and crinkled, is $2.50 and $3 a yard. Kobe crinkled crepe, more than a yard wide, is also $2.50 a yard.

Imported English washable voile, all white, is offered for 29 cents a yard. A charming washable white material, called "Carolean voile," is $5.98 a yard. It is an open weave check, with large, white batiste roses and scalloped points in a deep border about 20 inches high, appliqued along the edge.

SHOE MEN FIGHTING AGAINST TARIFF CUT

Bulletin Sent to Congress Pleading for Retention of the Present Duties.

DOMESTIC TRADE IN PERIL

Tariff Reduction Would Affect Industry Producing $600,000,000 Annually—Burden on Workmen.

Domestic manufacturers of footwear are making a strong fight for the retention of the present duties levied on competitive foreign-made merchandise. Under the caption "An Appeal to Reason" they have set forth their side of the tariff question in a bulletin that is being sent to various representatives in Congress.

"A critical situation presents itself to the American shoe manufacturing trade," they say, "an industry that employs more than 200,000 workers, in which some $300,000,000 capital is invested, and with a value of annual production reaching well toward $600,000,000, a sum in excess of the value of shoe production in England, France, Germany, Italy, and Austria.

The duty on shoes imported into this country was for a long time fixed at 25 per cent., a rate much below the average. Three years ago in the Payne law this duty was cut in half; notwithstanding this, last Summer a bill was passed by both houses of Congress taking away the other half and throwing shoes on the "free list"—alone among all articles worn by man, woman, or child, from head to foot—and thus being exposed to the opening competition of labor abroad, invariably cheaper than American labor.

"The retail dealer in shoes, not less than the worker, the manufacturer, and the wholesale dealer, views with apprehension anything tending toward the serious disturbing of conditions and the sharpening of an already keen competition which has resulted in placing shoes at the bottom of the column in margin of profit in making or selling, as compared with any other general commodity or line of merchandise.

"The American shoe manufacturer is not unduly timorous, but he knows exceedingly well the very narrow limit of profit upon which he is now working. He knows also the American labor market, in which he has to purchase his operative help in competition with industries the products of which are 'protected' by duties triple and quadruple those that are levied on shoes; he knows how swiftly a small margin of profit can be changed to loss."

Further protest is voiced "because the shoe trade took its reduction three years ago, when the Payne law cut the former duty of 25 per cent. in half by lowering the schedule to 10 per cent. on shoes of bovine leather and 15 per cent. on shoes of 'kid' leather; because the duties levied on shoes are already far below those on other wearable articles, and because whatever may be the prevailing opinion as to the merits of 'protection' as a principle, any duty acts as a protection, as far as it goes, and helps to establish conditions to which all industries are subject."

EARLY FUR ORDERS LIKELY.

Marshall Field & Co. Say Higher Prices Are Expected.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 4.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the dry-goods trade, say:

"Warmer weather stimulated retail selling to greater volume than during the preceding week, and general mercantile conditions are normal, excepting in sections affected by floods and storms. Collections are good.

"Fur lines for Fall are now being shown and first orders coming in indicate that retailers are ready to place their business early, in view of higher prices anticipated from the report of the London fur market for March, which states that the attendance of buyers from all over the world was large and the outlook for the coming season appears very favorable. It further states that advances were asked on black marten, opossum, civet cat, beaver, and mink. Style tendencies suggest that a variety of furs will be worn during 1913. Novelty scarfs, ties, and throws will be good sellers.

"The demand for long silk gloves is increasing and a scarcity is imminent, as manufacturers did not have confidence to make up as many long gloves as usual."

GEM IMPORTS INCREASE.

Dealers Here Anticipate Advance in Tariff Rates.

Figures compiled by William B. Treadwell, Jewelry Examiner at the Appraiser's Stores, show that the imports of gems for March, in this city were, with a single exception, the largest recorded for that month. The total value of the diamonds, pearls, and other precious stones brought in was $4,841,179. In March, 1912, these imports amounted to $2,162,772. In March, 1910, the total was $4,025,264.

Since Jan. 1, gems worth $12,540,609 have been brought into this country through the Port of New York. The increase in these imports was thought to be due to fear on the part of the dealers here that the duty would be increased under the new tariff.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Regarding the present condition of trade Dun's Review says:

The general trade outlook continues very satisfactory, although conservatism in all branches is manifest. The disastrous floods of last week caused more or less interruption to transporting and distributing agencies, but as these are restored a return to full normal activity is expected. Fortunately, the flood damage, while great, was by no means as large as the first reports indicated. March bank clearings were 2.4 per cent. less than last year, though 5.1 per cent. larger than in 1911. Railroad earnings during four weeks of March, on the other hand, made the important gain of 7 per cent. While the iron and steel industry was disorganized by the floods, mills and furnaces are rapidly resuming work and fundamental conditions remain distinctly favorable. Reports from the textile trades indicate a substantial and healthy demand, which, while not anticipating the future to any large extent, shows that there is a steady consumption that makes current every day purchases very heavy. With the advantage of settled weather, retail and wholesale domestic trade is expected to expand greatly. Building operations are generally active. Winter wheat conditions are excellent. The balance of marchandise exports over imports in eight months amounted to $474,000,000; and the favorable foreign trade situation continues.

Bradstreet's says:

Irregularity, with a tendency toward more or less repression, is the chief characteristic of trade advices. It is true that retail trade has improved somewhat, and that returns from the Northwest generally and from parts of the Southwest show activity, but, on the other hand, the situation in the South, as well as in the flood stricken areas of the West, is such as to curtail buying, while in the East there is a disposition to temporarily mark time. In fact, it is probable that there is a general desire to wait, especially as tariff matters are now well to the front, while at the same time money and credit matters demand attention. However, it must be noted that some of the repression is due to the seasonal slowing down of jobbing trade. Where crops were favorable, and where there has been no flood damage nor fears of overflows to come, as, for instance, outside the Mississippi Valley, house trade is of fair volume, and road orders run from satisfactory to liberal. Crop conditions outside of the flooded area of the Central West, and save in a section of the Texas Panhandle, are favorable, while other fundamental conditions are sound.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Kraus, McKeever & Adams, leather goods, 170 Fifth Avenue, have leased the entire fifteenth floor of the Springs Building, 29 West Thirty-eighth Street.

Frank & Frank, cloaks and suits, 41 West Twenty-first Street, will move in about a month to new quarters in the building at 141 West Twenty-eighth Street. They will occupy the eleventh loft there.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Einstein-Wolff Company, 1,116 Broadway, will be held at that address Monday at 1 o'clock. The company deals principally in laces and embroideries.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

Retail Furriers Organize.

The National Retail Furriers' Association has been organized for the purpose of getting the trade together on a more friendly basis, restoring public confidence and eliminating objectionable features that now exist in the retail fur business. An information bureau has been established for the matching of furs for color and quality, individually an expensive process, and the publishing of a directory of habitual non-paying customers for the use of the members. A sales bureau has been provided for the purchasing of skins direct from importers or dealers, at a resultant lesser cost, and a collection bureau has been established for the handling of delinquent accounts.

The association will endeavor also to further the American styles for American women movement through the holding of style congresses and exhibitions.

Upholstery Fabrics for Dresses?

Importers, converters and jobbers are displaying interest in the merits of scrims, cretonnes, satin damasks and printed linens as dress materials. The possibility of these materials meeting general approval appears to be based both on the trend of fashion and the values of the goods. Cretonnes are showing a rare riot of colors so popular in the Bulgarian vogue, and have already been shown made up into coats and exhibited on living models by a well-known retail firm. From the economy viewpoint, scrims are the best of the lot. Their cheapness and good wearing qualities should make them exceedingly popular. Hand-printed English linens would undoubtedly share the success of the movement, as they combine quality with striking designs.

***

Against Small Firms Incorporating.

Comenting on the growing tendency of small concerns to limit their liability by incorporating, the April letter of the National Association of Credit Men says:

A member of the association finds that there are a number of small people seeking to limit their liability under the cloak of incorporation—small merchants who have fair nominal, but small real, investment in their business, though considerable outside, which they wish to put beyond the risk of the business. Creditors in such cases should protect themselves by getting personal guarantees of officers and owners. This member says his house has frequently suffered losses by selling such corporations, though it was found that the officers were possessed of ample outside means. The tendency to incorporate, he believes, is important enough to require concerted action among creditors in demanding guarantees.

COMPLAINS OF DOCK DELAY.

Maritime Exchange Also Favors Downtown 1,000-Foot Pier.

The present dock policy of Mayor Gaynor and the Board of Estimate which led to the removal of Calvin Tomkins as Dock Commissioner came up for discussion at a meeting at the Maritime Exchange yesterday.

C. H. Callaghan, as Chairman of the Pier Committee of the association, said that the city had turned its back on the commercial interests of the port. Steamship men, he said, were prevented from starting new lines and business was tied up for lack of dock and terminal facilities because for three years the present city administration had turned a deaf ear to the demands of the steamship men.

"Immense business is lost to this port," he said, "and with the opening of the Panama and Erie Canals the loss will be greater. All the other seaports are being improved while New York is at a standstill."

Former Dock Commissioner Tomkins spoke in favor of his plan to build 1,000-foot steamship docks downtown, and a resolution, offered by C. R. Norman, former President of the Exchange, calling for the immediate construction of a 1,000-foot pier below Canal Street to cost less than $1,000,000 instead of a pier at Forty-ninth Street at a cost of $5,000,000, as favored by the Board of Estimate, was adopted. Copies of this resolution were sent to Mayor Gaynor and other city officials.

WOOL MARKET SLOW.

Tariff Outlook Puts Check on Trading in Boston.

BOSTON, April 4.—The Commercial Bulletin of Boston will say to-morrow of the wool market:

"Up to Thursday when news came from Washington to the effect that free raw wool had been decided upon by the Ways and Means Committee, trading had improved somewhat in the Boston wool market, several fair sized transactions having been put through. The atmosphere changed considerably however, when the new position at Washington became known and the latter part of the week has been extremely dull. However, prices have not changed materially from those in force a week ago.

"The West has not yet made any decided move in the matter of marketing the new clip.

"The shipments of wool from Boston, from Jan. 1 to April 3 inclusive, were 56,206,968 pounds against 71,335,394 pounds for the same period last year. The receipts from Jan. 1 to April 3, inclusive, were 49,124,541 pounds against 62,231,294 pounds for the same period last year."

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Creels Are Not Fishing Tackle—Wooden Images Denied Free Entry.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday decided that willow baskets for fishermen are not "tackle, or parts thereof," under the Tariff Act of 1909. The Frank P. Dow Company, Inc., imported the baskets at Port Townsend, Wash., where the collector exacted a duty of 45 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 193, on the ground that as the baskets were part of the equipment of fishermen, they were dutiable as "tackle." The importers contended that the articles were dutiable as "willow baskets" at 35 per cent., under Paragraph 214, regardless of the use to which they were put. Judge Fischer agreed.

Doroteo Esparza imported at San Juan, Porto Rico, wooden images, the production of Miguel Castellanas of Barcelona, Spain. Duty was assessed at the rate of 35 per cent. ad valorem, under Paragraph 215, Act of 1909, as manufactures in chief value of wood. The importer said the statues were more than twenty years old, and therefore duty free, under Paragraph 717, as works of art. Judge Waite said that as no testimony was submitted to support the age of the articles, he would overrule the protest.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

M. ROSETT.—Some 300 persons, many of them women with babies in their arms, a part of the 6,000 creditors of M. Rosett, private banker, of 114 Liberty Street, with branches in Jersey City, Perth Amboy, Wilkesbarre, Penn., and Youngstown, Ohio, were in the United States District Court yesterday when the application of Moritz and Max Rosett for a discharge from bankruptcy came up for a hearing before Judge Mayer. FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Rise Further—Trading Most Active in Two Months.

Stock Exchange activities yesterday were in keeping with the new zest which was given to trading in the closing hour of Thursday's session. Dealings were on a more active scale than on any day since Jan. 30, and prices rose with sufficient uniformity to add another substantial fraction to the general level of quotations. The stock market has recovered since March 19 just one-half of the loss which occurred during the almost uninterrupted decline from the beginning of the year to that date. It was a matter of comment in respect to yesterday's forward movement in prices that investment stocks, to use that phrase in the limited sense in which it is often employed in stock market discussion, were not showing the vigor which was being displayed by the issues upon which speculative trading operations were being centred. But this does not quite fairly reflect the investment position, which is perhaps more accurately to be gauged by what has been going on in the bond market. There a recovery has occurred within the last two weeks which has made up three points of the five-point decline which occurred in the bond market since the opening of the year, as measured by the average quotation of forty bonds of all classes.

The extent of the decline in bond prices was very unusual, but so, too, has the recovery been rapid. The upturn which has occurred becomes all the more impressive when viewed in the light of two matters which present themselves as restraint on improving bond prices. One of these is the very large prospective supply of new securities, many of which will represent deferred requirements, and the other is the firmness of the money position. There has been improvement in the latter within recent days, but the belief is widespread among bankers that a considerable degree of firmness is likely to prevail indefinitely. At the moment call money is plentiful, measured by the extent of the demand for it, and time loans on collateral are obtainable at rates considerably below recent quotations, but limited demand has been an important factor in shaping the rates for these classes of loans. Commercial money, which is in large demand, is commanding 6 per cent. on paper of high grade. But even after making all due allowances there was enough divergence between the degree of strength shown by investment issues yesterday and those in which trading operations were on a large scale to emphasize the importance which dealings of that sort played in bringing about the further advance. But, whatever the character of the buying which swung prices upward, it was clear that little resistance in the way of liquidation of long stock was being encountered, and this in itself bespoke a feeling on the part of security holders that the recent decline had over-discounted those factors in the situation making for reaction.

The up-swing yesterday was more pronounced in the industrial than in the railroad group. Some of the so-called specialities made large gains, although a few of these suffered reactions. The increase in the dividends on United States Rubber common from 4 per cent. to 6 per cent., announced after the close of the market on Thursday, was one cause of the strength of the industrials. Another was the gratifying reports from the copper trade of further large sales of the metal at 15½ cents, which is seven-eighths of a cent a pound above the recent low price. The output of a number of the Western copper mines has lately been held down by adverse weather, the output of one large producer being over 10,000,000 pounds below its production to this date last year. The larger demand at home and abroad has been the chief influence in advancing the price, but this check on output has been a contributing factor.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned on Stock Exchange collateral at 3@4 per cent., with the last loan at 3¾ per cent. Most of the day's business was done at 3¾ per cent.

Time money rates were 4½@4¾ per cent. for sixty days to six months.

Commercial paper was quoted at 6 per cent. for the best names.

Clearing House exchanges, $295,855,911; balances, $18,851,873; Sub-Treasury credit balance, $625,762.

The local banks lost $6,810,000 on their Sub-Treasury operations this week.

FOREIGN RATES.

Discount rates abroad yesterday were: London, 4 15-16@4⅝ per cent. for short bills and 4⅝ per cent. for three months' bills; Paris, 4 per cent., and Berlin, 4¾@5 per cent. Money was 3½@4 per cent. in London and 5@5½ per cent. in Berlin.

The Paris check rate on London was 25f. 25½c., and the Berlin check rate on London was 20 marks 48½ pfennigs.

The Paris check rate on London was 25 francs 25 centimes and the Berlin check rate on London was 20 marks 47¼ pfennigs.

Foreign exchange rates at the points noted were quoted as follows at the close of business yesterday:

CABLE AND SIGHT RATES.

London—Cable, $4.8770; demand, $4.8715.
Paris—Cable, 5.17½ less 3.64; check, 5.18¼ less 1-32.
Berlin—Cable, 95¼ plus 1-32; check, 95¼ plus 1-32.
Switzerland—Cable, 5.18¾ less 1-32; check, 5.19⅝ less 1-32.
Holland—Cable, 40.20; check, 40.15.

SIXTY AND NINETY DAY BILLS.

London—Bankers', sixty days, $4.8330; ninety days, $4.8160.
London—Commercial, sixty days, $4.83; ninety days, $4.81⅝.
Paris—Commercial, sixty days, 5.22½; ninety days, 5.24⅝ plus 1-32.
Berlin—Commercial, sixty days, 94⅛ less 1-32; ninety days, 93⅞ less 1-32.

DOMESTIC EXCHANGE RATES.

Boston, par; Chicago, 25c. premium; St. Louis, 30c. premium; St. Paul, 60c. premium; San Francisco, 40c. premium; Montreal, 46⅞c. premium.

SILVER QUOTATIONS.

Bar silver was 1-16d lower in London at 26 11-16d., and ½c. lower in New York at 58c. per ounce.

THE TREASURY STATEMENT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The Treasury statement issued to-day gives receipts and expenditures for yesterday and for the elapsed periods of the month and of the fiscal year as follows:

	Thursday.	This Month.	Fiscal Yr.
Customs	$1,228,459	$3,197,211	$234,262,301
Internal rev.	863,108	2,227,701	233,402,143

Surplus	621,654	1,204,365	14,544,505

These figures exclude Panama Canal and public debt transactions.

The condition of the United States Treasury at the beginning of business to-day was: Working balance, $80,646,805. In banks and Philippine Treasury, $43,137,185. Total of general fund, $140,185,710.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Waiting on the Attorney General.

Nothing bearing on the attitude which Attorney General McReynolds will take toward the various points under discussion in connection with the attempt to work out a dissolution plan for the Harriman Pacifics has been learned by the Directors yet. Judge Lovett outlined the difficulties of the Union Pacific's problem of disposing of $126,650,000 of Southern Pacific stock in a depressed market, and the numerous complications which must ensue if a plan calling for the approval of the California Commission is insisted upon, when he was in Washington a few days ago, and left a number of documents with Mr. McReynolds. The Attorney General indicated that he would not be ready to announce his attitude until the latter part of next week. In particular, the Directors would like to learn whether or not the Southern Pacific must sell control of the Central Pacific, and if the court will look favorably upon a plan allowing the Union Pacific a year or two in which to dispose of its Southern Pacific shares. The Directors will have less than a month of their three months of grace left them to work out a plan when the Attorney General announces that he is ready for a conference.

***

All Friends of This Club.

Some of the Stock Exchange members who went to Albany for the hearing on the incorporation bill Thursday are laughing over a predicament in which they say Samuel Untermyer was placed on the homeward trip. In spite of his activities against the Exchange, there was no bitterness between the lawyer and the brokers who were in the same car with him, and when one of the Exchange members bought champagne he included Mr. Untermyer in a general invitation to share it. As the lawyer raised a glass to his lips the buyer offered a toast to the New York Stock Exchange. Mr. Untermyer submitted gracefully, whatever mental reservations he may have made.

***

A Well Informed Committee.

The Stock Exchange delegates to Albany were agreeably surprised at the extent of the legislators' knowledge on incorporation matters. They had evidently digested the Hughes report, the Pujo findings, and the literature sent out by the Exchange opposing incorporation, and their questions showed them to be well informed on the particular bill under consideration.

***

Goldfield Consolidated's Position.

While certificates of Goldfield Consolidated shares are still a good delivery, under a temporary suspension of the rules of the Stock Exchange, it was said yesterday that the company's officers had shown no disposition to abide by the regulations of the Exchange, and that unless pressure being brought by stockholders to compel the company to maintain a transfer office separate from the register's office brings results the issue will have to be stricken from the list. The Committee on Stock List meets Monday, when action will be taken on the Federal Smelters ownership question, but it is not expected that the Goldfield matter will be ready for action at that time. The committee still has hopes of being able to persuade the company to keep its shares on the board, in view of the large number of stockholders who might suffer by the loss of the open market.

***

Problem of Steel Output.

The most complete reports of damage to steel and iron plants in the flood region go to show that, as counted in dollars, the physical hurts to mills and furnaces will amount to a small total. As to the effect on output, several opinions have been expressed. Steelmakers say that there will be practically no loss of tonnage in the full sense of the word, for, while there must be considerable delay in filling contracts, the contracts are still good and customers will simply have to wait until they are filled, because the plants of all companies are so loaded up with orders that there would be no advantage in shifting contracts from one affected by high water to another outside of the flooded district. This view is no echoed by consumers in the aggregate. The delay in production, some of them say, may be accompanied by changing conditions in construction lines which will prevent the placing of specifications against existing contracts, and amount, in reality, to a loss of output to the steel producers.

***

Rubber's Strong Advance.

The movements of United States Rubber common in yesterday's market were interpreted in the Street as direct evidence that a good-sized short interest had been built up on Thursday through conflicting rumors of pending action on the dividend. There were extensive transactions in rubber in Thursday's late trading, and the stock closed at 64¾, with a net decline for the day of 2¼ points. It was not until long after the end of the session that the Directors' action in increasing the dividend to 6 per cent. became known, and the result was a jump forward of over 4 points in the opening sale yesterday. The first transaction recorded on the tape involved 2,000 shares at prices strung along from 69 to 69½, and some lively buying followed thereafter. The filling of the most pressing demand brought a reaction before noon, and in subsequent dealings the stock moved contrary to the rest of the list by declining to a low price of 67⅛ and closing at 67¼. At this figure nearly half of the impulsive advance was lost, but rubber was able to make a good showing, nevertheless, in comparison with the broad trend of the market.

***

Cheer for Customers.

Bears on stocks who base their position toward the market on fundamental business conditions may have taken some comfort yesterday in the thought that the strong advance was the product of speculative efforts, but the fact remained that come excellent buying occurred. This was particularly demonstrated in the last hour of trading, in spite of considerable profit-taking around the end of the day. A more cheerful feeling was evident in the customers' rooms of commission houses than for many a day, especially when reports came in to some of them from the board room floor that a substantial amount of genuine accumulation of stocks was mixed in with the flow of professional purchases. The Exchange member of one firm sent this message to be posted up for the benefit of customers in the early afternoon: "Investment buying of odd lots is proceeding on an extensive scale."

***

Price of Copper Higher.

The copper market was reported firmly fixed at 15½ cents a pound yesterday, and the expansion of demand from both foreign and domestic sources was responsible for predictions that another advance would occur in the fore part of next week. Bad weather at some mines and shortage of labor at others are reported to have reduced the March output, and this factor, together with the heavy sales of the month, is expected to react in a material decrease of stocks on hand in the next statement of the Copper Producers' Association.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Curb Trading Fairly Active—Prices Strong—Bonds Quiet.

Transactions in unlisted securities yesterday were fairly active, with prices strong. Standard Oil of New Jersey showed a gain of 3 points at the close, which was at 371. United Cigar Stores sold as high as 101¾, closing at 101, an advance of ⅝. Bonds were quiet.

PROTECT KANSAS CITY LIGHT

No Reorganization Now, but Committee Will Look After Collections.

In view of the maturity on May 15 of the first lien refunding 5 per cent. gold bonds of the Kansas City Railway & Light Company, a Protective Committee, consisting of John B. Dennis, Acosta Nichols, James J. Storrow and Paul M. Warburg, has been formed to look after the interest of the holders of these and other bonds and notes which have already matured, or are about to mature. The committee holds and represents a large amount of the bonds. Some of its members are also on the committee representing the company's gold notes.

The New York Trust Company has been made depository for the bonds in this city and the Old Colony Trust Company in Boston. The committee will collect interest on the bonds, if paid, and will not undertake any plan of reorganization or refinancing which does not involve realizing in cash for the benefit of the bondholders the full amount due upon their securities until such plan shall have been submitted to the depositors.

TO DECREASE SALT CAPITAL.

Stockholders Will Vote on Proposal at Annual Meeting.

Stockholders of the International Salt Company will vote at the annual meeting on April 21 at 15 Exchange Place, Jersey City, on a resolution to decrease the capital stock. The authorized issue is $30,000,000, of which $18,231,390 is outstanding, and the proposal of the Directors is that this amount be reduced to $6,077,130.

The Board of Directors decided at a recent meeting that this reduction was advisable on the ground that the aggregate amount of stock should be more nearly equal than at present to the total amount of outstanding bonds and floating indebtedness. Proxies for the meeting name Mortimer B. Fuller, M. M. Belding, and W. H. Barnard to represent the shareholders who are not able to attend.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

O. G. Drake, formerly the representative of the Stock Exchange firm of Caleb L. McKee & Co. in Cleveland, has been placed in charge of the Cleveland business of White, Weld & Co.

A booklet on saving and investing has been issued by Slattery & Co.

Exports of copper for the first three days of April amounted to 9,812 tons, against 2,022 tons in the corresponding period of last year.

Carl Remington has been appointed Secretary of the Chesapeake & Ohio and Hocking Valley Railroad Companies to succeed James S. Hackle, who resigned recently. Mr. Mackie will continue as Treasurer of both roads.

Joseph B. Dulany, C. I. Stralem, and William T. Henry were elected Directors of the Columbia Copper Company yesterday to succeed F. Lewisohn, Harry Bronner, and J. H. Seaman, resigned.

Louis S. Colwell, representing Jenks, Gwynne & Co. in Montreal, has been elected a member of the New York Cotton Exchange.

B. S. Josselyn, President of the Portland Railway, Light, and Power Company, has resigned. He will leave the company on July 1.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The storm that was over the Great Lakes Thursday night is now central north of Lake Ontario, and moving eastward. During the last twenty-four hours it caused rain or snow from the Mississippi River to the Atlantic Coast. High winds occurred in the Ohio Valley and over the Great Lakes. Another disturbance is approaching the north Pacific Coast, attended by rains and high winds.

Temperature continues high throughout the Atlantic States, but has fallen in the lake region, the great Central Valleys, and the Gulf States. A general reaction to high temperature is also in progress over the southern plateau region.

Temperatures will be considerably lower Saturday over the Atlantic seaboard, and will rise Saturday and Sunday over the great Central Valleys.

Winds along the New England and Middle Atlantic Coast will be brisk west; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate, variable, mostly west and northwest.

Steamships departing Saturday for European ports will have strong west winds and fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair and colder Saturday; Sunday fair; brisk west winds.

Southern New England—Cloudy Saturday; cooler at night; Sunday fair, west winds.

Western New York—Fair and colder Saturday; Sunday fair; brisk west winds, diminishing.

Northern New England—Rain, followed by clearing Saturday; Sunday fair, brisk west winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

The Municipal Civil Service Commission has approved the following:

Notification from the Controller of the appointment of nine additional expert adding and billing machine operators.

Letter from the Department of Health saying that it will be unnecessary to hold an examination for the position of radiographer, for the reason that the budget schedule of the department has been modified by changing the title to Medical Inspector.

Letter from the Controller relative to Joseph Welwood, whose name was removed from the payroll because he had not qualified in a non-competitive examination for searcher. The Controller says that Welwood was never notified for the examination, and that his services will be continued until he is examined.

Notification from the Board of Estimate of the emergency appointment of Magdalen Moment as Inspector, and Flora Coleman as Statistical Clerk.

Notification from the Department of Docks of the emergency appointment of Charles P. Eaton as mechanical engineer at a rate of $2,400 a year.

Request of the Board of Water Supply for authority to employ F. H. Fairbairn, M. D., as physician at a total compensation of $10.

Notification from the Board of Water Supply of the appointment of Joseph Rice, Valhalla, N. Y., as caretaker, and James Stickles, Prattsville, N. Y., as gatekeeper.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission invites attention to the regular Spring examinations for scientific assistant, Department of Agriculture, to be held April 9 and 10 at the New York Custom House. Examinations will be given in the following subjects:

Agronomy, dairying, entomology, farm economics, farm equipment, forage crops, general farm management, horticulture, library science, nutrition and calorimetry, plant breeding, plant pathology, pomology, seed testing, soil bacteriology, soil chemistry, and soil surveying.

The positions offer many attractive features. Excellent opportunities are afforded for scientific research in the laboratories of the Department of Agriculture. Furthermore, practically all of these positions require more or less investigational work in the field outside of Washington, D. C., which enables one to obtain a broad and comprehensive view of one's special subject of investigation as related to the entire country. When traveling in the field away from either official or temporary headquarters the expenses of the investigator are paid.

Applicants must be at least 20 years of age on the date of the examination. This examination is open to all citizens of the United States who meet the requirements. Competitors will be examined in the following subjects, which will have the relative weights indicated: Arithmetic, 10; report writing, 10; practical questions on each optional subject chosen, 30; thesis, to be delivered to the examiner on the first day of the examination, 15; education, training, experience, and fitness in each optional subject chosen, 35.

An applicant will be examined in as many of the optional subjects as he may desire, and should state in answer to Question 1 of his application the optional subjects in which he wishes to be examined. Four hours will be allowed on Subjects 1 and 2 combined, and three and one-half hours on the practical questions in each optional subject. The particular time at which any optional subject may be taken cannot be determined in advance, but generally one optional will be given each competitor on the first day after the completion of report writing, and two on each succeeding day.

NO. 17,484.—UNITED STATES DISTRICT Court for the Southern District of New York.—In the Matter of MOSES GUTMAN and HARRY GUTMAN, individually and as co-partners, doing business as M. GUTMAN & SON, Bankrupts.

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to an order of Hon. John J. Townsend, Referee in Bankruptcy herein, the undersigned, Otto F. Ziegenbein, Trustee in Bankruptcy of Moses Gutman and Harry Gutman, individually and as co-partners, doing business as M. Gutman & Son, Bankrupts, offers for sale the property, assets, and effects of the said bankrupts.

The property to be sold consists of the following stock of confectionery, merchandise, machinery, outstanding book accounts for merchandise sold by the bankrupts prior to bankruptcy, outstanding book accounts for merchandise sold by the Receiver and Trustee herein while continuing the business of the bankrupts, two diamond earrings, desks, tables, chairs, counters, show cases, safe, shelving, scales, manufacturing confectionery utensils of numerous kinds and descriptions, wagons, and all other articles of personal property and fixtures in the premises 98 Grand Street, Manhattan, New York City; also the good-will of the business of said bankrupts and the unexpired term of the lease of the said premises 98 Grand Street, Manhattan, New York City. The business is being carried on by the Trustee and will be offered as a going concern on any bids for the entirety. Bids may also be made for a part or parcel of the above-stated assets of the estate of the bankrupts. Part of the above-described property will be sold subject to the following liens and incumbrances; namely, the machinery above mentioned will be sold subject to a conditional Bill of Sale held by the National Equipment Company of 45 East 17th Street, Manhattan, New York City, for a lien of a balance of Thirty-six hundred no-100 ($3,600.00) Dollars, and subject also to a Bill of Sale held by Abraham & Kass of No. 100 Essex Street, Manhattan Borough, New York City, for an alleged lien of Three thousand no-100 ($3,000.00) Dollars. Part of the book accounts and merchandise sold by the bankrupts prior to bankruptcy, to wit: approximately Fifty-eight hundred and twenty-five no-100 Dollars thereof, will be sold subject to an alleged assignment of approximately Three thousand and twenty-five no-100 ($3,025.00) Dollars thereof held by W. DAVID ROBSON,

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Harlem Plot Traded for Bronx Flats—Washington Heights Block Front Sold—Buys 34th Street Lease—Bronx Deals—Good Brooklyn Market—Activity in the Suburbs.

Among the limited number of transactions in the realty market yesterday was a deal involving a trade of Bronx and Harlem properties. The Harlem plot was the vacant lot on the south side of 141st Street, 225 feet east of Lenox Avenue, having a frontage of 56.3 feet. It was sold by Lowenfeld & Prager to the builders, Wallace & Spence, and in payment Lowenfeld & Prager took the three five-story apartment houses just completed at 914-918, and 922 Morris Avenue, each covering a plot 42 by 87. The houses are between 162d and 163d Streets.

Operator Buys Heights Block Front

The City Real Estate Company has sold to David Zipkin the block front on the north side of 175th Street, between St. Nicholas and Audubon Avenues, containing about sixteen city lots. The property has a frontage of 133 feet on St. Nicholas Avenue, 104 feet on Audubon Avenue, and 350 feet on 175th Street. It was held at $250,000. David Stewart negotiated the transaction.

Sells 34th Street Lease.

J. G. Goldsmith has sold the balance of his unexpired lease on the structure known as the Forsyth Building, at 22 to 26 West Thirty-fourth Street, adjoining the Astor Court. The building covers a plot 75 by 100. The property is owned by Vincent Astor, and was leased about twelve years ago by the late Col. J. J. Astor to Mr. Goldsmith for twenty-one years at an annual rental of about $39,000. In July, 1910, Mr. Goldsmith subleased the building to John Forsyth at a rental said to be close to $60,000 a year. He has now sold the unexpired term of the lease to A. R. Nicol, who has acquired it for investment, paying slightly under $150,000.

The Private Dwelling Market.

Reuben E. Fitchorn has sold to Frederick Ruppert the three-story dwelling 389 Manhattan Avenue, on a lot 18 by 50 feet.

Tenement Property Sold.

Weil & Mayer have sold to Herman Hoptman 171 Essex Street, a five-story tenement, on lot 25 by 89.8, between Stanton and East Houston Streets.

Recent Buyers.

Leo Oppenheimer is the buyer of the dwelling 314 West 101st Street, sold by Yetta Greenberg.

John A. Huston is the purchaser of the three-story flat at the northwest corner of 167th Street and River Avenue, sold recently by Richard H. Jaeger of Monticello, N. Y. The property has a frontage of 80 feet on the avenue and 25 feet on 167th Street.

The Anderson Realty Company has sold for William H. Whitney to Hester C. Kiely his residence at 127 South Tenth Avenue, Mount Vernon.

Another Firm Moves Uptown.

Carstein & Linnekin, in connection with George R. Read & Co., have leased for a term of years the entire building at 12 West Forty-fifth Street. The new tenant, Harris & Harrington, clock importers and manufacturers, are now located at 12 Barclay Street.

This move is significant, inasmuch as there have been a number of concerns who have recently moved from the downtown district to the Fifth Avenue section; one of the principal business houses being Bowa & Dotter, who are in the same line of business and have taken the entire building on Thirty-third Street, opposite the Waldorf. This is another illustration of the northward trend of all mercantile business now in the lower section of the city.

Leases.

The H. M. Weil Company has leased for the Sperry Realty Company the store in the premises 664 Sixth Avenue to Philip Levey for a term of ten years. After extensive alterations, he will open the place as a bakery and lunchroom.

Mooyer & Marston have leased 41 West Forty-sixth Street, a four-story dwelling, on lot 20 by 100.5, for Miss Josephine Sharkey to P. A. Adolphe, a ladies' tailoring firm. The lease is for a term of 21 years.

W. W. Astor to Build on 5th Av.

William Waldorf Astor is about to improve his property at 323 to 327 Fifth Avenue, three old houses, by erecting a five-story business structure. The frontage will be 93.10 feet, and in the rear of the new building is an eighteen-foot alleyway leading to Thirty-second Street at the rear of the Knickerbocker Club.

New Broadway Theatre Plans.

Plans were filed yesterday for a twelve-story loft building and a three-story theatre to be erected on the northeast corner of Broadway and Thirty-seventh Street for the Times Square Improvement Company, of which Harry Fischel is President. The loft building will be on the corner, having a Broadway frontage of 130 feet and a street frontage of 45.2 feet. The Theatre will adjoin the loft in the rear, having a frontage of 100.8 feet on Thirty-seventh Street and a depth of 80.9 feet, and an entrance frontage of 18 feet on Thirty-eighth Street. George Keister, the architect, places the cost at $350,000.

Two Upper East Side Loans.

The New York Title Insurance Company has agreed to make a loan to the 118 East Fifty-fourth Street Company on its property on the north side of Fifty-third Street, 180 feet east of Park Avenue, upon which it intends to erect a nine-story apartment house; also, a loan on the adjoining property, commencing 90 feet east of Park Avenue, on which the Aeon Realty Company is also constructing a nine-story apartment house. Both loans aggregate $525,000.

Yonkers Dwellings at Auction Today.

Joseph P. Day will offer to-day, at 2:30 P. M., on the premises, at Supreme Court foreclosure sale, five newly erected stone and stucco detached dwellings located on Van Cortlandt Terrace, in South Yonkers, N. Y.

Realty Notes.

George Ranger negotiated the sale of the block front on the south side of 167th Street, St. Nicholas to Audubon Avenues, for the Huggins estate to Franklin Pettit, recently reported.

The lease was recorded yesterday from the Hobart estate of California, conveying for twenty-one years, to the Times Square Improvement Company, of which Harry Fischel is President, of the large plot on the northeast corner of Broadway and Thirty-seventh Street, with 118 West Thirty-eighth Street. The lease dates from May 1, 1913, and is at the rate of $45,000 a year. Plans for the projected theatre and loft were filed yesterday.

A building loan of $290,000 has been obtained by the Aeon Realty Company from the Montrose Realty Company on the plot, 90 by 100.5, on the north side of Fifty-third Street, 90 feet east of Park Avenue, where an apartment house is to be erected.

FLOOD BIGGEST JOB RED CROSS HAS HAD

Field Is Harder to Cover Than That at San Francisco Earthquake, Miss Boardman Says.

RELIEF FUND HERE $631,050

Yesterday's Contributions, $15,757 —Business Houses Hear of Conditions in Flood Districts.

The contributions received in this city yesterday for the relief of the flood sufferers in Ohio and other States amounted to $15,757. This brought the total sum obtained here for this purpose to $631,050. From the headquarters of the Red Cross Society in Washington word was received that $1,000,000 had been obtained throughout the country for relief work, but it was said that much more was needed. According to the Red Cross officials the task of relieving conditions in the flood-swept districts would be the most difficult one ever undertaken by the organization.

In a letter sent from the Washington headquarters of the Red Cross by Miss Mabel T. Boardman, Chairman of the National Relief Board of the Society, to Mrs. W. K. Draper, Secretary of the New York County organization, Miss Boardman said:

I am just back from Ohio. Left Friday by special train. Reached Cincinnati Sunday. Miss Delano, Major Lynch, Mr. Francis McLean, and ten Red Cross nurses, as well as three cars of supplies, constituted the "cargo." I saw the Mayor and local committee. Spent the afternoon at Hamilton. Miss Delano took nurses to Dayton. Major Lynch, Miss Delano, and I spent all day Monday getting to Columbus. I saw Gov Cox. Conferred with him again on Tuesday morning. In the afternoon inspected. From Governor down all seemed favorable to the Red Cross. Cleveland strongly so. All Cleveland funds are Red Cross funds.

The loss of life was exaggerated. I think 500 will cover the total in Ohio, but doubtless scores of bodies have been washed down the Ohio. But loss of property has been great, and the people do greatly need help. Several hundred small houses have been completely washed away and thousands injured. Not a house in Hamilton but had five to ten feet of water in it.

In the small one-story houses people clung for twenty-four hours to the house tops, while the water roared like Niagara around them and the trees, boards, and parts of wrecked houses beat like battering rams against them. A power that could twist railroad rails like strings, throw engines and trains from the tracks, carry away great stone and iron bridges, uproot large trees, and snap off telegraph poles like straws is difficult to conceive of unless you see its results.

In Hamilton every store was flooded and all stock ruined. In Dayton much the same condition prevails. In Columbus all stores and flooded districts on the west side lost all their stock, so that business has been entirely or partially paralyzed. In these districts they carried no insurance for houses, as in case of fire. Funds needed to rehabilitate small merchants.

I know how busy you have been, even with extra help. Have received $1,000,000 up to date.

In a letter received yesterday by Robert W. de Forest, Miss Boardman described the conditions to be faced in the flooded district. She said in part:

We have ninety-six members in the State, co-operating with the Sanitary Inspectors in the prevention of disease and epidemics arising from the flood. Besides Mr. Bicknell and Mr. Kingsley, Dr. Devine, Mr. Jackson, Mr. Hubbard, and Mr. Nolan are all at work and expect soon to bring in others. Mr. Bicknell told me he thought it was the biggest and most difficult field the Red Cross had yet had to deal with. At San Francisco the work was concentrated and here it is spread out, so that we will have not only the jealousy of individuals, but that of communities to contend with. Furthermore, I think the responsibility of a really serious disaster over a large territory comes more upon the Red Cross than it ever has before. Of course, this is as it should be, and I hope and believe we can meet it, but it will take time.

The next time I am in New York I am very anxious to have a talk with you and will let you know when I can get over. I greatly appreciate the splendid help that has been given the Red Cross there. We have received now a million dollars, and money is continually coming in.

There is a plan in Ohio, for example, to deal with the funds somewhat in this way: If a first appropriation, say, of $25,000 is to be made for Dayton, $5,000 should be taken from the State Fund, $10,000 from the Governor's Fund, and $10,000 from the Red Cross Fund. This, however, should all be put into one fund for the purpose of relief and administered by the Red Cross representatives, in co-operation with the local Citizens' Committee of thoroughly reliable men. The whole amount will be expended in such a way that it can be audited by the War Department.

Under its charter the Red Cross is permitted to expend only 2 per cent. of the funds collected by it for administrative purposes. Mrs. Draper pointed out yesterday that the organization had never spent this allowance in the relief work. In the Titanic relief work nothing was expended for administrative purposes, and very little in the relief work following the Italian and San Francisco earthquakes. The H. B. Claflin Company received this telegram yesterday from a business correspondent in Hamilton, Ohio:

Hamilton loss will exceed $15,000,000. Seventy-five dead found. Poor greatly in need of money.

On the other hand George Borgfeldt & Co. received this message yesterday from a correspondent in Lafayette, Ind.:

Flood reports from Lafayette in metropolitan papers are greatly exaggerated and ridiculous. The damage in this county is mostly to bridges—not over $100,000. Four days inconvenience and interference to public utilities; no damage to stocks of merchandise. Individual losses small. Everybody cheerful; prospect good; please publish.

The local relief committee of the Red Cross Society has collected for the relief of the flood sufferers a total of $493,571, including $40,000 from the Merchants' Association, but exclusive of a subscription of $1,124 received at the Mayor's office yesterday. Of this sum $50,000 was telegraphed to the National headquarters at Washington yesterday, bringing the total sum sent by the Red Cross officials in this city so far up to $435,000. The total amount received by the Red Cross here yesterday, exclusive of the contributions sent to the Mayor's office, was $10,741. Here are the contributions of $25 or more received at the uptown office of the Red Cross, 105 East Twenty-second street, and at the office of Jacob H. Schiff, Treasurer of the New York State Board of the Red Cross, 52 William Street:

The Red Cross Fund.

The members of the New York Mercantile Exchange have subscribed $1,573 for the benefit of the Ohio flood sufferers. The money has been sent to Jacob H. Schiff, treasurer of the National Red Cross Society.

WARNED TO LEAVE PASSAIC.

"White Hand" Letter to Woman Accused of Abusing Child.

Mrs. Louisa Maurer of 81 Park Avenue, Passaic, N. J., wife of Alfred Maurer, an exporter and imuporter of 80 Maiden Lane, Manhattan, who was tried in the police court last Monday on a charge of cruelly beating her 8-year-old adopted daughter Gertrude, received a letter yesterday warning her and her husband to leave Passaic. The decision in Mrs. Maurer's case was reserved until the opening of court either to-day or to-morrow. The letter, postmarked Passaic, read:

April 3, 1913.

Mrs. Louisa Maurer:

We hereby notify you and your henpecked husband that if you both do not get out of Passaic by the 15th of April you will get all Passaic, but what is due you for your devlitry. You are not fit to live in a civilized community. Be warned in time.

THE WHITE HAND.

A rumor that Mrs. Maurer had received a threatening letter was spread through Passaic, but when an attempt to verify it was made at her home it was denied. Following a consultation with her attorney, George H. Dalrymple, the letter was given out for publication.

When Mr. Maurer was asked what he was going to do about it, he replied that he would employ a New York detective to trace its origin. He said that he would not leave the matter to the Passaic police, inasmuch as one of the policeman had appeared as a State witness against Mrs. Maurer.

HERBERT QUICK SLAIN.

Coroner's Jury So Decides—Son-in-Law Under Arrest.

Special to The New York Times.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., April 4.—The Coroners' Jury, after listening to the evidence at the inquest in the death of Herbert Quick, the poet of Bunn Valley, rendered a verdict to-day that the wealthy farmer came to his death from a bullet wound fired from a revolver in the hands of a person other than the dead man.

Quick lived alone in a cottage beneath Bloomsbury Mountain, where he owned two large farms. His lifeless body was discovered on Easter Sunday lying face downward in a pool of blood upon the floor of his kitchen. Neighbors had missed him for two days and a package of goods bought at Milford on Friday lay unopened upon the table.

A revolver lay beneath his body and his flesh had been badly burned where the bullet had entered his side. It was thought he committed suicide. The body was discovered by Sylvanus Souders, the dead man's son-in-law. Assistant Prosecutor George W. Dunham of Flemington began an investigation and ordered an inquest, which was held before Coroner F. C. Lowe. Assistant Prosecutor Dunham had issued a warrant for the arrest of Souders, who lives near Bound Brook. Souders is now locked up in the Hunterdon County Jail here.

Russel Nichols of Bound Brook, at the inquest to-day identified the revolver as one that was taken from his room a few days prior to the tragedy.

WANTS POKER SECURITY.

&Loser of $750 Demands Return of Ring and Insurance Policy.

Meyer Benisch, a paper manufacturer, began suit yesterday in the Supreme Court to recover a $200 diamond ring and a $2,000 life insurance policy from Richard R. Mandelbaum. Benisch said he turned them over to Mandelbaum as security for a poker debt and wants them back. The policy was originally payable to Benisch's wife, Helen, but he assigned it to Mandelbaum.

Benisch said he lost $750 in a poker game at the Attic Club, on West Forty-second Street, two years ago and the transfer of ring and policy followed. The Attic Club was closed a few months ago by the police. A patrolman is now stationed at its door.

IN NEW JERSEY.

NEWARK.—A suit for $25,000 damages was brought by Claud E. Holgate, Secretary of the Newark Motor Club, against Ballantine & Co., brewers, for injuries received Jan. 11 last through the alleged fault of the driver of a motor truck.

SOUTH ORANGE.—The Boards of Education of the four Oranges have united in demanding legislation that will enable them to act jointly in establishing a parental school.

MONTCLAIR.—Great electric clocks have been placed at important business centres in this and other towns served by the Mountainside Hospital to announce the progress of the twelve days' campaign to raise $300,000 for the hospital.

MONTCLAIR.—One thousand trees, mostly of the maple variety, have been received here, and will be set out during the next week under the supervision of Chief Forester John Anderson of the Montclair Shade Tree Commission in the streets.

CALIFON.—A spark dropped out of William Hoover's pipe, and set his clothing ablaze. He was badly burned, and is in a critical condition. Hoover is a veteran of the civil war. He is 80 years old and feeble.

NEWTON.—Fire destroyed the residence of Postmaster James E. Baldwin on High Street. The loss was $5,000.

FLOOD-BOUND CAIRO FIGHTS TWO RIVERS

Break in Mississippi Levee Switches Part of Garrison from the Ohio.

FIVE-INCH SAFETY MARGIN

Life Rafts Stationed Throughout City—Army Man Thinks All Can Escape.

CAIRO, Ill., April 4.—In their anxiety to prevent the levee from breaking on the Ohio River side, citizens overlooked danger from the Mississippi River, with the result that a force of workmen had to be rushed there early to-day, when a washout was threatened between Nineteenth and Twenty-fourth Streets. High winds had caused the river to cut into the bank to such an extent that a break was imminent. Several hundred bags of sand were transferred from the Ohio levee in automobiles to the new danger spot, and further erosion of the Mississippi bank was prevented.

Arrangements being made by Lieut. S. B. Buckner, U. S. A., for the safety of the people were pushed. It was thought that before midnight life rafts would be placed throughout the city in readiness for a big break.

Four non-commissioned officers were assigned to investigate the needs of farmers whose cattle might be in danger. Two of them went to the country north of Dog Tooth Bend. A report was received by the Lieutenant that farmers in that vicinity were in danger of losing many head of cattle. He planned to carry the live stock out with ferryboats.

Another expedition was sent to the Kentucky side of the Ohio.

"I believe we could now take care of everybody in Cairo," said Lieut. Buckner, "provided, of course, the water did not come in with a rush. I am fearful of a high wind."

The Ohio gauge hovered about the 54.7 mark all day. The water is five inches from the top of the concrete wall, with the surface of the river nearly three feet above the higher street levels.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 4.—Five Government yawls and sixteen boatmen will be sent from Logansport, Ind., to the Wabash and Ohio River districts at once. Word from Meredosia says the levees north and south of the town have broken, and hundreds of residents have sought protection back of a nine-mile strip of dike. Illinois Guardsmen have been sent there.

SHAWNEETOWN, Ill., April 4.—(Via De Koven, Ky.)—Almost a thousand flood refugees behind the hills here are in want of provisions. No assurance of relief has been received.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 4.—Thirty thousand persons around Mount Vernon are calling for help. Guy Green, river forecaster, said this afternoon that with forty boats in the rescue service, attention had been confined to taking persons from endangered homes to Mount Vernon. He added no effort was being made to supply the marooned farmers with food. The greatest suffering is on the Illinois side of the Wabash. Mr. Green said between 50,000 and 75,000 head of livestock would perish unless measures are taken at once. Capt. W. K. Naylor, U. S. N., went to Mount Vernon this afternoon. A Government boat with 40,000 rations was expected from Louisville. It probably will be ordered to Mount Vernon.

The Howell levee, protecting 200 families in Ingleside, gave way to-day. Ingleside is from six to ten feet under water. Bells were rung in Howell to warn the people in Ingleside. There was no loss of life.

Conditions in the Wabash bottoms were ameliorated to-day. Relief boats reached Uniontown, Ky., and the 2,000 persons marooned there were fed.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 4.—A telephone message from Hickman, Ky., this afternoon stated that the city levee there went out shortly after 12:30 P. M., flooding the factory district. No loss of life was reported. The break, it is said, will not relieve the river situation at other points, as the water will be turned back to the main stream by the Reelfoot levee. Little apprehension is felt for Memphis.

MAY FLOOD DAYTON AGAIN.

Miami River Needs Only Ten-Inch Rise for New Inundation.

DAYTON, Ohio, April 4.—Ten more inches of water in the Miami River would inflict on Dayton another flood. A ten-hour rainfall, ending at 1 o'clock this morning, with clogged sewer intakes, flooded many streets. Monument Avenue, Third Street, east and west of the business section, parts of Main Street, Wayne Avenue, and other thoroughfares stood upward of a foot deep. Much apprehension was felt in Riverdale. Adjt. Gen. G. W. Wood directed that special attention be paid to patroling the levees.

The same condition prevailed in Edgemont, because of the deep gash in the levee near the Washington Street bridge. Telephone reports from Piqua, Bellefontaine, Troy, and other places north indicated there had been incessant rains, and Dayton would get the issue. Forecaster Henry F. Alps announces a recurrence of the flood is possible.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 4.—Rain caused another flood stage in the Scioto River here to-day and resulted in the breaking of a levee on the west side. The waters again were released over a part of the territory flooded last week. There was a rise of six feet. A body was recovered, increasing the death list to eighty-five.

PIQUA, Ohio, April 4.—Gov. Cox sent to-day a telegram to President Wilson asking that Government engineers be ordered to Ohio to view the flood districts and devise ways of preventing such disasters. The message stated that conditions as to business and destruction of homes of the poor were worse than at first was believed.

The message also suggested that the Controller of the Currency be placed in charge of the distribution of all relief funds, so that credit might be re-established quickly.

Following a talk with Gov. Cox, Senator Theodore E. Burton announced that he probably would introduce in Congress a measure looking toward flood prevention in every part of the United States. He said he would not introduce such a measure unless he found it was the policy of the Administration to give Federal aid to such propositions as good roads. He also stated that, should it be found the condition of the flood sufferers in the State was worse than was thought at first, Congress would be asked for an emergency appropriation. The Senator asserted that the flood conditions were due largely to the damaging of rivers and creeks by fills to railroad bridges.

HAMILTON APPEALS FOR AID.

300 Dead and $10,000,000 Damage, Says Relief Committee.

By Telegraph to the Editor of The New York Times.

HAMILTON, April 4.—In the widespread flood disaster the country and the press have failed duly to appreciate the extent of Hamilton's affliction. This city was visited by an overwhelming flood on March 25 that destroyed hundreds of houses, causing a loss of life estimated at more than 300 persons, and a loss of property estimated at $10,000,000, and rendering thousands of persons homeless and destitute.

Our people are brave and confident of the future, but prosperous citizens are unable to give relief to our working people. We appeal in their behalf. Contributions should be sent to L. P. Clawson, Treasurer Citizens' Relief Committee.

JAMES K. CULLEN,
Chairman Citizens' Relief Committee.

HAS REAL CLEAN-UP MAYOR.

Indianapolis Sees Its Executive Shovel Flood Wreckage.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 4. — Mayor Samuel L. Shank put on overalls this morning, left the City Hall, and went to West Indianapolis, where he put in a full day assisting in cleaning up flood wreckage. He leaded a volunteer clean-up movement which proved to be practically a three-man affair, as only two workers stuck by him all day. He organized a hose gang and started it working in houses full of mud. Then he grasped a shovel and began filling wagons with trash.

"I suppose the rain has kept many men from coming over to help me," said the Mayor, "but I fear the majority of our people on the other side don't realize just how serious the situation is. I propose to tell them and get them over here and at work."

As a result of the Mayor's efforts, more than a score of homes were made habitable again, and their owners were notified they might move in to-morrow.

FOX RIVER MENACES CITIES.

Bridges Washed Away Near Aurora and Elgin—Flood in Wisconsin.

CHICAGO, April 4.—The Fox River, which flows through Aurora and Elgin, reached a dangerously high stage today. At Elgin, the water is nine inches above the previous high-water mark. A bridge and a dam near that city are reported washed out. At Yorkville, below Aurora, another bridge is said to have been washed away. Persons living in the river bottoms have fled. At Aurora the gauge showed five inches below the danger mark and rising.

OCONTO, Wis., April 4.—Oconto was flooded again to-day, and the Oconto River still is rising. The entire section between Main and McDonald is under water.

460 LIVES LOST IN OHIO.

Red Cross Estimates 40,500 Persons Made Homeless by Flood.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Ohio's loss in the recent flood was estimated to-night in a telegram from the American Red Cross agent in charge in Columbus as follows:

Lives lost	460
Homes destroyed	4,200
Persons homeless	40,500
Families outside of Dayton, Columbus, and Cincinnati in need of rehabilitation	9,000

It has been extremely difficult to get information, as wires still are down and transportation facilities are uncertain. The dispatch added:

Emergency relief situation in each flooded district in Ohio is being well covered. Dayton, Columbus, Piqua, Troy, Ottawa, Sidney, Hamilton, Miamisburg, Middletown, and Zanesville are covered by Red Cross representatives. In those places information is being accumulated rapidly on which to base rehabilitation. We are rushing men into other flooded towns as fast as the water subsides and we can get men. Col. Miller, Chief Quartermaster, reports a need of underwear of all sorts, and of bedding and blankets.

Major Normoyle, at the head of the army relief forces in the flood region, reported to-day that he was confident he had the situation well in hand. Answering a query concerning the possibility of starvation in Marietta, he responded:

"I will feed them with a spoon, if necessary."

Surgeon Evans reported from Cincinnati that all stricken towns had competent medical men and sufficient supplies, except serums. The conditions to be met related solely to food, clothing, and shelter and the prevention of epidemics, he said. He believed the local health authorities were able to handle the situation.

Secretary McAdoo ordered National Bank Examiner Goodhart to Dayton to advise the financial institutions of that city as to methods of rehabilitation.

How the Red Cross had undertaken the rehabilitation of home and business life in the flood region and had met the first call for relief was told in a statement issued to-night by Miss Mabel T. Boardman, Chairman of the Relief Committee.

Rehabilitation of the individual sufferer, she asserted, was necessary to restore normal conditions.

"To continue merely to give out food and clothing," she explained, "would mean the continuation of the paralysis of the all-important business life of the community. In many districts the merchants have lost all their stock. Unless an effort is made to aid them to make a start again, unless the people are assisted in such a way as to enable them to resume the normal condition of buying, the business of the community will remain in a hopeless condition.

"While factories are closed for repairs, work can be given to men for which they will be paid—the clearing away of the immense quantity of wreckage. Thus a purchasing power will be given to them again. The re-establishment of his market will enable the merchant to re-employ his staff, and thus again others can return to a normal existence. Where men or women have been paying for their homes by monthly installments, they can be assisted in such payments for a time to prevent the loss of their homes, and possibly the failure of mutual building associations, which would be disastrous to many of the working people. All this great work the Red Cross is undertaking. So many thousands have suffered that there will be need of all the generous contributions received."

Aaron Aaronsohn, head of the Jewish Agricultural Experiment Station in Palestine, conferred with Secretary Lane on means to control the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers. Mr. Aaronsohn's suggestions impressed the Secretary, who will discuss them with President Wilson.

FLOOD BIGGEST JOB RED CROSS HAS HAD

RELIEF FUND HERE $631,050

Yesterday's Contributions, $15,757 —Business Houses Hear of Conditions in Flood Districts.

The contributions received in this city yesterday for the relief of the flood sufferers in Ohio and other States amounted to $15,757. This brought the total sum obtained here for this purpose to $631,050. From the headquarters of the Red Cross Society in Washington word was received that $1,000,000 had been obtained throughout the country for relief work, but it was said that much more was needed. According to the Red Cross officials the task of relieving conditions in the flood-swept districts would be the most difficult one ever undertaken by the organization.

In a letter sent from the Washington headquarters of the Red Cross by Miss Mabel T. Boardman, Chairman of the National Relief Board of the Society, to Mrs. W. K. Draper, Secretary of the New York County organization, Miss Boardman said:

I am just back from Ohio. Left Friday by special train. Reached Cincinnati Sunday. Miss Delano, Major Lynch, Mr. Francis McLean, and ten Red Cross nurses, as well as three cars of supplies, constituted the "cargo." I saw the Mayor and local committee. Spent the afternoon at Hamilton. Miss Delano took nurses to Dayton. Major Lynch, Miss Delano, and I spent all day Monday getting to Columbus. I saw Gov Cox. Conferred with him again on Tuesday morning. In the afternoon inspected. From Governor down all seemed favorable to the Red Cross. Cleveland strongly so. All Cleveland funds are Red Cross funds.

The loss of life was exaggerated. I think 500 will cover the total in Ohio, but doubtless scores of bodies have been washed down the Ohio. But loss of property has been great, and the people do greatly need help. Several hundred small houses have been completely washed away and thousands injured. Not a house in Hamilton but had five to ten feet of water in it.

In the small one-story houses people clung for twenty-four hours to the house tops, while the water roared like Niagara around them and the trees, boards, and parts of wrecked houses beat like battering rams against them. A power that could twist railroad rails like strings, throw engines and trains from the tracks, carry away great stone and iron bridges, uproot large trees, and snap off telegraph poles like straws is difficult to conceive of unless you see its results.

In Hamilton every store was flooded and all stock ruined. In Dayton much the same condition prevails. In Columbus all stores and flooded districts on the west side lost all their stock, so that business has been entirely or partially paralyzed. In these districts they carried no insurance for houses, as in case of fire. Funds needed to rehabilitate small merchants.

I know how busy you have been, even with extra help. Have received $1,000,000 up to date.

In a letter received yesterday by Robert W. de Forest, Miss Boardman described the conditions to be faced in the flooded district. She said in part:

We have ninety-six members in the State, co-operating with the Sanitary Inspectors in the prevention of disease and epidemics arising from the flood. Besides Mr. Bicknell and Mr. Kingsley, Dr. Devine, Mr. Jackson, Mr. Hubbard, and Mr. Nolan are all at work and expect soon to bring in others. Mr. Bicknell told me he thought it was the biggest and most difficult field the Red Cross had yet had to deal with. At San Francisco the work was concentrated and here it is spread out, so that we will have not only the jealousy of individuals, but that of communities to contend with. Furthermore, I think the responsibility of a really serious disaster over a large territory comes more upon the Red Cross than it ever has before. Of course, this is as it should be, and I hope and believe we can meet it, but it will take time.

The next time I am in New York I am very anxious to have a talk with you and will let you know when I can get over. I greatly appreciate the splendid help that has been given the Red Cross there. We have received now a million dollars, and money is continually coming in.

There is a plan in Ohio, for example, to deal with the funds somewhat in this way: If a first appropriation, say, of $25,000 is to be made for Dayton, $5,000 should be taken from the State Fund, $10,000 from the Governor's Fund, and $10,000 from the Red Cross Fund. This, however, should all be put into one fund for the purpose of relief and administered by the Red Cross representatives, in co-operation with the local Citizens' Committee of thoroughly reliable men. The whole amount will be expended in such a way that it can be audited by the War Department.

Under its charter the Red Cross is permitted to expend only 2 per cent. of the funds collected by it for administrative purposes. Mrs. Draper pointed out yesterday that the organization had never spent this allowance in the relief work. In the Titanic relief work nothing was expended for administrative purposes, and very little in the relief work following the Italian and San Francisco earthquakes. The H. B. Claflin Company received this telegram yesterday from a business correspondent in Hamilton, Ohio:

Hamilton loss will exceed $15,000,000. Seventy-five dead found. Poor greatly in need of money.

On the other hand George Borgfeldt & Co. received this message yesterday from a correspondent in Lafayette, Ind.:

Flood reports from Lafayette in metropolitan papers are greatly exaggerated and ridiculous. The damage in this county is mostly to bridges—not over $100,000. Four days inconvenience and interference to public utilities; no damage to stocks of merchandise. Individual losses small. Everybody cheerful; prospect good; please publish.

The local relief committee of the Red Cross Society has collected for the relief of the flood sufferers a total of $493,571, including $40,000 from the Merchants' Association, but exclusive of a subscription of $1,124 received at the Mayor's office yesterday. Of this sum $50,000 was telegraphed to the National headquarters at Washington yesterday, bringing the total sum sent by the Red Cross officials in this city so far up to $435,000. The total amount received by the Red Cross here yesterday, exclusive of the contributions sent to the Mayor's office, was $10,741. Here are the contributions of $25 or more received at the uptown office of the Red Cross, 105 East Twenty-second street, and at the office of Jacob H. Schiff, Treasurer of the New York State Board of the Red Cross, 52 William Street:

The members of the New York Mercantile Exchange have subscribed $1,573 for the benefit of the Ohio flood sufferers. The money has been sent to Jacob H. Schiff, treasurer of the National Red Cross Society.

WARNED TO LEAVE PASSAIC.

"White Hand" Letter to Woman Accused of Abusing Child.

Mrs. Louisa Maurer of 81 Park Avenue, Passaic, N. J., wife of Alfred Maurer, an exporter and imuporter of 80 Maiden Lane, Manhattan, who was tried in the police court last Monday on a charge of cruelly beating her 8-year-old adopted daughter Gertrude, received a letter yesterday warning her and her husband to leave Passaic. The decision in Mrs. Maurer's case was reserved until the opening of court either to-day or to-morrow. The letter, postmarked Passaic, read:

April 3, 1913.

Mrs. Louisa Maurer:

We hereby notify you and your henpecked husband that if you both do not get out of Passaic by the 15th of April you will get all Passaic, but what is due you for your devlitry. You are not fit to live in a civilized community. Be warned in time.

THE WHITE HAND.

A rumor that Mrs. Maurer had received a threatening letter was spread through Passaic, but when an attempt to verify it was made at her home it was denied. Following a consultation with her attorney, George H. Dalrymple, the letter was given out for publication.

When Mr. Maurer was asked what he was going to do about it, he replied that he would employ a New York detective to trace its origin. He said that he would not leave the matter to the Passaic police, inasmuch as one of the policeman had appeared as a State witness against Mrs. Maurer.

HERBERT QUICK SLAIN.

Coroner's Jury So Decides—Son-in-Law Under Arrest.

Special to The New York Times.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., April 4.—The Coroners' Jury, after listening to the evidence at the inquest in the death of Herbert Quick, the poet of Bunn Valley, rendered a verdict to-day that the wealthy farmer came to his death from a bullet wound fired from a revolver in the hands of a person other than the dead man.

Quick lived alone in a cottage beneath Bloomsbury Mountain, where he owned two large farms. His lifeless body was discovered on Easter Sunday lying face downward in a pool of blood upon the floor of his kitchen. Neighbors had missed him for two days and a package of goods bought at Milford on Friday lay unopened upon the table.

A revolver lay beneath his body and his flesh had been badly burned where the bullet had entered his side. It was thought he committed suicide. The body was discovered by Sylvanus Souders, the dead man's son-in-law. Assistant Prosecutor George W. Dunham of Flemington began an investigation and ordered an inquest, which was held before Coroner F. C. Lowe. Assistant Prosecutor Dunham had issued a warrant for the arrest of Souders, who lives near Bound Brook. Souders is now locked up in the Hunterdon County Jail here.

Russel Nichols of Bound Brook, at the inquest to-day identified the revolver as one that was taken from his room a few days prior to the tragedy.

WANTS POKER SECURITY.

&Loser of $750 Demands Return of Ring and Insurance Policy.

Meyer Benisch, a paper manufacturer, began suit yesterday in the Supreme Court to recover a $200 diamond ring and a $2,000 life insurance policy from Richard R. Mandelbaum. Benisch said he turned them over to Mandelbaum as security for a poker debt and wants them back. The policy was originally payable to Benisch's wife, Helen, but he assigned it to Mandelbaum.

Benisch said he lost $750 in a poker game at the Attic Club, on West Forty-second Street, two years ago and the transfer of ring and policy followed. The Attic Club was closed a few months ago by the police. A patrolman is now stationed at its door.

IN NEW JERSEY.

NEWARK.—A suit for $25,000 damages was brought by Claud E. Holgate, Secretary of the Newark Motor Club, against Ballantine & Co., brewers, for injuries received Jan. 11 last through the alleged fault of the driver of a motor truck.

SOUTH ORANGE.—The Boards of Education of the four Oranges have united in demanding legislation that will enable them to act jointly in establishing a parental school.

MONTCLAIR.—Great electric clocks have been placed at important business centres in this and other towns served by the Mountainside Hospital to announce the progress of the twelve days' campaign to raise $300,000 for the hospital.

MONTCLAIR.—One thousand trees, mostly of the maple variety, have been received here, and will be set out during the next week under the supervision of Chief Forester John Anderson of the Montclair Shade Tree Commission in the streets.

CALIFON.—A spark dropped out of William Hoover's pipe, and set his clothing ablaze. He was badly burned, and is in a critical condition. Hoover is a veteran of the civil war. He is 80 years old and feeble.

NEWTON.—Fire destroyed the residence of Postmaster James E. Baldwin on High Street. The loss was $5,000.

FLOOD-BOUND CAIRO FIGHTS TWO RIVERS

Break in Mississippi Levee Switches Part of Garrison from the Ohio.

FIVE-INCH SAFETY MARGIN

Life Rafts Stationed Throughout City—Army Man Thinks All Can Escape.

CAIRO, Ill., April 4.—In their anxiety to prevent the levee from breaking on the Ohio River side, citizens overlooked danger from the Mississippi River, with the result that a force of workmen had to be rushed there early to-day, when a washout was threatened between Nineteenth and Twenty-fourth Streets. High winds had caused the river to cut into the bank to such an extent that a break was imminent. Several hundred bags of sand were transferred from the Ohio levee in automobiles to the new danger spot, and further erosion of the Mississippi bank was prevented.

Arrangements being made by Lieut. S. B. Buckner, U. S. A., for the safety of the people were pushed. It was thought that before midnight life rafts would be placed throughout the city in readiness for a big break.

Four non-commissioned officers were assigned to investigate the needs of farmers whose cattle might be in danger. Two of them went to the country north of Dog Tooth Bend. A report was received by the Lieutenant that farmers in that vicinity were in danger of losing many head of cattle. He planned to carry the live stock out with ferryboats.

Another expedition was sent to the Kentucky side of the Ohio.

"I believe we could now take care of everybody in Cairo," said Lieut. Buckner, "provided, of course, the water did not come in with a rush. I am fearful of a high wind."

The Ohio gauge hovered about the 54.7 mark all day. The water is five inches from the top of the concrete wall, with the surface of the river nearly three feet above the higher street levels.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 4.—Five Government yawls and sixteen boatmen will be sent from Logansport, Ind., to the Wabash and Ohio River districts at once. Word from Meredosia says the levees north and south of the town have broken, and hundreds of residents have sought protection back of a nine-mile strip of dike. Illinois Guardsmen have been sent there.

SHAWNEETOWN, Ill., April 4.—(Via De Koven, Ky.)—Almost a thousand flood refugees behind the hills here are in want of provisions. No assurance of relief has been received.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 4.—Thirty thousand persons around Mount Vernon are calling for help. Guy Green, river forecaster, said this afternoon that with forty boats in the rescue service, attention had been confined to taking persons from endangered homes to Mount Vernon. He added no effort was being made to supply the marooned farmers with food. The greatest suffering is on the Illinois side of the Wabash. Mr. Green said between 50,000 and 75,000 head of livestock would perish unless measures are taken at once. Capt. W. K. Naylor, U. S. N., went to Mount Vernon this afternoon. A Government boat with 40,000 rations was expected from Louisville. It probably will be ordered to Mount Vernon.

The Howell levee, protecting 200 families in Ingleside, gave way to-day. Ingleside is from six to ten feet under water. Bells were rung in Howell to warn the people in Ingleside. There was no loss of life.

Conditions in the Wabash bottoms were ameliorated to-day. Relief boats reached Uniontown, Ky., and the 2,000 persons marooned there were fed.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 4.—A telephone message from Hickman, Ky., this afternoon stated that the city levee there went out shortly after 12:30 P. M., flooding the factory district. No loss of life was reported. The break, it is said, will not relieve the river situation at other points, as the water will be turned back to the main stream by the Reelfoot levee. Little apprehension is felt for Memphis.

MAY FLOOD DAYTON AGAIN.

Miami River Needs Only Ten-Inch Rise for New Inundation.

DAYTON, Ohio, April 4.—Ten more inches of water in the Miami River would inflict on Dayton another flood. A ten-hour rainfall, ending at 1 o'clock this morning, with clogged sewer intakes, flooded many streets. Monument Avenue, Third Street, east and west of the business section, parts of Main Street, Wayne Avenue, and other thoroughfares stood upward of a foot deep. Much apprehension was felt in Riverdale. Adjt. Gen. G. W. Wood directed that special attention be paid to patroling the levees.

The same condition prevailed in Edgemont, because of the deep gash in the levee near the Washington Street bridge. Telephone reports from Piqua, Bellefontaine, Troy, and other places north indicated there had been incessant rains, and Dayton would get the issue. Forecaster Henry F. Alps announces a recurrence of the flood is possible.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 4.—Rain caused another flood stage in the Scioto River here to-day and resulted in the breaking of a levee on the west side. The waters again were released over a part of the territory flooded last week. There was a rise of six feet. A body was recovered, increasing the death list to eighty-five.

PIQUA, Ohio, April 4.—Gov. Cox sent to-day a telegram to President Wilson asking that Government engineers be ordered to Ohio to view the flood districts and devise ways of preventing such disasters. The message stated that conditions as to business and destruction of homes of the poor were worse than at first was believed.

The message also suggested that the Controller of the Currency be placed in charge of the distribution of all relief funds, so that credit might be re-established quickly.

Following a talk with Gov. Cox, Senator Theodore E. Burton announced that he probably would introduce in Congress a measure looking toward flood prevention in every part of the United States. He said he would not introduce such a measure unless he found it was the policy of the Administration to give Federal aid to such propositions as good roads. He also stated that, should it be found the condition of the flood sufferers in the State was worse than was thought at first, Congress would be asked for an emergency appropriation. The Senator asserted that the flood conditions were due largely to the damaging of rivers and creeks by fills to railroad bridges.

HAMILTON APPEALS FOR AID.

300 Dead and $10,000,000 Damage, Says Relief Committee.

By Telegraph to the Editor of The New York Times.

HAMILTON, April 4.—In the widespread flood disaster the country and the press have failed duly to appreciate the extent of Hamilton's affliction. This city was visited by an overwhelming flood on March 25 that destroyed hundreds of houses, causing a loss of life estimated at more than 300 persons, and a loss of property estimated at $10,000,000, and rendering thousands of persons homeless and destitute.

Our people are brave and confident of the future, but prosperous citizens are unable to give relief to our working people. We appeal in their behalf. Contributions should be sent to L. P. Clawson, Treasurer Citizens' Relief Committee.

JAMES K. CULLEN,
Chairman Citizens' Relief Committee.

HAS REAL CLEAN-UP MAYOR.

Indianapolis Sees Its Executive Shovel Flood Wreckage.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 4. — Mayor Samuel L. Shank put on overalls this morning, left the City Hall, and went to West Indianapolis, where he put in a full day assisting in cleaning up flood wreckage. He leaded a volunteer clean-up movement which proved to be practically a three-man affair, as only two workers stuck by him all day. He organized a hose gang and started it working in houses full of mud. Then he grasped a shovel and began filling wagons with trash.

"I suppose the rain has kept many men from coming over to help me," said the Mayor, "but I fear the majority of our people on the other side don't realize just how serious the situation is. I propose to tell them and get them over here and at work."

As a result of the Mayor's efforts, more than a score of homes were made habitable again, and their owners were notified they might move in to-morrow.

FOX RIVER MENACES CITIES.

Bridges Washed Away Near Aurora and Elgin—Flood in Wisconsin.

CHICAGO, April 4.—The Fox River, which flows through Aurora and Elgin, reached a dangerously high stage today. At Elgin, the water is nine inches above the previous high-water mark. A bridge and a dam near that city are reported washed out. At Yorkville, below Aurora, another bridge is said to have been washed away. Persons living in the river bottoms have fled. At Aurora the gauge showed five inches below the danger mark and rising.

OCONTO, Wis., April 4.—Oconto was flooded again to-day, and the Oconto River still is rising. The entire section between Main and McDonald is under water.

460 LIVES LOST IN OHIO.

Red Cross Estimates 40,500 Persons Made Homeless by Flood.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Ohio's loss in the recent flood was estimated to-night in a telegram from the American Red Cross agent in charge in Columbus as follows:

Lives lost	460
Homes destroyed	4,200
Persons homeless	40,500
Families outside of Dayton, Columbus, and Cincinnati in need of rehabilitation	9,000

It has been extremely difficult to get information, as wires still are down and transportation facilities are uncertain. The dispatch added:

Emergency relief situation in each flooded district in Ohio is being well covered. Dayton, Columbus, Piqua, Troy, Ottawa, Sidney, Hamilton, Miamisburg, Middletown, and Zanesville are covered by Red Cross representatives. In those places information is being accumulated rapidly on which to base rehabilitation. We are rushing men into other flooded towns as fast as the water subsides and we can get men. Col. Miller, Chief Quartermaster, reports a need of underwear of all sorts, and of bedding and blankets.

Major Normoyle, at the head of the army relief forces in the flood region, reported to-day that he was confident he had the situation well in hand. Answering a query concerning the possibility of starvation in Marietta, he responded:

"I will feed them with a spoon, if necessary."

Surgeon Evans reported from Cincinnati that all stricken towns had competent medical men and sufficient supplies, except serums. The conditions to be met related solely to food, clothing, and shelter and the prevention of epidemics, he said. He believed the local health authorities were able to handle the situation.

Secretary McAdoo ordered National Bank Examiner Goodhart to Dayton to advise the financial institutions of that city as to methods of rehabilitation.

How the Red Cross had undertaken the rehabilitation of home and business life in the flood region and had met the first call for relief was told in a statement issued to-night by Miss Mabel T. Boardman, Chairman of the Relief Committee.

Rehabilitation of the individual sufferer, she asserted, was necessary to restore normal conditions.

"To continue merely to give out food and clothing," she explained, "would mean the continuation of the paralysis of the all-important business life of the community. In many districts the merchants have lost all their stock. Unless an effort is made to aid them to make a start again, unless the people are assisted in such a way as to enable them to resume the normal condition of buying, the business of the community will remain in a hopeless condition.

"While factories are closed for repairs, work can be given to men for which they will be paid—the clearing away of the immense quantity of wreckage. Thus a purchasing power will be given to them again. The re-establishment of his market will enable the merchant to re-employ his staff, and thus again others can return to a normal existence. Where men or women have been paying for their homes by monthly installments, they can be assisted in such payments for a time to prevent the loss of their homes, and possibly the failure of mutual building associations, which would be disastrous to many of the working people. All this great work the Red Cross is undertaking. So many thousands have suffered that there will be need of all the generous contributions received."

Aaron Aaronsohn, head of the Jewish Agricultural Experiment Station in Palestine, conferred with Secretary Lane on means to control the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers. Mr. Aaronsohn's suggestions impressed the Secretary, who will discuss them with President Wilson.
